WALL STREET

BRISK STOCK RALLY IS LED BY UTILITIES

Pools Resume Operations—Scores of Issues Lifted 1 to 8 Points, Few Specialties 10 to 37 1-2 Points.

ADVANCE IN FACE OF 10 PER CENT MONEY

U. S. Steel Corporation Quarterly Report Shows Net Profit of $53,825,843, Double Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Stock prices underwent a sharp reversal in form today, opening irregularly lower and then indulging in a brisk rally which wiped out most of the early declines, sent a long list of active issues up 1 to 8 points, and a few high priced specialties up 10 to 37½ points. The rally took place in the face of a 10-per cent call money rate and continued firmness in other monetary accommodations.

Call money renewed at 10 per cent as against 9 yesterday, but there appeared to be sufficient funds available to hold the rate at that figure until the month-end credit stringency had passed. Time money developed a firmer undertone. There was no change in commercial paper rates.

Good Steel Report Expected.

Expectations of an unusually favorable quarterly report by the United States Steel Corporation after the close of the market, coupled with the prospect of an extra dividend, helped to revive bullish sentiment. Wall Street expected that the country's largest steel company would show earnings of around $6 a share in the second quarter.

The United States Steel Corporation quarterly report, issued after the close of the market, showed net profit in the June quarter of $53,825,843, as contrasted with $25,948,758 in the second quarter of last year. United States Steel common closed 1½ points higher at 206½. Only the regular dividends were declared, although Wall street expects a stock split up or extra dividends before the end of the year.

International Business Machines reported a large increase in earnings in the first half of the year, as did General Asphalt and a flock of smaller companies. Directors of Frank G. Shattuck & Co., operators of Scraffts Stores, recommended a 200 per cent stock dividend, with an increase in the annual dividend rate on the current stock from $2 to $3.

Wall Street was not yet ready to decide whether today's rise represented the beginning of another major up-swing or merely a brief rally in a declining market. Time alone will supply the answer.

Pacific Gas was the spectacular individual feature in today's market, soaring 37½ points to a new high record at 362½. Auburn Auto showed a net gain of 20¾ points and Commercial Solvents 20½.

Skelly Oil reported the highest semi-annual earnings in its history.

Gains in Utilities.

Heavy over-subscription of the new trading corporation stock being formed by the Bancamerica Blair Corporation in advance of the public offering had a buoyant effect on the public utility group. American Telephone, Western Union, American & Foreign Power, Abitibi Power and a number of others closed at net gains of 4 points or more.

Rails which have been rather backward for a week or more, also took on a new lease of life. Buffalo & Susquehanna common jumped 11 points and the preferred 6. Atchison closed 5¾ points higher and several others showed net advances of 2 points or more.

Montgomery-Ward was heavily bought in expectation of a record-breaking July sales statement, showing a net gain of 5 points.

Few Soft Spots.

There were a few soft spots. Commercial Investment Trust broke 9½ points and Allis Chalmers and Adams Express 4 each.

Commodity markets were mixed. Cotton futures advanced 50 cents to nearly $1 a bale. Wheat dropped 2¼ to 4 cents a bushel on reports of colder weather in the Northwest and bearish foreign crop advices. Corn lost about 3 cents a bushel.

Closing stock prices with other tables and market news will be found on Pages 27, 28 and 29.

LINDBERGH STOPS TO CONGRATULATE ENDURANCE FLYERS

With Wife, Pays 40-Minute Visit to Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh, paid a 40-minute visit to Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field today to congratulate the endurance flyers. On his way from Santa Fe, N. M., to New York, he landed inconspicuously at 10:25 a. m. and taxied to the Curtiss-Robertson hangars, where officials ran out to greet him.

"We just dropped in to congratulate the flyers," he said, leaning out of the front cockpit of his 2-seater. "It's a wonderful thing they're doing and I'm glad we got here while they are still up. I just heard about them last week."

At the request of Maj. William B. Robertson, his former employer on the air mail, Lindbergh flew aloft to hear the Robin's motor. At an altitude of about 4200 feet he flew alongside the Robin for five minutes, rocked the wings of his plane in salute to Jackson and O'Brine, shut off his motor for a 1500-foot dive to hear the Robin's motor, and coasted to another landing. "Sounded fine," was his report.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh met the flyers' wives and Jackson's mother.

Mrs. Lindbergh, swathed in a flying coat, smiled in the rear cockpit while her husband chatted jovially. The word, "Lindbergh is here!" was slow to reach the crowd and it was remarked that he received less attention than on any of his previous visits here. He seemed to like that.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., July 30.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Port Columbus late today. A tire of their plane blew out in landing, and the plane started to ground loop, but Lindbergh was able to right it after scraping a wing on the runway. The plane was slightly damaged.

SAYS HUGE NEW SUNSPOT CAN CAUSE SERIOUS STORMS

Mount Wilson Observers Reports It Will Affect the Earth Again Aug. 14.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., July 30.—Dr. Seth B. Nicholson, observer at the Mount Wilson Observatory here, said yesterday a gigantic spot had been discovered near the equator of the sun. The spot, described as having 80 times the magnetic intensity of ordinary sun spots, Dr. Nicholson said was powerful enough to cause serious magnetic storms on the earth.

The scientist said the spot was 33,000 miles long and 20,000 miles wide and had an intensity of 4000 gausses, a unit by which physicists measure magnetic energy. The earth's magnetic field has an intensity of one-half a gauss.

Dr. Nicholson said the spot would affect the earth again on Aug. 14, and a series of magnetic storms might occur at that time.

S. R. M'KELVIE CHOSEN; COMPLETES FARM BOARD

Former Governor of Nebraska Will Represent Grain Producers on Federal Body.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Former Gov. Samuel Roy McKelvie of Nebraska was appointed today to the Federal Farm Board, completing its membership.

This was announced late today at the White House, where it was said that McKelvie's acceptance was conditioned by a reservation that he be permitted to withdraw if he desires at the end of a year.

McKelvie will represent the grain producing industry on the Farm Board.

RECOVERS $65,000 IN BULLION LOST 27 YEARS AGO IN LAKE

By the Associated Press.

NELSON, B. C., July 30.—Base bullion, consisting of gold, silver and lead valued at about $65,000 and lost 27 years ago in Slocan Lake at Slocan City, has been recovered and is being returned to the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co.'s plant at Tadanac.

The minerals were lost when the railway car carrying them plunged over the end of the wharf at Slocan City, carrying a brakeman to his death.

Fred Madison, diver, located the car at a depth of 120 feet and 300 feet from the wharf, one set of trucks holding the car to the edge of a rocky precipice.

MAN AND WOMAN HE WAS TEACHING TO SWIM DROWNED

Sylvester Dosenbach, 23 St. Louis, and Miss Osedia Bucheit, 23, Longtown, Mo., Meramec Victims.

CAUGHT IN CURRENT AND SWEPT AWAY

Had Become Separated From Their Outing Party Near Jedburg — Both Bodies Are Recovered.

Sylvester Dosenbach, 23 years old, 2149A Russell boulevard, and Miss Osedia Bucheit, 22, of Longtown, Mo., were drowned Sunday night while bathing in the Meramec River near Jedburg, in St. Louis County.

Dosenbach was teaching Miss Bucheit to swim and became separated from others in their outing party. His companions first became aware of the danger when they heard his call for help and saw him and his companion being carried down stream in the rapid current.

Miss Bucheit's body was recovered yesterday. Dosenbach's was found this morning 40 yards down stream from the point at which he disappeared.

Dosenbach made his home in St. Louis with a married sister, Mrs. Anna Corey. The body will be taken tomorrow to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dosenbach, who live on a farm near Perryville, Mo. Perryville is about 10 miles from Longtown, the home of Miss Bucheit.

EPISCOPAL PASTOR ASSAILS MIXING CHURCH IN POLITICS

Dr. Caleb R. Stetson Says Activity in Prohibition Field Has Hurt Religion.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Participation of the church in politics is criticised by Dr. Caleb R. Stetson in the year book of Trinity parish, made public today.

"The political activities of churches and denominations which have become so strikingly a feature of our national life since the passing of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution is definitely hurting the cause of religion in this country," he said.

"There is a growing resentment on the part of many loyal to religion that churches should be used as centers of propaganda for either pacifism or prohibition."

Trinity is the largest Episcopal parish in Manhattan.

FLYERS PROMISE TO LAND BY 10 P. M., IF FUEL RUNS OUT

POLICE BENEFIT REVIVED; TO BE SWIMMING MEET

Board Gives Sanction but Allows Only Men on Beats to Sell the 40,000 Tickets at $1 Each.

BARS PURCHASES FROM TRAFFIC FORCE

Besides Members of Department, Clubs Will Be Invited to Enter Contests Sept. 7-8.

Under a change of policy adopted by the new Board of Police Commissioners, policemen on beats have been authorized to offer for sale to the public 40,000 tickets at $1 each for an entertainment for the benefit of the Police Relief Association.

For many years it was the practice of the Police Relief Association, which collects dues from members of the force and pays sick and death benefits, to conduct public entertainments to supplement its income. The entertainments were held at Forest Park Highlands and in more recent years at the Coliseum.

Following complaints that objectionable methods were used by some policemen to sell tickets, and program advertising and that even questionable characters were "permitted" to buy tickets, the entertainments were stopped after the Police Board headed by Col. Allen C. Orrick came into power four years ago.

On assurances by executives of the Relief Association that objectionable methods will be eliminated, the new Police Board, of which Lon O. Hocker is president, has authorized a swimming meet at the Coliseum on Sept. 7-8, afternoons and evenings.

Forty thousand tickets, each admitting two persons, are being printed and will be placed in beat men's hands with strict instructions not to "solicit" anyone. The policemen are merely to make it known that they have the tickets for sale and will sell upon request. No pressure is to be exerted. Traffic policemen, who led in sales in former years, will not be given any tickets, inasmuch as some motorists bought tickets in the hope of avoiding police court tickets.

A loss of $160,000 in revenue has resulted in the last three years from barring of the entertainments, according to Secretary Connors of the relief association. The association has a surplus of $150,000 now.

Policemen and members of their families will compete in the swimming meet. Entries also will be accepted from various athletic organizations. The prizes will be 40 medals, donated by Daniel Hyland. A rental of $1000 will be paid for the Coliseum. The meet will be in charge of Henry Abeken, Police Department physical instructor.

WELLSVILLE BUSINESS DISTRICT SWEPT BY THREE-HOUR FIRE

Four of the Principal Buildings Burn After Explosion in Quarters of Auto Concern.

By the Associated Press.

WELLSVILLE, Mo., July 30.—Fire caused by an explosion in the establishment of the Wellsville Motor Co. threatened the entire business district of the town today. Four of the principal buildings and several smaller structures were destroyed.

The fire raged for three hours. The Wellsville Motor Co.'s quarters, a two-story building owned by George Austin, was destroyed, as were a storehouse of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., the Spires Garage, which had a dance hall on the second floor, the Kuhne Blacksmith Shop, and the Mutual Telephone Co.'s building, in addition to several outbuildings along the alley. The Wellsville fire department was assisted by the Mexico and Montgomery City departments.

10-CENT CARFARE HEARING IN PROGRESS

Proposal for Cheap Rate Tickets Among Those Under Discussion.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 30.—An informal conference of city officials and officers of the St. Louis Public Service Co., with members of the Missouri Public Service Commission was under way here this afternoon in an effort to work out a street car fare schedule which would provide the company with increased revenues without increasing the fare to regular car riders.

As a basis on which to work, those in the conference had a plan suggested by an engineer of the Public Service Commission. It contemplated a cash fare of 10 cents, and the sale of tickets at possibly slightly less than the present 8-cent fare, with a limited time period for the use of the tickets.

The theory was advanced that the car rider who used the street cars twice a day might obtain his rides at a slightly reduced rate, while the casual rider would pay a higher fare.

It was stated at the offices of the commission that it should not be assumed that the plan under consideration would be put into effect, and that it was only a subject for informal discussion in connection with the company's application for a straight 10-cent fare.

In the conference the city was represented by City Counselor Muench and Assistant Counselor Ferris, who are opposing the company application for higher fares, and by Robert Boyle, an engineer. Representatives of the company are Stanley Clarke, its president; Lloyd Landau, an attorney, and W. B. Bennett, its valuation engineer.

MAIL FROM CHILE IN 8 DAYS

First Postal Plane From Buenos Aires Reaches Miami, Fla.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., July 30.—The first air mail plane from Buenos Aires to North America arrived here yesterday, carrying a number of South American newspapers and letters from the Presidents of every republic from Chile to the United States, addressed to President Hoover. The mail left Santiago, Chile, Sunday morning, July 21.

Pilot Leroy Culbertson carried the mail on its last overwater flight from Managua, bringing the plane down on the airport here at 5 o'clock, schedule time. The flight completed 1,015,000 miles of air mail service since the Pan-American Aviation Co. inaugurated a South American route last January.

CURTISS TO PAY FLYERS $25,300 ON BASIS OF 500 HOURS, REGARDLESS

DALE JACKSON and Forest O'Brine will receive $25,300 from the Curtiss Aero plane & Motor Co., for their record endurance flight, regardless of whether they remain aloft 500 hours, the time previously required to earn that amount.

In a telegram today to Maj. Robertson, Frank H. Russell, vice president of the company manufacturing the Challenger motor used on the St. Louis Robin, said:

"Congratulations to you for your endurance flyers. The Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Co., desires to announce that at the close of the record-breaking 400 hours we will gladly pay the premium offered to them on the basis of 500 hours completed flight.

"Four hundred hours is twice the time recommended for Challenger motor overhaul and a human feat that has won the world's respect. Primary object of test of motor and plane now accomplished."

The Curtiss company offered $100 an hour, to be divided between the flyers, for each hour aloft over the Angeleno's 247-hour record.

REFUSED PROMOTION FIVE TIMES, HELD FOR $50,000 THEFT

Cashier of New York Firm Admits He Lost It on Horses and Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—A cashier who five times in 10 years refused promotions, is under arrest here for the embezzlement of $50,000.

Philip K. Keller started with the International Tailoring Co. 20 years ago as an office boy. After rising to the position of cashier at a salary of $60 a week, he refused further advancement, saying he preferred that job to any other in the company.

Assistant District Attorney Unger said Keller confessed losing the money betting on horse races and in stock market speculations.

PLYMOUTH, 'ngland, July 30.—The liner Mauretania arrived here this morning after a crossing from New York in five days, one hour an one minute, its fastest crossing this year. The average speed was 25.58 miles an hour.

Officers said the liner made no attempt to beat the recently established record of the Bremen.

F. O. WATTS JR. AND H. V. STEPHENS HURT

Former Falls When Climbing Downspout on House, Latter When Riding Horse.

Frank O. Watts Jr., son of the chairman of the board of First National Bank, and Howard V. Stephens, president of the Johnson, Stephens & Shinkle Shoe Co., are patients at Barnes Hospital, suffering from spinal injuries suffered recently in separate accidents.

Watts fell early Sunday after climbing a downspout almost to the third floor of the residence of Mrs. Henry C. Scott at 31 Westmoreland place. He was with Mrs. Scott's son, George, who had lost his key, and volunteered to climb to an open window on the third floor. The pipe broke, throwing him to the ground. Four vertebrae were fractured.

Stephens fell from his horse while riding at Trail's End Stables on Litzinger road in St. Louis County a week ago Saturday, suffering a fracture of a vertebra.

Mutual friends are visiting both during a single visit to the hospital, Watts having a room on the floor above the one occupied by Stephens. Both are in plaster casts, but no fears are held for their recovery.

Watts spent Saturday evening at Hotel Chase roof garden with a party of friends which included George Scott, David Calhoun, Asa Wallace and Henry Potter. Leaving there about 1 o'clock they went to the Scott home intending to prepare food for themselves.

They were unable to arouse a servant left in charge during the absence of the family on vacation, and Watts started up the downspout. As he neared the open window, the spout broke, and he fell, a second floor window ledge breaking his fall.

Mrs. Watts, who was spending a vacation at Wequetonsing, Mich., returned home yesterday and learned of the death in an airplane accident of George Lea Lambert, a close friend of her husband. Watts also was a pilot and had flown with Lambert.

Stephens was riding alone at Trail's End, a private stable maintained by himself and business associates, when he was injured. His horse did not fall and he was unable to explain what caused him to slip from the saddle.

ORDERED DOWN BY ROBERTSON ON 18TH DAY

Sponsor Says Robin Is Still OK but That Motor and Plane Have More Than Met Tests.

UP 417 HOURS, 170 PAST OLD RECORD

Jackson and O'Brine Earlier Had Dropped Note Saying They Were "Shooting at 500 Hours."

The spectacular flight of more than 17 days of the St. Louis Robin will end tonight, if Pilots Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine carry out their announced intention of landing when their present supply of gasoline is exhausted.

In this event the landing hour will be not later than 10 p. m., according to estimates of Curtiss-Robertson officials at Lambert Field.

The pilots who have gained world renown are not coming down of their own volition, but on orders from Maj. William B. Robertson, manufacturer of the St. Louis Robin and sponsor of the flight.

In response to an early morning note from Maj. Robertson, suggesting they consider first their own safety, inasmuch as the purpose of the flight had been accomplished, Jackson and O'Brine wrote that they were shooting at the 500-hour mark and saw no reason to quit now. They reported their motor still running good, and the ship and themselves "O K."

Answered Six Hours Later.

However, at 8:45 a. m., Maj. Robertson had called reporters at the field aside, and pointing to the refueling plane, which was about to take off, said:

"There goes the note to call them down today."

For six hours, apparently, Jackson and O'Brine considered the situation while circling the field at altitudes varying from 4000 to 5000 feet at a speed of 60 miles an hour.

Shortly before 3 p. m. the endurance monoplane began circling lower and lower in graceful maneuvers, finally swooping down to within 50 feet of the ground, to the cheers of more than 5000 spectators who sensed that a landing was imminent.

However they dropped a cylinder containing a message, and continued circling at low altitude until the yellow flag of the ground crew signaled the receipt of the note.

To Land When Fuel Is Gone.

Then they climbed upward to their customary altitude, and resumed their wide circuit of the field. When Maj. Robertson arrived from his nearby office the note was opened, and the announcement made that in effect the flyers had written that they would come down when their gasoline ran out. The text of the note was not made public, it being stated that the other parts were a confidential report to the company on the condition of the motor and plane.

Flight officials at once informed the press that 10 p. m. was the latest hour the flyers would remain aloft, and numerous pilots expressed the opinion that the Robin would be down before that.

"Oh, it's a shame," was Mrs. Sally Jackson's first reaction to the afternoon development. Later the pilot's wife added: "Of course, I'm glad in a way they are coming down. But at the same time I wish they could stay up 500 hours."

"Ma" Jackson, the pilot's mother, who flew here from Faribault, Minn., smiled broadly when she heard the news and observed: "I feel pretty good now."

At 4:17 p. m. the Robin had completed 417 hours in continuous flight, exceedin gthe record of the Angeleno by 170 hours and 17 minutes, or more than seven full days.

Will Earn More Than $30,000.

At that hour the joint earnings of Jackson and O'Brine, who are expected to share their profits with Maj. Wassal, Shorty Chaffee and other members of the

20,000 MEN SLAIN IN MOSLEM RAID ON CHINESE TOWN

Survivors at Dangar, Near Tibetan Border, Are in Distress, Says Report of Missionary Relief Agent.

FAMINE VICTIMS HAD CROWDED CITY

Nearly Every Adult Male, Except Very Aged, Killed to Insure Attackers' Hope of Paradise.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, CHINA, July 30.—Massacre by Mohammedans of 20,000 men and boys in Dangar City, Providence of Chinghai, near Tibet, was reported yesterday by Findley Andrews, American missionary, with details which read like the worst chapters of medieval persecution.

Andrews, who has just returned from three months' investigation in the famine areas of Northern China for the China Inland Mission, assembled information from magistrates and other Chinese officials' reports to the International Famine Relief Commission that Mohammedan raiders in two hours annihilated the male inhabitants of the unhappy city, and then looted the homes.

From what the missionary learned, the raiders attacked the mountain town mounted and afoot, and with shouts of "Kill the men, kill every male from 17 to 70," they rushed the city gates in religious frenzy.

Few Women Killed.

Only a few women were killed, mostly those who attempted to shield the men. The Chinese men, weakened by famine conditions and privations, could offer little resistance. So far as Andrews could ascertain, every able-bodied man was killed, while the aged, the very young and a few who managed to hide in cellars escaped.

Religious fanaticism was given as the motive for the raid by Andrews. There has been a Moslem rebellion in progress in Kansu province for some time and it was estimated 200,000 persons were killed between April and October, last year.

The raid on Dangar occurred during the winter and was described by Andrews as the most gruesome in the long history of Moslem outbreaks in China. It was not the most terrible in loss of life, however, for a Kansu Moslem rebellion in 1877 is said to have cost 14,000,000 lives.

Andrews, in reporting to the International Famine Relief, said: "Dangar presents a new type of problem. There are thousands of women there without husbands or brothers and in absolute despair."

By his account the Moslems made such a butchery of the male inhabitants because "it was the will of Allah that if a Moslem kill's 10 Chinese he will surely go to paradise."

City Was Crowded.

Chinghai Province was created last year out of the northwestern part of Kansu and is one of the famine areas Andrews did not visit personally. From reports of Chinese officials he supposed the massacre happened some months ago.

News from the wild Chinghai territory is always meager because of lack of means of communication.

At the time the Mohammedans swooped down on Dangar, the city was filled to overflowing with starving refugees from other famine districts. The victims were trapped like rats, when the attack broke early in the morning, and never had a chance to fight for their lives.

WALKING ON VIADUCT RAIL, WOMAN FALLS TO DEATH

Companion, Seriously Hurt, Tells of Previous Heavy Drinking at Negro Party.

Attempting to walk the stone railing on the Jefferson avenue viaduct after attending a drinking party, Margaret Jackson, 25 years old, a Negro, fell 35 feet to the railroad yards below and was fatally injured about 2:30 o'clock this morning. Clarence Harper, 26, a Negro, also fell from the viaduct railing and suffered fractures of the skull, neck, left arm and several ribs.

The Negro woman, taken to City Hospital No. 2, died without recovering consciousness. Harper became conscious long enough to tell an incoherent story of the heavy drinking at the party and the attempted walk on the railing.

Robin Motor Could Last 500 Hours, Engineer Says

Flyers, in Letter Sent Them Before They Were Ordered Down, Told to Make Own Decision on Landing.

Before ordering them to land today, Maj. William B. Robertson, sponsor of the flight, sent the flyers the following letter asking them to use their own judgment as to when they should come down, bearing in mind that their safety was the paramount issue:

We are so anxious that you will have no trouble with your motor, we are thinking things that we may want to caution you about. We may be unduly alarmed, but there are a lot of rumors around town and we have gotten some requests about calling you down after 400 hours.

We believe that the motor has proved conclusively everything that we wanted to know and we would not want any trouble to mar your record. This is all true, but if we did call you down after 400 hours and there was still some more time in the motor, no doubt within the next three days or three weeks some one would start up again to stay until they wore the motor out and your record would not stand.

No Attempt to Dictate.

We all had a little conference this afternoon, Arthur Nutt, who as you know is the designer of the motor and chief engineer of the Curtiss Company, Ray Wassal, Damon, Mellen and myself and we all believe that it would be an injustice to you to tell you to come down before you are ready to come down. Of course, we do not want anything to happen that will mar your record, still at the same time we do not want to dictate to you about the machine as you no doubt know more about it than we do.

I may add however, that Mr. Nutt believes that the motor is good for 500 hours and its failure will be nothing more than a gradual loss of power. Mr. Damon and I both believe that the machine itself together with the landing gear tail surfaces, are so constructed that they will last a long time also. It is necessary however, as you have already demonstrated, to check carefully the motor every day and check the tail surfaces and landing gear and other control parts so see that they are in perfect condition. At this conference this afternoon, we all decided that we will put the matter entirely in your hands and that whenever you think the motor has lost too much power, or there is excessive vibration here or there, or for any other reason that you feel you want to come down we will welcome you with open arms.

Grading at Airport.

I forgot to mention in my other note to you that the city has already started some grading to put in runways that will run diagonally across the field, from the northeast to southwest and they have been doing a little grading on the southwest part of the field as you no doubt can see from your ship.

The air may be all gone out of your tires by now, so when the time comes for you to land, please be on the alert in case the ship tries to ground loop as would be the case if one tire was flat.

You are doing such a darn good job, the motor and plane are functioning all right, it does seem a shame for us to even approach the subject of coming down, but as I stated before, we can't tell what condition this motor is in down here on the ground and we are leaving it up to you entirely.

I do not want you to become too fatigued, but if you are enjoying yourselves, getting plenty of sleep and keeping in good physical condition, and if in your opinion the airplane and motor are in excellent condition you may keep on as long as you see fit.

Sincerely,
WILLIAM B. ROBERTSON.

In reply the flyers sent down the following message:

Maj. Robertson:

Motor still running good. See no reason to quit now. We are shooting at the 500 mark. Ship is O K and so are we. Regards.

Endurance Flight Sidelights

ONE reason why the record which Jackson and O'Brine are establishing will be likely to stand for a long time is that future endurance flyers will have to work so much longer to get public recognition. Hereafter, seekers of the endurance record cannot expect to receive much attention from the public until they have been up at least two weeks—a long time to fly around unnoticed.

Reg Robbins, one of the pilots of the airplane Fort Worth, which set a former endurance record at Fort Worth, Tex., recently, only to have it excelled by the Angeleno at Los Angeles and by the St. Louis Robin, was a visitor at Lambert-St. Louis Field for a short time today. He arrived from Texas on a train at 11:30 a. m. and left the airport for Boston on the Universal Air Lines early in the afternoon. Speaking of Jackson and O'Brine he said: "We are very proud of these boys." One of the persons with whom he conversed at the field was O'Brine's wife.

Citizens of Carrollton, Mo., are especially interested in the flight because Mrs. Elsie O'Brine, wife of one of the pair aloft, spent most of her life there.

O'Brine himself is well known in Carrollton. His first appearance there was with a carnival five years ago. He was the daredevil motor cycle performer who rode inside a huge wooden funnel. After his marriage to Miss Elsie Skinner, his appearances there were infrequent. O'Brine meantime had taken up flying and now and then the pair would drop in for a visit, landing on a farm, where O'Brine would take up passengers on sightseeing hops.

John Skinner, father of Mrs. O'Brine, recently left Carrollton for Oklahoma City.

Mrs. Sally Jackson, Mrs. Elsie O'Brine and Ma Jackson received a number of gifts yesterday.

The wives received diamond rings valued at $250 each from the Eisenstadt Manufacturing Co. and wrist watches from Bulova Watch Co. Mrs. Jackson Sr., her daughter-in-law, and Mrs. O'Brine received dresses from the Rubenstein Dress Shop, the models given the young women being designated "Sally" and "Elsie." Shoes were supplied by the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., and gloves were received from Rothschild Bros. Hat Co. Wall mirrors were presented by the Condie-Bray Glass & Paint Co.

Diamond rings of a new design to be known as "The Flying Robin," were presented to Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. O'Brine by the designer, Mack M. Burnstine, diamond importer in the Arcade Building. The rings are valued at $250 each.

The William J. Brennan Grocery Co. placed the choicest food products in the store at the command of the flyers and their families.

Jackson and O'Brine were not forgotten by donors. They received a check for $100 and a slab of bacon from the Krey Packing Co., and $50 from the Missouri Florists' Association.

McDonald & Condie, architects in the Field Building, who designed a number of buildings at Lambert-St. Louis Field, have offered their services without charge if Jackson or O'Brine decide to build homes. The W. P. Erhart Leather Co., 1602 Locust street, has sent the flyers orders for a pair of shoes each. Miss Alice Furth, 5342 Vernon avenue, has sent them a $2 check. These gifts were delivered in care of the Air Board.

Shorty Chaffee of the refueling crew also was remembered. An automobile supply concern gave him two pairs of special gloves to wear when handling the rope by means of which he lowers the heavy containers of oil and food.

When the refueling plane landed last night a wild duck followed the craft almost to the ground.

Tom Kearney, betting commissioner, has been forced by popular interest to lay odds against the Robin flyers. It puts him in rather an awkward position because everyone wants to back the flyers and Kearney, one of their staunch champions, has to bet against them.

He is laying 2 to 1 that the plane will not stay up 450 hours and 3 to 1 that it will not touch 500.

"I hope I lose," Kearney said today. "Today I'm paying off a fellow who bet me last Friday that the ship would beat 400 hours. I laid $200 against his $100."

The practicality of 24-hour coast-to-coast passenger flights is seen in the achievements of endurance planes by Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, leading American ace during the war, now vice president of the Fokker Aircraft Corporation. He was here yesterday in the course of a survey of the Universal Air Lines for whose system Fokker builds many planes. Harlan "Bud" Gurney, of the Universal organization, was with Rickenbacker. They left for Kansas City in the afternoon.

In extending his congratulations to Jackson and O'Brine, Rickenbacker said: "They are doing a great thing for aviation and I hope they won't come down for weeks. This sort of thing shows how coast-to-coast planes, through refueling, will be able to go faster because of lighter gasoline loads. Refueling flights, too, are doing away with the old fear of a motor stopping in the air. Motors don't stop any more, if they are good motors, properly cared for."

"Have patience—old age will bring the boys down," stated a telegram received at Mayor Miller's office from Ralph W. Strong, Coldwater, Mich., a St. Louis Robin admirer.

A gift of $150 for Jackson and O'Brine was sent to the airport by the Alemite Lubricating Co. today.

COURT FREES TWO IN $5,000,000 BROKERAGE CRASH

Orders Acquittal of R. R. Daily and C. A. Clark of Toombs & Daily, Chicago Firm.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward instructed the jury today to return a verdict of acquittal in the trial of Claude E. Clarke, a vice president, and R. R. Daily, secretary, of the defunct brokerage firm of Toombs & Daily, which failed last year with a $5,000,000 loss to investors. Clark and Daly were charged with using the mails to defraud.

Judge Woodward sustained a motion for a directed verdict, made by counsel for the defendants, stating that if the jury were to return a verdict of guilty after the defense put in its case he would be forced to grant a new trial because there was not sufficient evidence to warrant such a verdict or the case going to the jury.

Yesterday Toombs withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded nolo contendere. Judge Woodward will rule Sept. 7 on Toombs' plea.

Action by Toombs followed an effort by counsel for Clark to introduce into evidence a statement made by O. R. Daily, a vice president and father of R. R. Daily. The elder Daily, also a defendant, was granted a separate trial because of serious illness.

In his statement, O. R. Daily admitted his guilt and absolved those on trial. He said his son and Clark had no knowledge of the abstraction of thousands of dollars of securities and the falsifying of the financial statement. He also said he had practically sole charge of the securities and other affairs of the company, and the officials merely signed their names to checks and did whatever he told them.

Toombs' changed plea was entered by Attorney Charles E. Hadley, who told the court his client felt he was not guilty and at most he was only guilty of censure because he accepted the word of C. R. Daily without investigation.

Toombs, former president of the International Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis, is under sentence of three years' imprisonment in the Missouri penitentiary, on conviction of an illegal overissue of the insurance company's stock. Three other indictments are pending against him in St. Louis.

SUITS FOR $110,000 FILED AGAINST REFRIGERATOR FIRM

Action Brought for Death and Injuries Laid to Gas in Chicago Apartment.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—A recent death and two injuries, attributed to methyl chloride from mechanical refrigerators, have resulted in the filing of five damage suits, aggregating $110,000, against the Peerless Ice Machine Co.

The Roessler and Hasslacher Chemical Co. and the 926 Eastwood Avenue Building Corporation were made co-defendants.

Two of the suits, each for $25,000, were filed by Robert W. Dailey and wife, who allege they were injured by the escaping gas; and $25,000 each is asked by the husband and mother of Mrs. Viola Clark; who was asphyxiated, allegedly by the gas. Clark asks $10,000 in a third suit, as administrator of his wife's estate.

NEW TROPHY FOR LINDBERGH

A gorgeous Indian headdress of doeskin and eagles' feathers, a tribute from the Indians of New Mexico to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, has been received at Jefferson Memorial as the latest addition to the Lindbergh trophies. The inscription, on a strip of doeskin, reads:

"To Col. Charles Lindbergh, 'Lone Eagle of the Air,' by the Indians of New Mexico at Albuquerque, July 5, 1929, on the occasion of inviting him to attend the annual celebration, 'The First American.'"

FIVE REPORTED INDICTED IN FAKE MEDICAL RING

W. H. H. Miller Former Illinois Official Among Those Said to Be Named in True Bills.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—True bills were reported to have been voted today against W. H. H. Miller, former head of the State Department of Registration and Education, L. Mitchell Blaine and three other members of an alleged fake medical license ring.

Miller and Blaine were reported named jointly in two true bills charging conspiracy, while Harry Goldstine, Albert Carl Barron and Dr. John Torbut were reported named in a third true bill on the same charge.

The alleged license syndicate is said to have sold hundreds of spurious dental and medical licenses for approximately $2000 each. Miller left office in 1922 after he was convicted for selling counterfeit licenses.

Four St. Louisans Testify.

Four St. Louisians, Robert Adcox, Rudolph Bollmeir, Field A. Poe and William Stahlman, testified before the grand jury today.

Adcox, in a preliminary statement to prosecutors, said Miller and Blaine offered him 10 per cent commission on all prospects found by him and to whom medical licenses would be sold.

Bollmeier said he dealt directly with Miller and agreed to pay $2400 for a license. He actually paid $1430, he said.

"Miller and Blaine got me into a hotel room in St. Louis," he said, "and gave me an examination. They would ask me a question and then hand me the answer on a typewritten sheet of paper and I would read the answer to them. It looked like they wanted the examination to look official."

Posed as "Senator Broadsky."

Poe, in his preliminary statement, said he paid $1000 and also was given the "examination" in a hotel room. Stahlman said he bought his license from Goldstine for $2400. He said Goldstine posed as "Senator Brodsky."

The three men who bought licenses said they were offered good jobs in Illinois institutions in addition. The jobs failed to materialize, they said.

The license "mill," according to Pat Roche, chief investigator for the State's attorney, was conducted along systematic lines and is responsible for hundreds of untrained physicians practising in Illinois and adjoining states.

Several have already been indicted among them Dr. Morris Kalmus of New York, alleged Eastern agent for the ring; Dr. Albert C. Barron of Chicago; and L. Mitchell Blain, former inspector for the State Department.

Dry Agent Killed in Auto Accident.

BENTON, Ark., July 30.—Charles F. Cooley, 40 years old, Federal Prohibition Agent, with headquarters in Little Rock, was killed this morning, when his automobile was overturned in an attempt to avoid a collision.

PLEASURE
New, Gay Berlin

Berlin is becoming the playground of the West. No entertainment place in the World compares with the new "Vaterland Haus" which accommodates 8000 people. It is a veritable "House of Nations," containing nine large restaurants, each a replica, in food and service, of famous restaurants of other countries.

Whatever "country" you may have chosen for the evening, the bill comes in marks; but A. B. A. Cheques are welcomed, there as elsewhere; and no money is as safe for you to carry. A. B. A. Flyers Are Ordered Down In 18th Day in the Air ground crew, had reached $20,130 accumulated at the rate of $116 an hour since the old record was broken. With the Curtiss Company's announcement today that it would pay a $25,300 bonus to the flyers, on a basis of 500 hours, the monetary awards will exceed $30,000.

The St. Louis Robin has flown about 25,000 miles, which is the circumference of the earth at the equator, Maj. Wassal of the refueling crew estimated at 1:30 p. m. This is at an average of 60 miles an hour since the plane went aloft. The Robin has taken on 3520 gallons of gasoline in 47 refueling contacts. Seventy-seven contacts for all purposes have been made.

Maj. Robertson explained his request in the following memorandum, given the press at noon:

Maj. Robertson, president of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Mfg. Co., stated this morning that he sent a note to Forest O'Brine and Dale Jackson at 8:45 a. m. today requesting them to terminate their endurance flight some time today.

This decision is contrary to the wishes of the two endurance flyers as they have advised Maj. Robertson this morning that —"the motor is still running good—see no reason to quit now —we are shooting at the 500 mark—ship is O. K. and so are we."

Maj. Robertson's reasons for this decision are that all the objects of the test flight, started July 13, 1929, have been fully accomplished, as the Challenger motor has more than proved itself, the Robin airplane has also proved itself, and the technical data that was wanted has been secured.

The men are in good health and excellent spirits, the motor and plane are running smoothly, but he can see no further advantage of running the motor until it fails, as Jackson and O'Brine have now established an endurance record beyond all expectations."

Joseph Mellen, a representative of the Curtiss interests, said: "They have done their stuff and we don't want to take any chances with them."

"What if they refuse to land," a questioner asked.

"We will still feed them and send them fuel," Maj. Robertson replied.

Before sending aloft the order to land today Maj. Robertson sent up a letter inquiring into the condition of the pilots, the motor, and their plane, and directing them to use their own judgment as to the time of landing. The text of this letter is published elsewhere in this edition.

Just before 11 o'clock, Maj. Robertson received a report from Col. Lindbergh, who paid a 40-minute visit to Lambert-St. Louis Field, that the Challenger engine "sounded fine." Col. Lindbergh flew alongside the endurance plane and cut his own motor before landing, in order to better hear the beat of the other engine.

Jackson and O'Brine had their joke with the ground crew and spectators at 6:30 a. m., when they sent down this note:

Everybody get ready. We are going to land.

Maj. Wassall, chief of the ground crew, and his assistants hurried to their prescribed stations. Movie men shouldered heavy cameras and ran to "location." Spectators told each other, "They are going to land." Reporters flashed their offices that the long-awaited landing was about to take place. News services sent out bulletins and radio broadcasters made preliminary announcements.

While all this activity was taking place Jackson, at the controls of the Robin, circled low. On one swoop he came within 25 feet of the ground and narrowly missed a camera man standing on a truck.

Then someone read the second note in the tube tossed from the plane, which was:

Don't forget to read on the bottom of the first message. We are going to land sometime. Ha! ha!

Wassall looked more closely at the first message and saw the word "sometime," written in a fold in the paper.

Having enjoyed their joke, which, however, caused Mrs. O'Brine to become hysterical, the flyers dropped the following order for the day's supplies.

Shorty:

We want about 60 to 70 gas and oil. No. 4 and No. 6 cylinders are hitting it fine now. (Yesterday the flyers reported that these cylinders appeared to be weakening.) Tappets a little loose. Also send 8 to 10 feet steel wire. Same size as last time. And if you can send up an extra gallon of oil so we can have it in case we need it. I thought O'Bie had fell out, but, after digging around under the coats and blankets I found him on the floor all rolled up in a ball. He wanted to know why I didn't go higher. Say the heat is awful. Regards. RED.

Why They Wanted Wire.

Maj. Wassall explained that the flyers use the wire they requested to strengthen the collapsible fishing pole with which they free the tail of the ship of debris.

Phil Silverson, aerial photographer at Lambert Field and a friend of Jackson, who was betting the flyers would stay up 500 hours, received this message from the Robin this morning:

Phil Silverson, king of the funnel gang.

Dear Phil:

Sorry I haven't written you before, but I can't write everybody, for my arm would play out soon. Tell that bunch down there not to get tough, or I'll knock those tents in on them while they are trying to sleep, and if that isn't enough I'll make them lay in the dust. If they don't think I can push tell 'em to stand out there and see for themselves. I hope we can stay up a month. By that time everything will be forgotten and everybody can go home. Give my regards to Mike.

Sincerely, Red, the endurance man from Angelus.

"Mike" is Silverson's wife, Myrtle.

The flyers received word of two air tragedies yesterday. The first was the announcement that the only remaining rivals, Capt. P. J. Crichton and Owen Haughton, had been killed when their plane, the Minneapolis crashed. Jackson and O'Brine wrote a message of condolence. Last night they were informed that George Lea Lambert, son of Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, official observer of the flight, and Harold C. Jones, student pilot, were killed near the field. Lambert was well known to both the endurance flyers.

Last evening O'Brine dropped this note:

"Well, old-timers, how would you like to make about two trips with gas tonight. We can handle about 50 gallons on the first trip and 90 on the second. I see a big crowd waiting down below for us to land. Well, we are sure sorry, but as far as we know we will be up here this time next week, so go home and get some sleep and we will notify them when we get ready to land.

"Red has gone into the wood-cutting business, I believe. It sounds like a bucksaw. He just had a nightmare and when he woke up he was singing, 'I Wonder What's Become of Sally. That Old Gal of Mine.' (Jackson's wife is named Sally.)

"We had a craps game up here this morning, and I broke him. I got both nickels. We have been flying at 6500 feet. We can find it nice up here. It's smooth. By the time we get down it will be time for gas, oil and eats. (Meaning to get down to an altitude low enough to drop the note.) So here goes. "O'BRINE."

WRITING OF THEIR STUNT ONE OF FIRST JOBS FACING FLYERS WHEN THEY LAND

ONE of the first tasks confronting the endurance flyers after their landing will be the preparation of their respective of the record-making flight, which is to be published in the Post-Dispatch exclusively in St. Louis.

When they are taken from Lambert-St. Louis Field to Hotel Coronado, Jackson and O'Brine will take with them the notes they made during their long stay in the air. They will decode and compile these notes as early as possible, and will use them as the basis for their story.

GEORGE LAMBERT FUNERAL SET FOR 4 P. M. TOMORROW

Mother, Brother and Sister Are on Way From Kennebunkport, Me., to Attend Services.

AVIATORS ASKED NOT TO DROP FLOWERS

H. C. Jones, Student Pilot, Killed With Him in Plane Crash, to Be Buried in Minneapolis.

The funeral of George Lea Lambert, 23-year-old vice president of the Von Hoffmann Aircraft Corporation, who was killed with a student flyer in an airplane crash yesterday, will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow at the Lambert home at 2 Hortense place, with burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

The funeral will be unostentatious in accordance with the wishes of the young flyer's father, Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, pioneer aviation enthusiast, for whom Lambert-St. Louis Field was named. Maj. Lambert today requested that his son's flying companions abandon their plan to fly over the funeral procession and drop flowers.

Lambert's mother, his sister, Miss Myrtle McGrew Lambert, and his brother, Donaldson L. Lambert, will arrive tomorrow morning from the Lambert summer home at Kennebunkport, Me. Another brother, Albert Bond Lambert Jr., is in St. Louis.

List of Pallbearers.

Pallbearers will include Marion L. J. Lambert and Stafford (Casey) Lambert, cousins of the dead flyer, and eight friends and former classmates at Princeton University, including John Hayward, A. F. Boyd, Stephen Sheldon and Thomas W. Pettus of St. Louis, W. M. Collins Jr. and R. W. Simmons of Chicago, Montgomery Carrott of Quincy, Ill., and Ewing Keith of Nashville, Tenn.

Harold C. Jones, 18-year-old student flyer, who was killed with Lambert when the Eaglerock training plane crashed near Black Jack, St. Louis County, six miles from Lambert Field, will be buried at Minneapolis, his home city. He had come to St. Louis July 6 from New York, enrolling as a student at the Von Hoffmann school and had a credit of 30 flying hours.

The crowd at Lambert Field, where the endurance flight is in progress, took on a subdued tone last night, probably as a result of the tragedy. The Von Hoffmann company announced that all its flying activities would cease until after Lambert's funeral and members of the Thirty-fifth Air Unit, Missouri National Guard, of which Lambert was a lieutenant, announced themselves ready for any service in connection with the funeral.

It was recalled that Lambert had been offered a place as one of the pilots of the Missouri Robin, an endurance plane which stayed up five days. He declined because of business duties, the offer coming just at the time that he left the Curtiss Flying Service to take up his new duties with the Von Hoffmann company.

Student Blamed for Crash.

Most of the pilots and experts at the field agreed in the opinion that Lambert's student "froze to the controls" of the dual-control training plane, making it impossible for Lambert to direct the ship to a dead-stick landing.

Seemingly George Lambert had a premonition that some student flyer would "freeze to the controls," inasmuch as he had equipped a plane to prevent such an occurrence while he was an instructor at Parks Air College on the East Side last winter. With this arrangement, he would sit in the front cockpit with a ring under his feet by which he would pull a pin out of the student's stick, rendering it useless, thus giving the instructor full control. The plane which crashed was not so equipped.

Maj. Lambert, one of the official observers of the St. Louis Robin's endurance flight, visited Lambert Field last on Sunday afternoon, when he went up for a brief flight with his son. At the field it was explained that the other observers could complete the report without his signature.

George Lambert, with 2000 flying hours to his credit, took a pilot's course while attending Princeton University in 1926. Returning from school in June, 1927, with his cousin and classmate, James Theodore Walker, heir to a $5,000,000 estate, his ship crashed in Pennsylvania, killing Walker. Lambert had made numerous forced landings under trying circumstances, and on one occasion taxied his plane into a group of schoolchildren in a suburb of Brooklyn.

Inquests Held.

Inquests in the two deaths were held today. At Overland, a verdict of accident was entered in the death of Lambert who died in the plane. An open verdict reciting that Jones died of skull fracture received when an airplane fell was entered in St. Louis, inasmuch as Jones died on the way to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

WRITING OF THEIR STORY ONE OF FIRST JOBS FACING FLYERS WHEN THEY LAND

ONE of the first tasks awaiting the endurance flyers after their landing will be the preparation of their narrative of the record-making flight, which is to be published in the Post-Dispatch exclusively in St. Louis.

Student Blamed for Crash.

Most of the pilots and experts at the field agreed in the opinion that Lambert's student "froze to the controls" of the dual-control training plane, making it impossible for Lambert to direct the ship to a dead-stick landing.

Seemingly George Lambert had a premonition that some student flyer would "freeze to the controls," inasmuch as he had equipped a plane to prevent such an occurrence while he was an instructor at Parks Air College on the East side last winter. With this arrangement, he would sit in the front cockpit with a ring under his feet by which he would pull a pin out of the student's stick, rendering it useless, thus giving the instructor full control. The plane which crashed was not so equipped.

Maj. Lambert, one of the official observers of the St. Louis Robin's endurance flight, visited Lambert Field last on Sunday afternoon, when he went up for a brief flight with his son. At the field it was explained that the other observers could complete the report without his signature.

George Lambert, with 2000 flying hours to his credit, took a pilot's course while attending Princeton University in 1926. Returning from school in June, 1927, with his cousin and classmate, James Theodore Walker, heir to a $5,000,000 estate, his ship crashed in Pennsylvania, killing Walker. Lambert had made numerous forced landings under trying circumstances, and on one occasion taxied his plane into a group of schoolchildren in a suburb of Brooklyn.

Inquests Held.

Inquests in the two deaths were held today. At Overland, a verdict of accident was entered in the death of Lambert who died in the plane. An open verdict reciting that Jones died of skull fracture received when an airplane fell was entered in St. Louis, inasmuch as Jones died on the way to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

J. E. HOLMAN SUES SON FOR $145,000

Demands Receiver for Paper Box Co. Until Defendant Makes Accounting.

A suit involving $50,000 worth of stock in the Holman Paper Box Co. of 311 North Third street and $95,000 or more in Liberty bonds was filed in Clayton today in behalf of John E. Holman of Chicago, against his son, John E. Holman Jr., president of the concern.

The elder Holman asks the Court for an injunction to prevent his son from disposing of or transferring any of the stock in the company; requests that a receiver be appointed to take over the company's affairs until his son has made an accounting, and charges that certain shares of stock legally his have been withheld, and that the sale of the company stock to John E. Holman Jr. in 1923 was an illegal proceeding in which $55,500 worth of Liberty bonds belonging to the company were used to buy the company "from itself."

The plaintiff also names as defendant the Mississippi Valley-Merchants-State Trust Co., trustee of the estate of John B. Holman, who died in 1923, leaving property inventoried at $55,000.

Holman left his estate to his wife in trust. After her death, by the will, one-half the estate was to go to the plaintiff, and the other half was to be held in trust for the plaintiff's son—one-half the son's share being paid to him at the age of 30 and the other half when he reached the age of 35. The younger Holman is now 29 years old, according to his father.

John E. Holman, named administrator of the estate at his mother's death in 1928, charges the trustees made a false inventory of his father's estate, and failed to report at least $70,000 in Liberty Bonds. Part of this money, he alleges, was later used by buy 611½ shares of the company for his son. Although he "had implicit faith in my mother and my son, in their handling of the company affairs," he said, he found evidence of a conspiracy, after he became administrator, to keep away from him 110 shares he owned, and to put the company entirely in control of his son.

He charges the Probate Court had no right to authorize the sale of $55,000 shares of stock at $90 to his son when the stock was worth at least $200 a share, and was paying large dividends.

John E. Holman Jr. said of his father's suit: "My father has lived in Chicago for years and is not familiar with the affairs of the company. All the sales of stock were legal. The $70,000 in Liberty Bonds was my own money, and not a part of my grandfather's estate. This will be shown in court."

The younger Holman, the plaintiff said in his suit, was reared by his grandparents, who wished to adopt him legally as their son, but his mother—John E. Holman's divorced wife—demurred.

FATHER AND SON IN SURPRISE WEDDINGS

G. B. Compton Married Yesterday and G. T. Compton Today.

The second surprise wedding in the same family within 24 hours took place today when George Tarlton Compton and Miss Leighton Cole, daughter of Mrs. John G. Cole of 4500 McPherson avenue, slipped off to St. Charles shortly after noon and were married.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Compton's father, George B. Compton, president of the Compton & Sons Lithographing & Printing Co., and Mrs. Jane Turner, part owner of the Chimney Corner Tearoom, 5079 Waterman avenue, were married at Clayton.

The wedding of George Compton and Miss Cole had been formally announced for October but was unexpectedly advanced. Mrs. Cole said the pair were accompanied to St. Charles by a few friends and relatives. They plan to leave tonight on a honeymoon. The bride was graduated from Mary Institute and Penn Hall in Pennsylvania; Compton was educated at Princeton University.

The elder Mr. Compton's wedding was witnessed by another son, Eno Compton, who accompanied his father and Mrs. Turner to the Clayton courthouse, where the license was obtained and where the ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Werremeyer.

Mr. Compton, who is 64 years old, was divorced in August, 1927, from Mrs. Christine Eno Compton, who had been his wife since 1893. She was well known here in amateur dramatic circles, having been a member of the Players' Club and, at times, of the Woodward Players.

The second Mrs. Compton, who is about 40 years old, is the widow of John B. Turner, an engineer, and the mother of two sons. She has been associated with Mrs. Susanna N. Stribling in the tearoom enterprise.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Compton went to the Compton residence, 8 Beverly place. They planned a future honeymoon trip.

BUILDING WRECKED BY BOMB, INJURED SUSPECT IS HELD

Owner of Wrecked East St. Louis Restaurant Also Arrested Pending Investigation.

Avon K. Stull, 29-year-old yeast truck driver, was seriously injured early today in the bombing of an East St. Louis restaurant. Arrested pending investigation, he refused to make a statement.

Tony Karneff of Madison, owner of the restaurant, at 1600 College avenue, was arrested later when he attempted to visit Stull, who had been taken to St. Mary's Hospital for treatment. Karneff denied knowing Stull, but, when questioned, would only shrug his shoulders. Before his appearance at the hospital, the ruins of his restaurant had been searched in the belief he might have been killed there. He sometimes slept at his place of business. The building was insured against fire for $3000.

The explosion, occurring at 3:50 o'clock, was heard over a wide radius. Walls of the one-story brick building bulged, windows were blown out and the roof caved in. Fire which followed was extinguished in half an hour. Damage to the building and contents was estimated at $3500 with about $500 damage to nearby buildings.

Hired by Someone, Police Say.

Chief of Police James Leahy ordered Stull arrested on the theory, he said, that Stull had been hired by someone to bomb the building.

Alexander Cranna, a bread-wagon driver, who has lost bread lately due to thefts, told police he saw Stull driving about without lights shortly before the bombing and trailed him. Cranna said he lost sight of Stull for a while, but came upon Stull's yeast truck parked outside the College avenue restaurant.

There was an explosion, Cranna continued, and he saw Stull stagger from a door of the restaurant. Stull got a half block away before collapsing on the lawn at the home of a city detective.

His arms were severely burned and his face was cut by glass. He was removed to a hospital. He probably will lose his eyesight, physicians said. He refused to discuss his movements and gave a fictitious home address. Later he gave what police said was his correct address, 522 North Nineteenth street.

Child Hurt in Bed.

Robert Freidenberg Jr., 3-year-old son of a grocer at 600 North Sixteenth street, across from the bombed restaurant, was cut on the right arm when a shattered window pane was blown on the bed on which he was sleeping.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Jones, 576 North Sixteenth street, two children—Robert, 3, and Mary, 5—sleeping beside a window, were cut and bruised by flying debris. The Jones home was damaged $300.

Freidenberg, the grocer, and his wife, said they saw Karneff close his restaurant at 9 o'clock last night and leave the door key with his soda fountain girl, Lorraine Basola. The latter said Karneff told her he would not be back until Saturday.

SECOND PILOT IN MINNEAPOLIS ENDURANCE FLIGHT CRASH DIES

Owen Haughland Fatally Hurt With Capt. Crichton Spent All Savings for Sixth Attempt.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 30.—Two deaths ended a sixth attempt here to set a new refueling endurance airplane flight.

Owen Haughland of Buffalo, Minn., co-pilot of the monoplane, the Minnesota, died late yesterday at a hospital, the second victim of the plane's fall early yesterday morning after a 154-hour flight. He did not regain consciousness. The other pilot, Capt. P. L. Crichton of Minneapolis, was killed instantly when the plane fell at the Wold-Chamberlain Airport.

It was Haughland's sixth attempt to fulfill his ambition to take possession of the endurance record, and a jinx ended all of them. Haughland had spent all his savings and had mortgaged most of his oil filling station property at Buffalo to equip the Minnesota, in which he fell, and the "Ace High," which was the plane used for refueling.

Both Haughland and Crichton were married. A military funeral is planned for Crichton and fellow aviators plan to pay tribute to Haughland at his funeral.

ALABAMA AVENUE BRIDGE TO BE OPENED IN 10 DAYS

Structure Over River Des Peres to Cost $88,000; Celebration Planned in Carondelet.

The bridge over the Rives Des Peres at Alabama avenue will be completed in 10 days at a cost of $88,000, President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service announced today. Carondelet residents are planning a celebration when the bridge is opened.

The bridge is a steel and concrete structure, 60 feet wide with a 40-foot roadway, and is 450 feet long including the approaches. Work, begun last Aug. 15, was delayed somewhat by high water this spring. During the construction, the old wood bridge, moved to one side, has been in use.

GIRL, 6, BADLY HURT BY AUTO

Eva Garaffo, 6 years old, 1402 North Eleventh street, is in a serious condition at the City Hospital suffering from a fractured skull and scalp wounds received when she was struck by a car driven by Joseph Brockland, 1408 North Tenth street, at 8 p. m. yesterday in front of 1325 North Eleventh street. She is a daughter of Carl Garaffo.

Brockland's account to police that the child ran in front of his machine was corroborated by witnesses. He was released under bond on a charge of felonious wounding.

In Three-Cornered Fight For the Czar's Millions

New York Public Administrator Acts on Behalf of Romanoffs—So-Called Anastasia and Soviets Also Claim Funds.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Any claims which the so-called Grand Duchess Anastasia, who some say is the youngest daughter of the murdered Czar of Russia, may lay to the reputed millions of the last of the Czars in this country will be countered by proceedings begun here by the Public Administrator on behalf of 34 acknowledged members of the Romanoff family.

Further, simultaneously with the publication of a notice signed by F. Dudley Kohler, as counsel for Administrator James F. Egan, demanding statements and accounts from all persons, banks and corporations holding any securities or assets of the late Czar Nicholas II of Russia announcement was made by Charles Recht, attorney for the Soviet Government, that any such holdings would be contended for as the property of the Soviet Government.

$4,977,722 Deposit Reported.

Kohler's action is based, he said, on an investigation that revealed a deposit of $4,977,722 in the Guaranty Trust Co. to the credit of the Minister of Finance of Russia under the Czar. This is the first direct line on any of the rumored $100,000,000 belonging to the Czar and supposed to have been invested in this country.

There is, however, another fund of $1,000,000 in the National City Bank, deposited in the name of Boris Bakhmeteff, former Ambassador of the Kerensky Government, that may be claimed and Kohler said there was good reason to believe at least $100,000,000 of the Czar's money was invested before the World War in stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and of other corporations. According to Kohler this information was given to the State Department by Former United States Ambassador David R. Francis (of St. Louis, now dead.)

This new action follows granting of letters of administration to the Public Administrator and the appointment of Kohler as administrator's counsel in 1926 in the Surrogate's Court under Surrogate O'Brien, to safeguard any Romanoff money for the acknowledged members of the Romanoff family. At the time the petition was filed in the name of Prince Serge Georgevich Romanovsky, a cousin of the Czar, who has taken refuge in Italy, but who was in America at the time of the first legal action.

Mme. Tschaikovsky Not Recognized

The other 33 members of the Romanoff family were enumerated, including the Queen Mother Marie, who resided in Copenhagen (now dead), Grand Duchesses Xenia and Olga, sisters of the Czar, three Romanoff cousins residing in Paris, the Grand Duke Cyril, pretender to the throne, and a succession of Grand Dukes and Duchesses now living in Paris, Belgrade, Athens, Naples, London, Baltimore and Germany. The name of Xenia Georgievna Romanoff Leeds, otherwise Mrs. William B. Leeds, American, is included.

But no mention is made of Mme. Tschaikovsky, as the so-called Anastasia is known, who came to this country under the protection of Mrs. Leeds. The other members of the Romanoff family have never ackrowledged her identity. Recently Mme. Tschaikovsky left the home of Mrs. Leeds at Oyster Bay and is now living with Miss Anna Burr Jennings on Park avenue. Meantime, Edward H. Fallows, acting as counsel for Mme. Tschaikovsky is in Europe collecting evidence to prove that she is indeed the daughter of the Czar and that she escaped the Red execution of the royal family in Ekaterinburg.

U. S. to Intervene if Any of Czar's Funds Are Found Here.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The American Government, to protect its claims against the former provisional Russian Government headed by Alexander Kerensky, will probably intervene legally in any effort of the soviet Government or private persons to take over investments which may have been made by the late Czar Nicholas II in this country. It was the unofficial opinion the American Government would take a hand in any attempts to obtain them if found. So far as could be learned, the American Government has no information of the existence in the United States of any investments in the name of the Czar.

The provisional Russian Government was considered by the United States to be the only successor to the Czarist regime, since the United States has not recognized the soviet Government.

During 1917, a total of some $187,000,000 was lent the provisional Government by the American Government. This obligation, through the accumulation of interest, now amounts to about $280,000,000. The attitude here is that the provisional Government inherited any acts, obligations or assets of the Czarist Government, and that any money of the Czarist Government found in the United States should be applied to the outstanding obligations of the provisional Government.

Should the funds be personal ones of the Czar, it was said, the courts would have to determine whether they could be considered as belonging to the provisional Government.

Took Too Much Sleeping Powder.

Marion Lambert, 30 years old, was taken to City Hospital suffering from an overdose of a sleeping powder yesterday afternoon. He was found in his room at the Huntington Arms Apartments, 5560 Pershing avenue. Police records show he was treated for poison July 1. He and his wife were separated recently, he said.

MURDER CHARGED IN BOAT CRASH THAT KILLED NINE

Three Operators of Zipper That Sunk the Miss Thriller at Arnolds Park, Ia., Accused.

By the Associated Press.

ARNOLDS PARK, Ia., July 30.—Warrants charging second degre murder were issued at Spirit Lake today by County Attorney P. B. Welty against John Hartman, operator of the Eagle Boat Co., his son, Milo, and Earl Yarnes, pilot of the Zipper speed boat, which collided Sunday night with the Miss Thriller, causing a loss of nine lives.

All three were involved in the operation of the Zipper. They were released on bonds of $5000 each.

Rivalry is said to have existed between the Eagle Boat Co. and operators of the Miss Thriller. Both boat lines have been stopped from further operation pending an investigation.

Welty said the charges of second-degree murder were based on evidence of criminal negligence. "The Hartmans," he said, "have threatened to 'get' the Miss Thriller and the collision between the two boats happened when the Thriller was loaded with passengers."

Yarnes, the pilot at the time of the crash, was in charge of the Zipper for the first time Sunday, Welty said.

The bodies of the nine drowned when the speedboats Thriller and Zipper collided on Lake Okoboji off here were recovered last night. Three other persons are missing.

The identified dead, all of whom were passengers on the Thriller were:

Esther Rhenstrom, 22 years old, Alta, Ia.
Melvin Keonck, 21, Everly, Ia.
Lucia Adams, 18, Everly.
Milo Nelson, 25, Lynn Grove, Ia.
Carl Christian, 21, Lynn Grove.
Floyd Cummins, 21, Wabasso, Minn.
Nell Gelino, 11, Arnolds Park.
Henry Hintz, 54, Harris, Ia.
John Stahnke, 16, Everly.

Work of rescue was made difficult since the Thriller lay in 90 feet of water a half mile off shore. The Zipper remained afloat although badly damaged. All of its passengers were rescued.

Rescue workers today were devising means of raising the Thriller. Cut in two the boat sank quickly, even before many of the 14 passengers had been able to secure life belts.

The pilots of the Thriller reported that of the passengers eleven, including the nine dead, have been accounted for. The other three might have been picked up by other rescue craft and not reported, Coroner Grimm stated. It was feared, however, they went down with the boat.

'LOST CITY' OF MAYAS FOUND BY LINDBERGH

Discovery Led to His Recent Activity in Photographing Pueblo Ruins.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA FE, N. M., July 30.—It was disclosed here yesterday that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, aided by his bride, is taking a keen interest in archeology, and has contributed to the historical scroll the discovery of an ancient Mayan "lost city" in the Yucatan jungle.

The find was made while Lindbergh was making his Pan-American "good will" tour. But the story of the Colonel's interest in air photography of such ruins is one which had to be patched together and eventually verified after a lapse of almost a year, in which he exhibited his usual disinclination to talk about himself and his personal activities.

His interest aroused by the Yucatan discovery, Lindbergh consulted Dr. J. C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution at Washington, and, on invitation, advised the institution regarding the methods of making aerial surveys in the tropics. At Dr. Merriam's suggestion, he agreed to photograph in Arizona and New Mexico localities known to contain ancient Pueblo ruins as well as unexplored regions.

It was during his stay with his bride at the archeological camp at the Pecos ruins in this state, that the photography program was initiated. He and Mrs. Lindbergh took pictures in Chaco Canyon, Pojarito Plateau and in the Rio Grande, Chama and Pecos valleys.

MRS. LAURA HOBLITZELLE'S ESTATE VALUED AT $950,000

Holdings of Stock in Commonwealth Steel Co. Worth $842,800 on Market, Inventory Shows.

An inventory of the estate of Mrs. Laura T. H. Hoblitzelle, filed at Clayton today, lists properties with a market value of about $950,000. The bulk of the estate is in common stock of the Commonwealth Steel Co. of Granite City, which is listed at its par value, $240,800. The company, incorporated for $10,000,000, recently was sold for $35,000,000 and on that basis the stock in Mrs. Hoblitzelle's estate is worth $842,800. Other property with a value of $109,869 is listed.

Mrs. Hoblitzelle, the widow of George Knapp Hoblitzelle, vice president of the steel company, died May 29. She left the bulk of her estate in trust for two daughters and a son.

DRY SENTENCE STAYED SO BABY WON'T BE BORN IN PRISON

Court Allows Woman Convicted of Bootlegging a Delay of Six Months.

LOS ANGELES, July 30.—A stay of execution will prevent Mrs. Thelma Holland, 22 years old, an expectant mother, from going to prison before her child is born.

Mrs. Holland yesterday received a sentence of one to five years on a liquor charge. She pleaded for leniency but Superior Judge Emmett H. Wilson declared he never had granted probation in similar liquor cases and would make no exception of her.

Last night, however, the Judge relented and announced he would issue a stay of execution for six months.

Her husband, Charles W. Holland, father of six children by another marriage, who with his wife and Walter P. Payne, 19, had pleaded guilty to charges of operating a still, was sentenced to Folsom prison for a term of seven years to life because of prior convictions. Payne was remanded to the Preston School of Industry until he attains his majority.

The wife declared her efforts to reform Holland were futile.

Discouraged, she said, she turned to aiding him in his bootlegging.

On Loans $100-$200-$300

The Household Finance Corporation has recently reduced its rate on loans of $100-$200-$300.

Borrow From Household at 2½% per month

For loans on which you have 20 months to repay, the cost is as follows:

Total Amount of Loan	Average Monthly Cost
$100	$1.32
$200	$2.63
$300	$3.94

Here's the plan

Loans are made to families, no outside signers required. A $100 loan is payable $5 per month plus interest. The first month, the interest charge is $2.50, but the last month it is only 13 cents. The average monthly cost is $1.32. Other amounts in proportion.

You get the entire amount—no fees or deductions. If you repay sooner than twenty months, total cost is less.

Free Budget Book

The Household Expense Record helps you plan your expenses, and fully explains the Household Loan Plan. Write for it.

F. E. COOK CHAMPIONED STUDY OF THREE R'S

Retired School Principal, Who Died Sunday, Opposed Modern Tendency.

A fundamentalist on the subject of elementary education, in that he decried the modern tendency toward an increasing diversity of study for the grammar school pupil, was Francis Edmiston Cook, champion of the three R's, who died Sunday.

For 56 years a principal of St. Louis public schools, Mr. Cook retired in 1925. His death at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Roland W. Switzer, 4388 Westminster place, was due to heart disease. He was 82 years old.

"Education formerly was centripetal, a concentration on a few fundamentals for good citizenship," said Mr. Cook in an interview published in the Post-Dispatch on his retirement. "Now we are in an age of centrifugal education—a flying off in a dozen directions.

Making Specialists of Pupils.

"In the old days, students had a perspective. If it was history, they were taught the relation of historical events. Now it is the event itself that seizes the interest of the child. So on through all modern studies. Our pupils are becoming specialists. We are in much the same predicament in which the medical profession now finds itself. You know, if you are ill now, you may have as many as half a dozen doctors. It is possible for a doctor to know all about the ear but nothing about the stomach. So it is with our children.

"No specific prescribed course of study upon broad cultural lines is laid down. We present a huge cluster of subjects for the pupils' selection and it is every man for himself."

Favored Cultural Education.

Mr. Cook clung to an early belief formed during his association with Dr. William T. Harris, famous St. Louis educator, that the chief object of education in a self-governed community should be to create citizens capable of self-government. Thus, he opined, education should be cultural and disciplinary rather than vocational.

Another pet belief was that pupils in the grades had too much home study.

"Instruction and learning," he said, "should be confined to the classroom. There is so much variation among the homes in which study is to be done. In some, home study is possible and profitable. In others, it is neither. The result is that those pupils in the better home environment advance beyond the others in the class and the whole class gets out of step."

Co-education he strongly favored, even when the issue was debatable. Nor was he alarmed at short skirts, bobbed hair or the rouge and lipstick scares.

"The fundamentals of education and human nature both are pretty much the same now as they were 50 years ago," he said. "The trouble is we are straying too far from the fundamentals of education. Those of human nature will take care of themselves."

A Stickler for Discipline.

Old-fashioned discipline he firmly believed in and used to point to the late Festus Wade, banker, as an example of his system. He had to suspend Wade several times, he said, but always re-instated him.

The last 36 years of Mr. Cook's service were spent as principal of the Crow School. Previously he had headed the Carr Lane, Douglas and Webster schools. He was graduated from Central High School in 1864, as valedictorian, and became secretary to Dr. Harris in 1868. On Mr. Cook's retirement, the Board of Education passed a resolution of appreciation which was bound in gold leaf and presented to him.

Besides his daughter, Mr. Cook is survived by a son, Robert A. Cook.

PROSPECT FOR MANCHURIAN SETTLEMENT REPORTED SLIGHT

Russia Declines to Admit It Is at Fault in Dispute With China.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 30.—Prospects for settlement of the difficulties between China and Russia seemed slimmer today. All reports of negotiations under way seemed to have proven false.

China was reported very anxious to negotiate a settlement of the dispute arising from seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway, and as confident of an agreement, if Russia "would realize its mistake in propogandizing China."

There was no indication, however, that Russia would recognize such a condition. Everything pointed to Russian disinclination to open discussions. News received here seemed rather to suggest that Russia felt its position strong and was in no wise disposed to regard itself as other than the aggrieved party.

Meanwhile the frontier was reported quiet, with the rival forces separated by a wide neutral zone.

MAIL PLANE FORCED DOWN

By the Associated Press.

NOGALES, Ariz., July 30.—The first regular scheduled air mail plane in the Mexico City-Los Angeles service left here yesterday for the South, but was forced down 50 miles south of the border by a clogged oil line. No damage was done.

Flights will be made thrice weekly. Passengers will be carried beginning next week, with an over-night stop at either Mazatlan or Culiacan.

$150,000 BUILDING WILL REPLACE OLD ANGELICA STATION

Board of Police Commissioners Prepares to Improve Dilapidated Structures in the Districts.

The Angelica Street Police Station, a North St. Louis landmark, is to be abandoned, and a new $150,000 building erected at a more central location.

Announcement of this was made today by Lon O. Hocker, president of the Board of Police Commissioners. With the new Police Headquarters Building at Twelfth street and Clark avenue completed and occupied, the board is prepared to improve the various district stations, many of which are old and dilapidated.

The Angelica Street District—which police refer to as "the woods" to distinguish it from the Carondelet District, known as "the sticks"—is at the north end of town, bounded by the north, east and west city limits. It has a population in excess of 70,000 and comprises the rapidly growing northwestern industrial and residential district as well as older sections nearer the Mississippi River.

The site of the present station, at the southwest corner of Ninth and Angelica streets, was bought in 1875. Because of the sparse population, a small building was erected at first, additions being made later. The total cost was about $14,500.

A site for a new station has been acquired for $21,000 at a point farther west. An item of $200,000 is available for building in the department's budget this year, but President Hocker thinks $150,000 will be sufficient. The new station will be a two-story structure with all modern equipment, including a target range and a large garage. Chief of Police Gerk is now visiting Detroit and other cities, getting ideas for the architects.

With the completion of this building, the boundary lines of the Angelica Street District will be straightened, which will also change the boundaries of the Page, Deer and North Market districts.

POWER TRACTOR FIRM RECEIVERSHIP UPHELD

State Supreme Court Finds Promoter's Chief Aim Was to Sell Stock.

By the Jefferson City Corerspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 30.—The appointment of a receiver by the St. Louis Circuit Court for the Power Truck & Tractor Co., of St. Louis, which has been involved in stockholders' disputes and litigation for more than six years, was sustained today by Division No. 1 of the Missouri Supreme Court.

In affirming the receivership order, the Court held the evidence clearly indicated the purpose of the promoters was to sell stock rather than to manufacture and sell motor trucks.

Approximately $600,000 in stock has been sold during the troubled career of the company, much of it to persons of limited means who purchased shares on installment payments. The company has been operating at a loss and the last dividends paid on the stock were paid out of the capital instead of the earnings, according to the evidence.

The Court held that the evidence sustained the charges made by complaining stockholders of the company, against P. G. Craven and his associates in control of the company.

Says Craven Dominated Firm.

Judge Ernest Gantt, who wrote the opinion, held that in addition to other evidence, the testimony of P. G. Craven, on cross-examination, tended to show that Craven was the dominating figure in the management of the company, that he and his brother, B. B. Craven owed the company large amounts of money, and that money collected for stock sold on the installment plan was kept by P. G. Craven unless all the installments were paid.

The Judge said testimony tended to show the company was "hopelessly insolvent," due to mismanagement.

The Power Truck & Tractor Co. was organized as a Delaware corporation with an authorized capital stock of $2,500,000, and originally had a plant in Detroit, Mich., later moving to St. Louis. Several years ago P. G. Craven, a stock salesman, obtained a contract with the directors to sell stock for the company, by which he was to receive all that was paid in excess of $80 for each share he sold, up to $110, and was to receive $25 for each of the first 20,000 trucks sold by the company. A similar contract was obtained for brother.

How Cravens Got Control.

The Cravens, according to the evidence, received a large number of shares on credit. They took proxies from many of the persons to whom stock was sold on the installment plan. Judge Gantt stated that through these proxies the Cravens electe dthemselves and Clare Action as directors of the company, although owning only a few shares of stock, and assumed open control of the company.

A group of stockholders filed suit in July, 1923, against the Cravens and other company directors, asking for the appointment of a receiver, an accounting for the money and property of the company, cancellation of the stock-selling contracts between the company and the Cravens ,and that Cravens be restrained from further stock sales. A receiver was appointed, when the case was tried in June, 1926.

All of the other Judges of Division No. 1 concurred in Judge Gantt's ruling.

DRESSES

New! Crisp! Fresh! Direct From the Maker to You When New Styles Are Most Intriguing

Not a Dress Worth Less Than $10

A MAKER, with a surplus stock of Summer silks, copied the late season's most exclusive dresses for us for this event. And, sold them to us at great concessions, because his factory would be idle if we had not placed this order! Fine details distinguish these new styles—such as sunback, circular, sleeveless, separate jackets, pleated models.

Materials Polka dots, new prints, washable crepes, print combinations.

Colors White, flesh, peach, orchid, suntan, prints, navy, red and maize.

AIR MAIL GROUP OF 15 DEPARTS FOR WASHINGTON

O. M. Atteberry Says Endurance Flight Will Be Used to Strengthen City's Arguments.

SPEAKERS WILL REHEARSE TALKS

Will Base Case on Better Flying Conditions and Importance of Territory Served.

"Despite the fact that St. Louis has been shunted off on air mail spur lines," remarked O. M. Atteberry, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce air mail committee, departing today for Washington, D. C., "a piece of news occasionally gets out about St. Louis and her air activities."

St. Louis' representatives at Thursday's hearing of the Interdepartmental Committee on Airways on direct air mail to New York, of whom the last 15 departed today, have found a ready argument in the endurance flight of the St. Louis Robin.

Weather has been ideal for the endurance pilots, it is pointed out, whereas the flight of the City of Cleveland was curtailed by the buffeting of Great Lake winds. Many of the delays which provoked the demand for an airline route arose in the disastrous flying conditions of the Great Lake region on the present zig-zag route by way of Chicago and Cleveland.

Route Chosen by Hawks.

Flying conditions would be better all along the propesed line, Charles M. Hopkins of the Oklahoma State Chamber of Commerce, which has joined the seven major cities urging a speed air mail route from New York through St. Louis into the Southwest, reported here en route to Washington. Hopkins, who gathered aeronautical data for the hearing, pointed out that Capt. Frank M. Hawks chose this route for the round trip flight whereby he established three transcontinental records.

He cited that the United States Army habitually uses the southern crossing of the Alleghenies, that selected for the proposed airline route, in preference to the northern crossing from Cleveland, which is used on the present air mail route. West of St. Louis, he said, pilots could fly at 4000 feet lower, avoiding strong winds of high altitudes, than by any other route all the way to Los Angeles.

The direct route from New York into the Southwest is advanced as an excellent eastern leg for a second transcontinental route, New York to Los Angeles. Observers believe that such routes must soon be established to care for increasing use of air mail and the consequently growing handicap of cities without adequate service in competition with cities which can handle business by air mail overnight. It is believed that the Post-office Department desires to establish only "speed" routes, and the proposed line, with an extension to Los Angeles, would be that sort.

Will Rehearse Testimony.

Former Congressman Cleveland A. Newton, who will direct the presentation of evidence at the hearing, departed today with Atteberry and others to join Hopkins and representatives of the six cities, for a rehearsal of the testimony tomorrow at the Washington Hotel.

Those leaving today included: C. S. Abell, of the Hotel Men's Association; Felix Cunter, head of the Clearing House Association; Arthur Blumeyer, president Board of Education; Henry J. Gerling, Superintendent of Instruction; Walter J. G. Neun, president of the Board of Aldermen; Charles Cunningham, of the Comptroller's office; Aldermen Stutt, Niederluecke and Hirth; Charles J. Daly, president, Real Estate Exchange; O. M. Atteberry, deputy governor, Eighth Federal Reserve Bank; B. H. Edmondson, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; C. B. Rader of the Merchants Exchange; Herman Spoerer, of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. and M. M. Drake, director of the Research Department of the Chamber of Commerce.

Col. Albert T. Perkins and Walter B. Weisenburger, president of the Chamber of Commerce, are already in Washington, while Stanley Clarke, chairman of the Air Board will probably leave Wednesday.

FORD 66 YEARS OLD TODAY

DETROIT, Mich., July 30.—Henry Ford turned 66 today. However, as far as Mr. Ford was concerned, the birthday was much like any other day in his busy life.

An inspection of property at Dearborn, including visits to the Ford farms and experimental laboratories and the Fordson automobile plant, promised to be the order of the day.

Robbed by Man With Knife.

William Claud was robber of $55 in his confectionery at 1028 Hodiamont avenue, at 7:30 p. m. yesterday by a man who threatened him with a large knife.

TO GET STRIKE SLAYING JURY OUTSIDE COUNTY

Judge Says Gaston People Would Not Give Textile Workers Fair Trial.

By the Associated Press.

GASTONIA, N. C., July 30.—In the opinion of Judge H. V. Barnhill, 16 members of the National Textile Workers' Union, accused of murder and conspiracy to murder, could not obtain a fair trial from a jury of residents of this (Gaston) County.

He expressed the opinion after the opening of a special term of Superior Court called to consider charges arising from the killing of Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt of Gastonia on June 7, during disturbances due to a strike in the Loray Mill of the Manville-Jencks Co.

The Judge announced his intention to call a jury from another county and the defense moved for a change of venue. Adjournment was taken to permit the State time to submit evidence and arguments on the claims of the defense.

Three courses today lay before Judge Barnhill, who was appointed by Gov. O. Max Gardner to conduct the special term of court. He can call a jury from another county, take the case to Mecklenburg County, the other county in this Judicial District, or take it to another Judicial District.

Some court officials expressed the belief that the Judge would not remove the case from this county due to the fact that such removal would necessitate a delay of three weeks to comply with the law requiring advertisement of court terms.

Should a jury be called from another county to sit in court here the delay would be only about 48 hours—long enough for the Sheriff to call a special venire and get it to Gastonia. It was regarded as likely that if this were done not less than 500 men would be summoned.

Amy Schechter, International Workers' Relief agent; Sophie Melvin, 19-year-old organizer for the Communist Young Pioneers of America, and Vera Buch, union organizer, no longer face efforts to convict them of a capital offense. Solicitor John G. Carpenter announced that he would seek their conviction on a charge of second-degree murder.

For Fred Erwin Beal, southern organizer of the National Textile Workers' Union; Joseph Harrison, Passaic (N. J.) union organizer; George Carter of Mizpah, N. J., and 10 others, strikers from the Loray Cotton Mills, Carpenter will seek the death penalty.

HARVEY J. READEY, COURT REPORTER 22 YEARS, DIES

Harvey J. Readey, court reporter for Circuit Judge Sale, died last night in St. Louis Mullanphy Hospital, following an operation for gallstones Thursday. He was 49 years old and lived at 5017 Vernon avenue. He had been a court reporter for 22 years, serving with Judge Sale during his previous judgeship and also with Judge Frey.

Mrs. Anna Readey, six children, one sister and three brothers survive him. The funeral will be Thursday morning, with services in St. Mark's Church and burial in Calvary Cemetery.

GRAY, BLAEHOLDER AND KIMSEY BATTED OUT BY SENATORS

By James M. Gould
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The Browns lost to the Washington Senators this afternoon in the first game of the series of four.

The score was 11 to 9.

The attendance was estimated at 1500.

The game:

FIRST INNING — BROWNS — O'Rourke struck out. McGowan drove deep to Goslin. Manush beat out a grounder to Myer. Manush stole second. Schulte struck out.

WASHINGTON—Judge bounced to Brannon. Rice walked. Goslin forced Rice, Gray to O'Rourke. Myer flied to Manush.

SECOND — BROWNS — Blue singled to center. Dondero popped to Cronin. Brannon singled to right, sending Blue to third. Blue scored on Schang's sacrifice fly to West. Gray forced Brannon, Cronin to Myer. ONE RUN.

WASHINGTON—West tripled over Schulte's head in right center. Tate singled to left scoring West. Cronin forced Tate, O'Rourke to Brannon. Hayes hit to O'Rourke who touched second, forcing Cronin and threw to Blue, doubling up Hayes. ONE RUN.

THIRD —BROWNS—O'Rourke popped to Myer. McGowan flied to Goslin. Manush fouled to Tate.

WASHINGTON—Hadley grounded to O'Rourke. Judge popped to Brannon. Rice walked for the second time. Rice stole second. Goslin walked. Myer singled through the box and the bases were filled. Rice overran third and was out, Blue to Dondero.

FOURTH — BROWNS — Schulte singled through the box. Blue doubled past first and Schulte went to third. Dondero singled to center, scoring Schulte and putting Blue on third. The fourth straight hit of the inning was a single by Brannon which scored Blue and put Dondero on third. Schang forced Brannon, Hadley to Myer. Dondero holding third. Gray hit into a double play, Hadley to Cronin to Judge. TWO RUNS.

WASHINGTON — West grounded to Blue. Tate singled to left. Cronin hit to Dondero who made a wild throw trying to force Tate at second. Tate reached third and Cronin was safe at first. Hayes flied to Schulte and Tate scored. It was a sacrifice. Brannon threw out Hadley. ONE RUN.

FIFTH—BROWNS — O'Rourke flied to Rice. McGowan walked. Manush singled to left, sending McGowan to third. With the count 3 and 1 on Schulte, Hadley was taken out and Thomas went in to pitch. Schulte walked, filling the bases. Blue also walked and McGowan was forced home with a run. Dondero singled to left, scoring Manush and Schulte and putting Blue on third. Myer threw out Brannon, Blue scoring and Dondero going to second. Schang flied to West. FOUR RUNS.

WASHINGTON—Judge walked. Rice also walked. Goslin popped a single to left, scoring Judge, Rice stopping at second. Myer doubled to left, scoring Rice and Goslin. Gray was taken out and Blaeholder is now pitching for St. Louis. West grounded to Blue, Myer going to third. Tate sent a sacrifice fly to Schulte, scoring Myer. Brannon threw out Cronin. FOUR RUNS.

SIXTH—BROWNS — Blaeholder flied to West. O'Rourke singled to right. McGowan forced O'Rourke, Thomas to Cronin. Manush grounded to Hayes.

WASHINGTON — Hayes struck out. Thomas beat out a hit to Blaeholder. Judge doubled to right, sending Thomas to third. Rice singled to right, scoring Thomas and Judge. Goslin forced Rice, Brannon to O'Rourke. Myer dropped a single to left and Goslin went to third. Myer stole second. Blaeholder tossed out West. TWO RUNS.

SEVENTH—BROWNS —Schulte walked. Blue also walked. Thomas was taken out and Braxton went in to pitch for Washington. Dondero sacrificed, Judge to Myer, who covered first. Kress batted for Brannon and walked, filling the bases. Schang walked, forcing in Schulte with the tieing run. McNeeley batted for Blaeholder and McNeeley flied to West. Blue tried to score after the catch and was doubled at the plate, West to Tate. ONE RUN.

WASHINGTON—Kress went to short, O'Rourke to second and Kimsey went into pitch for St. Louis. Dondero threw out Tate. Cronin walked. McGowan played Hayes' hit to right very badly and it went for a triple, Cronin scoring. Braxton singled to center, scoring Hayes. Judge doubled to center, putting Braxton on third. That was enough for Kimsey and Ogden was the fourth St. Louis pitcher. Rice grounded to Blue. Goslin beat out a hit to Blue. Braxton scoring and Judge going to third. Goslin stole second. Myer flied to Schulte. THREE RUNS.

EIGHTH — BROWNS—O'Rourke fouled to Tate. McGowan was safe on a fumble by Braxton. Manush hit into a double play, Myer to Judge to Cronin.

WASHINGTON—West popped to Schang in front of the plate. Kress threw out Tate. Cronin flied to McGowan.

ILLINOIS BODY NEEDS 959 SEATS FOR POLITICIANS, PREHN DECLARES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—A rebellion against the admitted practice of the Illinois State Boxing Commission in demanding choice seats for boxing shows was started today by Paddy Harmon, director of the Chicago Stadium Co.

Harmon made public complaint to the press that the commission had "grabbed" 959 of the choicest seats for the Sammy Mandell-Tony Canzoneri lightweight championship fight at the stadium Friday night and as a result many fans were either forced to buy inferior seats or go without tickets at all.

"The stadium hasn't received a cent for these tickets and the practice has become so serious to promoters in Chicago that the time has come for a showdown," Harmon said. "For this coming fight, the commission has taken 959 worth more than $8000 without paying a cent for them. What could we do but give them to the commissioners? If they didn't get them, it would be too bad for us. We have to get dates from the commission."

Harmon said he would request the commission either to return the tickets or pay for them.

Paul Prehn, chairman of the ring body, said the large number of tickets were requested "to fill the demands of politicians and friends of the commission."

MISS JACOBS IN SEMIFINAL AT SEABRIGHT

By the Associated Press.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 30.—Miss Helen Jacobs flattened her fellow Californian, Miss Marjorie Gladman, by scores of 6—0, 6—3 in the Seabright tennis tournament this afternoon. The victory sent Miss Jacobs, present holder of the Seabright Bowl for women's singles, into the semifinal round ahead of the field.

Setting the pace for the California contingent in the women's singles division, Miss Jacobs defeated Miss Anne Page of Philadelphia, 6—0, 6—2, in a second round match which was interrupted yesterday by the rain. Her next opponent will be a fellow-Californian Miss Marjorie Gladman who easily defeated Miss Carolyn Babcock of Los Angeles, 6—1, 6—3 this morning.

In another all California second round duel, Miss Edith Cross of San Francisco, third ranking American woman player, defeated Miss Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ann, Cal., 4—6, 6—3, 6—4, having dropped the first set yesterday before the thundershower came.

Almost a Western Sweep.

Mrs. L. A. Harper of San Francisco downed an Eastern opponent, Miss Virginia Rice of Boston, 6—1, 6—3, thus qualifying for a third round encounter with Miss Evelyn Parsons of Palo Alto, who reached that bracket yesterday.

With the second round completed, five of the eight woman players still in the running were from the Golden State.

Californians provided all of the early fireworks in the men's singles division as well. John Doeg of Santa Monica being forced to the limit before he could down Dick Lasch of Los Angeles, an 18-year-old product of Hollywood High School, 6—3, 8—10, 9—7. In a match halted yesterday by rain.

Two St. Louis girls were eliminated in the first round of the competition. Ruth Bailey went down to defeat, but only after a fine battle, in which she forced Miss Marjorie Gladman, California star, and one of the title favorites to three sets. The scores were 6-1, 4-6, 6-1, in favor of the far Western girl. Miss Katherine Gauss, the other Mound City entrant, was defeated by Miss Marie Fenstrer of Englewood, N. J., 6-0, 6-0.

BUSHY GRAHAM AND MANAGER SUSPENDED

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 30.—The Kentucky State Board of Athletic Control has indefinitely suspended Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., former bantamweight champion, and his manager, it was announced yesterday, because Graham refused to box Cecil Payne, Louisville, here last night. Notice of the suspension was sent to the National Boxing Board Association and the New York State Board.

A proviso was that Graham post $500 bond to fight Payne, Aug. 12. Parr telegraphed a local promoter Saturday night a cut on his eye would prevent Graham from appearing.

SCHMELING AND PARTY LEAVE TRAIN TO FINISH TRIP BY AIRPLANE

By the Associated Press.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 30.—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight boxer, with his manager, Joe Jacobs, and Max Mahon, trainer, yesterday left a westbound passenger train to fly to Los Angeles. Railroad service was delayed by washouts in Western New Mexico so Schmeling decided to complete the trip by air. He said he would be on the coast until Aug. 14 and then would return East to train for a match with Jack Sharkey.

YANKS TO TRADE BOB MEUSEL, HOYT AND THREE OTHERS IS REPORT

HUGGINS PLANS TO REBUILD HIS WORLD CHAMPION BASEBALL TEAM

By Davis J. Walsh

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 30.—As soon as the bones of this all but lifeless pennant race in the American League are decently buried, the New York Yankees, one of the great machines of the generation, will proceed to do a little grave digging on their own and the tip today is that, when they bury their dead, Bob Meusel, Waite Hoyt, Mark Koenig, John Grabowski and Ben Paschal will not be among the mourners. They will be principals at this particular funeral, it is generally understood.

Paschal may or may not land with Washington. Grabowski is headed for the underbrush somewhere. Hoyt and Meusel probably will be offered for trade with anybody who may be interested, which probably won't include more than the seven remaining clubs in the league. Koenig, they say, is to go because Huggins needs a lot of things more than he needs two shortstops and he figures that he can make a better deal for Koenig than he can for Durocher.

Somebody Has to Go.

Where they will go and when and how rests with the immediate future, the only certainty being that none of them, except Grabowski, will get out of the American League. Hoyt can't get the side out any more and, if memory serves, he hasn't won a game since June 26. However, this sterling youth is a youth, if I make myself clear, and there isn't a manager on the circuit who wouldn't take him first and ask questions afterward. He is supposed to have lost the hop on his fast ball. Meusel also should find an active market. He hasn't hit the size of his laundry bill this year but is in his very early thirties and undoubtedly will come again with another club.

The point is that when a great machine goes, somebody has to go with it and these men are natural candidates. You can't hope to pick up the carcass of forgotten triumphs and make it live again. Only the living, breathing fiber of replenished parts can do this. Most of the present Yankees would be sold or traded without a qualm.

As a matter of fact, some ambitious soul up and traded our Mr. Ruth to the White Sox the other day. That made two people wrong, the man who did the "trading" and the man who believed the story. Ruth isn't ready for the ash man yet. He probably has become a 100-game ball player but the Yankees will keep him until actual senility renders him valueless. Even as a pinch hitter, Ruth still will be a sight for granulated eyelids as far as the chumps are concerned.

Lary to Play Third Base.

The incident, however, indicated the general uncertainty in and around the ball club. There are only a comparative few who figure to be holdovers to 1930 and Ruth happens to be one of them. Gehrig, Lazzeri, Dickey and Combs are others. Lyn Lary, they say, will play third base, with Robertson being the extra infielder, provided Koenig can be traded. If Meusel and Paschal go, Sam Byrd will be a regular in the outfield and, even if they don't, Samuel still may go out there in left field and forget to come back. The young man can hit those pitchers. Durst probably will stay as extra outfielder, Wells and Pennock will hang on and they may give Zachary one more year before they send him home to his grandchildren.

Yes, this is the same club that won four straight from the Cardinals only 10 months ago. But that's one thing about time. It doesn't wait for the hangman.

Broke Records in National Meet

MRS. HELEN FILKEY WARREN (left) established a new figure in winning the 80-meter hurdles; BETTY ROBINSON (center) set new marks for the 50 and 100-yard dashes, while RENA MACDONALD establi shed a new standard in the shotput. Mrs. Warren was timed in 12, 3-5 seconds. Miss Robinson ran the 50 in 5 4-5 seconds and the 100 in 11 2-5, while Miss MacDonald tossed the weight 42 feet 4½ inches.

EDDIE ANDERSON SIGNS TO MEET CISNEROS HERE

Eddie Anderson, the Wyoming featherweight, has accepted terms for a 10-round battle with Chicho Cisneros of Mexico, on the Battery boxing card for Wednesday night, Aug. 7, according to an announcement today from Matchmaker Jack Tippett. Anderson was offered the engagement with Cisneros when Davey Abad informed the Battery matchmaker that he would be unable to train down to the stipulated weight in time for the Battery show.

Abad probably will be booked to trade punches with the winner of the Anderson - Cisneros match, Tippett stated. In the event Anderson wins over the fast-stepping Mexican scrapper, the match with Abad would afford the Panamanian a chance to avenge a defeat he sustained at Anderson's hands in a match at Milwaukee about a year ago.

My Dandy, away slowly, but rushed into lead, set fast pace, sprinted into decisive command ungreasening the stretch and, much the best, held his advantage easily thereafter. Charlie Bergin, in closest pursuit of winner, swerved in stretch, but Racket was moving up fast when he was blocked by Charlie Bergin in stretch. Golden Whiskery began slowly, Bessie Alix was done early.

$2 mutuels paid: My Dandy, win $2.42, place $2.14, show $2.10; Charlie Bergin, place $2.96, show $2.54; War Eagle, show $3.20.

FIFTH RACE—$2000, the Beauville Handicap, 3-year-olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles: Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post 4:22. At post 6 minutes. Winner b. g. 4, by Upset-Pandora Girl. Trainer, C. Cherry. Time—:24 4-5, :49 3-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:39, 1:45 1-5. Value to winner, $1400; second, $402; third, $203; fourth, $75.

HORSE.	WT.	PP.	ST.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Equivalent Odds to 1.
Dowagiac	117	3	4	1d	1d	1½	1½	F. Halbert		90

Barbara	102	2	2	4½	4h	4h	5	E. Shropshire		10.04
Longridge	102	1	1	6	Pulled up			P. Neal		13.63

Dowagiac, taken into lead at once, saved ground, making the pace under good rating and holding on resolutely under his impost and light pressure, outstayed William T. Latter, poorly ridden, took a weaving course much of the way, but closed resolutely when urged hard in stretch. Ulunia had speed from start and weakened gamely. Barbara tired. Longridge almost unseated his rider when he stumbled when in drive. Royal Julian suffered repeated interference.

$2 mutuels paid: Dowagiac, win $3.30, place $2.66, show $2.24; William T., place $5.48, show $2.96; Ulunia, show $3.70.

SIXTH RACE—$1500, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles: Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post 4:56. At post two minutes. Winner, br. c. by Tryster-Love Story. Trainer, P. Reilly. Time, :25, :49, 1:13 2-5, 1:50, 1:15, 1:39 2-5, 1:45 3-5. Value to winner, $1050; second, $281.50; third, $171; fourth, $50.

Florida Gold	107	1	1	5h	7h	5h	7h	D. Dubois		7.34
							8	E. Pool		9.27

Sultor rated in front under a good ride increased his advantage after reaching final three-eighth and outstayed Tamina. Latter moved up with a rush after first quarter and raced gamely thereafter. Brown Flash slow to get going lacked racing room when closing much ground in stretch. Marlboro lost much ground to stretch where he failed to better position, but held on well. Jack Hawksley began slowly. Florida Gold tired.

$2 Mutuels paid: Sultor, win $21.68, place $10.78, show $4.96; Tamina, place $5.66, show $3.58; Brown Flash, show $3.32.

MADISON KENNEL CLUB DOG RACES TO CLOSE AUG. 10

The Madison Kennel Club's greyhound racing meet will close for the summer on Aug. 10, it was announced by representatives of the management today.

The reason for closing was not officially stated, but a press representative of the club indicated that the track would be reopened in about seven weeks for the fall racing. The meeting has been in operation about 90 days.

The Madison Kennel Club's "Derby" is scheduled to be run Aug. 3 and the eliminations for this race will start next Thursday. This is the outstanding event of the meeting and the dogs will run over a course 7-16 of a mile long.

SCHMELING-SHARKEY BOUT TO BE HELD IN SEPTEMBER, CAREY ASSERTS

REPORT

By Melvin D. Fulcher

It would appear that E. R. Bradley is too deeply involved in the Fair Grounds racing plant at New Orleans to relinquish his control at this time, without finding a purchaser for his entire holdings. Bradley took over the Fair Grounds in 1924, when the mutuel form of betting came into vogue in Louisiana, superseding the Eddy-Frigerio-Maestri regime which then got control of Jefferson Park in another parish. Bradley spent immense sums to improve the Fair Grounds, which is one of the most historic old race courses in America. But it is common knowledge among turfmen that he is a big loser on his investment in the Crescent City. His loss is said to run high in the hundred thousands, in addition to the purchase price, which was reported to have been $200,000. The New Orleans Handicap, big feature of the meeting, after being raised from $25,000 to $50,000, was cut to its former figure.

"In these days of inefficient race riders, many of whom have become full-fledged jockeys overnight, so to speak, it would do turfites a lot of good to see Jimmy Butwell ride one of his energetic finishes." This is the opinion of an old-time horseman. Butwell began riding around 1907, but it was many years later, 1920, that he had the honor of heading the list of winning riders for the year. Butwell had one great asset as a rider which endeared him to his followers—his habit of never ceasing to ride his mount until the finish line was reached. In the words of the old horseman, "When Butwell started for the wire, he went all the way."

The Infield Paddock.

The new paddock located in the center field at Hawthorne has met with much favorable comment. The idea is a new one, originating with Joseph A. Murphy and John Schank, general manager and president, respectively, of the Chicago Business Men's Racing Association. It has the usual walking ring with 14 stalls and will do much to facilitate the saddling of horses and sending them to the post in plain view of the spectators. No one but trainers and owners of horses in each particular race will be permitted within this inclosure.

The new Bahr starting gate, which is to be used at Hawthorne was given a tryout Sunday before an audience of racing writers and other guests of the management. Eight horses were sent away by Harry Morrissey, the official starter of the meeting, and the start evoked much praise. The device moves out on the track on pneumatic wheels which run on a cement path until it reaches the track proper.

Jockey K. Russell, for whom the Goldblatt-Whitney interests paid a big price to J. L. Brannon, and who brought the lad to Fairmount last May, has arrived at Chicago and will accept mounts there. He is regarded as an especially promising apprentice rider.

Bainbridge is to have a $10,000 handicap to be run probably Aug. 7. It will be for 3-year-olds and upwards and will be at one and one-sixteenth miles. John I. Day is at Saratoga and Dick Leigh is in Chicago endeavoring to recruit some of the better class horses to start in this event.

With the large purse offerings at various tracks throughout the country it is necessary for any track desiring high-class horses to offer sizeable stakes. Devonshire is offering $20,000 and $10,000 events. Bainbridge is only following in the lead of other tracks which found this course mandatory.

RECENT RULING OF STATE BODY TO BE DEFIED, OFFICIALS SAY

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 30.—William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden Corporation, after mulling over the matter during the week-end, came out yesterday with the definite announcement that a heavyweight battle would be held next September between Max Schmeling of Germany and Jack Sharkey of Boston, "in one of four cities."

While Carey's announcement didn't specifically say so, he let it be understood that Madison Square Garden would promote the match. He practically admitted he was directly defying the New York State Athletic Commission when he said:

"Of course, we'd prefer to have the fight held here in New York City, and it will be held here if arrangements can be made that will satisfy the Boxing Commission and Humbert J. Fugazy."

Fugazy holds a contract for Schmeling's services, signed by Arthur Buelow, original manager of the German fighter. It is this contract that has kicked up all the fuss.

Carey upholds his defiance of the Boxing Commission which warned him last week that both he and his corporation courted suspension by persisting in going ahead with any Sharkey and Schmeling fight arrangements and revoked the licenses of the fighter and his American managers.

"I not only believe, but I know," said Carey, "that Madison Square Garden has a right to hold this fight outside of New York."

In case Schmeling, Fugazy and the Boxing Commission "cannot settle their differences," Carey says the other sites under consideration are Detroit, Cricago and Boston. Even Jersey City might be pressed into service, it is said.

"The rules and regulations of the commission provide definitely for cases such as this," said Secretary Bert Stand, when he was told of the announcement. "Drastic penalties are provided for either a promoter or a boxing club dealing with a suspended boxer."

Stand added that all of this had been explained to Carey by the commission several days ago when he was called in to discuss the situation with the members of the board.

Humbert J. Fugazy, the other angle of the triangular battle raging over Schmeling's services, said he had spent some time discussing the situation with Carey, but had been able to come to no settlement.

"So far as I'm concerned, I stand pat," said Fugazy. "I have no engagement with Carey. He did not make any acceptable proposition to me and in all our discussion I could get nowhere. I have not heard any more from him and I certainly did not seek a meeting with anyone on the subject."

ERNIE NEVERS SIGNS WITH CHICAGO CARDS

CHICAGO, July 30.—Ernie Nevers, former Stanford fullback, and Howard Maple, quarterback for the Oregon Aggies last year, have signed with the Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional Football League.

Nevers, now with a Coast League baseball team, formerly was with the St. Louis Browns.

Endurance Vile.

AROUND and round the birdmen go
Upon their endless beat,
While we poor mortals here below
Endure excessive heat.

As with a sympathetic eye,
They view the swelt'ring crowds,
Four thousand feet aloft they fly
Among the fleecy clouds.

Those boys must have a lot of fun
On their endurance flight;
In fact, we hear they're sleeping un-
Der blankets every night.

While we must sweat to beat the band,
But solemnly protest
That it takes a hardened guy to stand
Old Sol's endurance test.

Goodnight Shirt!

See where a man appeared behind the wheel of an automobile the other night clad in pajamas. Have the automobile men put a sleeping car on the market?

It probably has a night shift as well as a gear shift. Always something new!

"Policemen and Firemen Must Pay Their Debts."

Wonder what the old world's coming to, anyway.

Next thing they'll expect everybody to pay their debts, and if somebody doesn't invent a substitute for money there's gonna be hell to pay, as the feller says.

"Ball Bounces Off Head of Fielder for Home Run."

Headed into his own goal, as you might say.

Beaten but Not Discouraged.

ALTHOUGH the Frenchmen had their troubles
When up against the U. S. doubles,
When Henri Cochet walloped Lott
Our hopes of winning went to pot.
It was our one remaining chance
And the Davis Cup remains in France.
But while they lost, there's no denying
Our boys went down with colors flying.

However, France can make more practical use of the Davis Cup right now than we can. By the time it comes back, mabye we can celebrate its return by filling it with something more substantial than unfermented g. j.

There is internal dissension in the ranks of the Municipal Opera Co. It is said that the introduction of a few sour notes by the musical director and the stage director had a tendency to make the "Wildflower" wilder than it really should have been.

See where a watch worn by an East St. Louisan stopped three bullets and saved his life. Indicating that his time hadn't come.

The "Enchantress" will now wave her wand over the stage of the Muny Opera and see if she can bring harmony out of chaos.

POELKER LOSES IN FIRST ROUND OF JUNIOR MEET

By Davison Obear

The annual Municipal tennis championships for juniors, boys and girls, opened yesterday afternoon on the Jefferson Memorial courts in Forest Park. Thirty-six matches were played in the singles events. Of the total decided, 18 were in junior singles, 10 in girls singles and eight in boys singles.

While no upsets came, there were a number of three set encounters and several closely played two set matches. With several exceptions all of the first round contests were completed during the day.

Ward Parker, Tower Grove entrant, won from Hyman Adler, Forest, in one three set match, while Morris Gidlowitz of Forest Park surprised by defeating Carl Poelker, St. Louis Park, in another extra set battle, the score being 3-6, 6—1, 6—3.

Gustave "Junior" Boehmer, Adolph Rovin and Alfred Rothschild, seeded players, advanced without difficulty. Joyce Portnoy, another seeded player, did not get into action. Ray Wiese, O'Fallon Park star, was forced to a 6—3, 7—5 match by Lamar Ottsen of Forest Park in the second round.

In the boys singles, Vincent Walsh, Sublette Park player, advanced to the third round. He won a first round encounter from Jerome Kriegshauser, University City, 6—1, 6—1, and then defeated Kurt von Bauer, unattached, 6—1, 6—8, 6—3 in the second round.

There appears to be more interest in the girls' singles event this year. A number of girls are playing their first tournament and they have gone into the court against tournament players to gain experience. In the only three set match, Mary May Yadon of Oakland defeated Neosho Erman, another Oakland entrant. The score was 8—6, 6—8, 6—2.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Where He Belongs?

HOW are the mighty fallen! We read that Ed Lewis, who strangled, headlocked or camouflaged his way into the world mat title, and several fortunes, is to go on in a preliminary to an ordinary wrestling match. Not only is he billed in a secondary cast, but he is to be second string to Joe Stecher, from whom he "regained the championship," in St. Louis.

The hardest part of it is that Stecher's match is with a third-rater and Lewis, even his foes admit, is at least a good second-rater.

How do we reconcile Lewis' appearance in a secondary role to the man whom he defeated and who has hardly wrestled enough matches since that time to get up a good sweat?

We don't. We never attempt to reconcile anything that happens in wrestling. It's one of the very few feats that we admit as impossible. Nothing reconciles itself to anything, in the catch-as-catch-can world.

That's because the theatrical, not the sporting spirit animates those who foster it for money-making purposes only. Baseball and fighting are commercial; but there are still some phases of both that save them from the constant suspicion that lingers about the wrestling game.

Figurehead or Manager?

A NUMBER of managers in both leagues will be looking for jobs next year, and St. Louis is included in the gossip connected therewith. A manager's job in a major league club is about as certain as winning a pennant. And boy! he'd better win one to keep the other!

There is a division of thought as to managers, among men who own baseball clubs. One group contends that managers are real people who can do things with baseball players. The other holds to the view that the baseball players make the baseball club and the manager is only a sort of liaison man or perhaps a welfare officer, whose job is to keep the men in good spirits and away from bad likker.

The answer, as usual, is that the manager ought to fill both requirements.

What Makes a Manager

BUT, in order to attain the ideal, it is necessary to find a man who can fill all the following conditions:

Know enough baseball to shoulder the responsibility for ALL field orders.

Enjoy the confidence of his players to the degree that they will execute enthusiastically any order that he gives.

Hold the confidence of his club owners to the extent that they will spend any sum of money he suggests in obtaining a player.

Have the complete responsibility for assembling his players and for using or benching them, as he sees fit.

Be permitted to go through the season, win or lose, without interference from the club.

That's a large order; but there are some managers who have enjoyed such responsibility. Today John McGraw, Connie Mack and Miller Huggins are in this class, and those who believe that managers make the ball clubs point to them as examples.

It Comes Home to Us

ST. LOUIS clubs both have taken the stand that a manager is little more than a messenger boy to carry out orders from the front office. This usually means that the office force is trying to shoulder both the business and the field management of a club—and that has yet to be proved a success.

In the ancient days of baseball, a club's manager was its business agent. The greatest manager of the day was Charley Comiskey, but he was not a MANAGER. He was a CAPTAIN—a man who led his men on the field—and told Chris Von Der Ahe where to go back and sit down.

Perhaps we still need a distinction between business and playing managements in baseball teams. There probably will be little success on a club that tries to control both jobs, if history means anything.

The Cardinals got away with it, two or three years. But it will have to face some facts, next year.

The Browns have tried the policy, but haven't even come close to success.

CARL HOLST TO MEET SCHULTE ON AMATEUR PROGRAM HERE AUG. 9

Carl Holst, whose full name runs into several syllables, and who hails from the same section of Germany as Max Schmeling, will meet Leslie Schulte of the Business Men's A. C. in a heavyweight feature on the outdoor amateur fight card of the Missouri Pacific A. C. Friday night, Aug. 9.

Holst, who is under the management of the veteran Kid Bandy, has been boxing in local amateur circles for several months. In Schulte he will be meeting a fighter who has participated in only two bouts. He won both, defeating Al Bott of the East Side K. of C. and Andy McCoole, Missouri Pacific A.

TWO HANDICAP GOLF TOURNEYS ARE SCHEDULED

By W. J. McGoogan

The next amateur handicap tournament of the season under the auspices of the St. Louis District Golf Association will be held at Algonquin Country Club, Aug. 9, and the following one at St. Louis Country Club, Aug. 30. No tournament was held this month due to the St. Louis open tournament. This is the reason two are scheduled during August.

No date has been set for the next pro-amateur tournament, but it probably will be held sometime between Aug. 9 and Aug. 26, Bill Shrader, secretary of the Missouri Professional Golfers' Association, stated today.

Mertz Opposes Freels.

Harvey Mertz plays John Freels this week for the championship of the St. Clair Country Club. F. Leber won the Class A title from Kenneth Wagner, 2 up and 1 to play, while B. W. Hilgard won the Class B championship from R. Jones by the same score.

Homer Herpel, professional at the Hill Crest Country Club is preparing to hold a Bankers' tournament during August for bankers connected with financial institutions located in the south portion of the city.

Clarence Wolff has real reason to feel that he is pursued by a jinx in the St. Louis open tournament. He tied for second with Elliott Whitbread at Bellerive last week with a score of 145. He had 144 last season, which was only good enough for second place and had 145 the year previous, which also landed him runnerup place. For 108 holes of the past three Open tournaments he has been only 2 over fours but has never been able to win.

Willie Dunn, National Open champion of 1894 and runnerup the next season, arrived in St. Louis last week intent upon popularizing a patented driver. It is a club with an aluminum head with a hole in the bottom of it, which causes a whistling sound when the ball is struck correctly. When the form is wrong there is no whistle. Quite a price for a poor tee shot.

Goldmans to Play Kansas City Nine In Finals, Aug. 2

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, July 30.

THE Swearingen Post team of Kansas City will represent Western Missouri in the play-off for the State American Legion baseball title which starts Aug. 2 at St. Louis. It will be pitted against the Goldmans of St. Louis, winner of the Eastern division.

The Kansas City nine defeated the Chillicothe team, the other contender in the division, 7 to 2, in the final contest of a series.

St. Paul Golfers On Way to Meet Here Via Truck

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 30.—Four St. Paul golfers departed this morning for the National Public Links tourney at St. Louis in a Ford truck.

The four include Frank Brokl, holder of the 1929 state amateur title, runner-up for the state public links tourney, who held the public links title in 1928 and 1927; Howard Pousette, present state public links champion; Ade Normerck and A. D. Priebe.

Brokl, besides winning the state public links in 1927 and 1928, and being runner-up to his clubmate, Pousette, two weeks ago, has won many other local tourneys. He is now at the peak of his game. Last week he qualified in the state amateur with a 148, one stroke over the medalist. He was not hard pushed throughout the match play, winning with ease, shooting par figures. He won the championship last Saturday in the final of 36 holes from Harry Robinson, Minneapolis, eight up and six.

All four developed on the local city course and are hard-working young men with meager finances, hence they are making the trip by truck. The four represent the Keller Club, a county course, and it is expected they will make a real bid for the President Harding Club trophy.

They won the state club match in the meet last week, leading all others by wide margins.

STILLMAN AND POWER TO FINISH TRAINING TODAY

Frank Power and Al Stillman, St. Louis' leading middleweights, who meet tomorrow night in the feature match on the professional boxing program at the Flori-Olympian Arena, are down to the stipulated weight of 160 pounds, according to Eddie Felix, matchmaker for the Edward E. Walker American Legion Post.

Power was forced to engage in some gruelling workouts before getting down to the agreed weight. He will conclude his drilling with sparring matches with Jimmy Reed, Loung Darby and Bill Reed. Stillman has been in tip-top condition for some time.

Stillman is confident that he will stop his old rival. Al claims he will start swinging from the first gong until one of the scrappers drop. He has been working out with heavyweights, but will close his training period today with sparring matches against some little fellows. Power, though not predicting a kayo triumph, is looking forward to a point decision.

The other battlers on the card are primed for their matches. Frankie La Var, Denver featherweight, and Nick Broglio of Herrin, Ill., will tangle in the second 10-round scrap, while Tut Seymour of Biloxi, Miss., faces Young Darby, of Dallas, in the eight-round setto.

The two preliminaries will bring together "Red" Roland, South Side star and "Wop" Figuero, of the Barracks, in the lightweight go, and Dick Costello, another South Sider, and Charley Cline, former amateur puncher, in the bantamweight setto.

Jack Hughes will referee.

SECOND PONY RACE IS SCHEDULED SATURDAY

The second of a series of polo pony races, to determine the fastest local polo ponies to enter in the St. Louis Horse Show this fall, will be held Saturday afternon at the old aviation grounds in Forest Park. In the first race held a week ago last Saturday, Barney Benson of the Indian Polo Club rode the winning horse.

CENTURY BOAT CREW DEPARTS FOR NATIONAL ROWING REGATTA

NINE OARSMEN, COACH HEYNE AND COXSWAIN RUEDI MAKE TRIP EAST

Canadian Rowing Stars Entered in National Events

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., July 30.

JACK Guest of Toronto, newly crowned Canadian singles sculling champion, will head a list of Dominion oarsmen who are to compete in the United States national regatta at Springfield, Mass., Friday and Saturday of this week.

Guest, Joe Wright Jr., Johnny Durnan and E. Bole are to compete in the senior singles sculling event at Springfield and Bill Reed of Toronto and E. Whepton of Hamilton, are in other branches of single sculling competition. Whepton holds the 140-pound Canadian junior singles title.

The Toronto Argonauts and Don Rowing Club of Toronto are to send crews to compete in the senior four with coxswain and Hamilton will be represented by a 140-pound eight and St. Catharines in the senior eights.

By Damon Kerby

Leaving several highly disappointed athletes behind, an abbreviated squad of nine oarsmen, Coach Arthur G. Heyne and Coxswain Robert Ruedi of the Century Boat Club departed this morning for Springfield, Mass., to represent St. Louis in the National Rowing Regatta there Friday and Saturday.

The St. Louis crew will compete in the eight-oared senior event Saturday.

Oarsmen who are making the trip and the positions at which they will row, are: Bill Buder, bow; Harold Smith, No. 2; Ray Huber, No. 3; Armond Forster, No. 4; Jim Meyer, No. 5; John Forst, No. 6; Fred Karches, No. 7; William Duchek, stroke, and Capt. John Bokel, substitute.

It was planned to take 10 or 12 oarsmen, but unforeseen expense in connection with shipping their shell made it necessary to limit their substitutes to one in order to cut expenses. John Bokel, captain of the crew, who was displaced last week by Ray Huber, in the senior crew, was named substitute.

The crew will reach Springfield in time for a light workout Thursday, it is planned. Friday will be spent in watching the junior events and in mapping their own plan of campaign after looking over the field.

A blue print, received recently, of the course in the Connecticut River over which they will row, showed that there is a distinct bend in the course. Since receiving the blue print the boys have been practicing making the angle turn at the correct distance from the start, so the turn will not be entirely strange.

The last national rowing championship was brought here by a four-oared Century crew, of which Coach Heyne was a member, in 1919. Their time has never been surpassed in "dead water" rowing, and only once in fast water rowing.

BENTON NOW LEADS BY ONLY ONE GAME IN HARD ROAD LEAGUE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BENTON, Ill., July 30. — Benton now holds a lead of only one game over the West Frankfort and Cape Girardeau Clubs in the last half season race of the Hard Road League. The margin held last week by the champions of the first half season was cut Sunday by their loss of the last game of the double bill with the Marion club and the triumph of the runners-up over Anna and Carbondale.

Carbondale's ability to force the Cape Girardeau team to battle 10 innings, to gain the long end of a 3 to 2 count, and the feat of the Rosiclare Club in beating the Paducah Hooks, 5 to 2, stamps these clubs as dangerous contenders. Marion's triumph over Benton in the last game of the twin bill on Sunday, and the ability of the new Anna club to hold West Frankfort to a 5 to 4 score was also proof that these teams will bear watching.

The performance of pitcher Hack of the Benton club, was perhaps the outstanding occurrence of the most recent games. This hurler allowed the Marion club but four hits in the first game, which was won by Benton 4 to 1, and then came back in the second tilt and allowed but one hit during the first six innings. But the visitors got to him soundly in the seventh and batted him from the box and won the game, 8 to 5.

JACKIE PHILLIPS WINS CANADIAN WELTER TITLE

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., July 30.—The Canadian welterweight throne, declared vacant by the Dominion Boxing Federation, had been filled today with Jackie Phillips as the new ruler.

Phillips pounded his way to the title last night when he decisively defeated a fellow-townsman, "Red" Bragan, in a 10-round bout for the championship as sanctioned by the Canadian Boxing Federation. Phillips won eight of the 10 rounds and floored Bragan twice.

The title had been declared vacant when George Sidders, who won it two years ago, failed to defend it. Sidders has been campaigning in the United States.

Jacobs Defeats Johnson

In the first play-off match in Charley Peterson's mid-summer tournament yesterday, C. Jacobs, shooting for 18, defeated O. U. Johnson, shooting for 15, by 18 to 9, yesterday, at Peterson's Academy. The game went 40 innings.

Stribling Loses On Foul in Bout With Babe Hunt

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., July 30. — Babe Hunt, Ponca City, Ok., heavyweight won from W. L. (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., on a foul in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at McNulty Park here last night.

After taking a severe lacing in the fifth stanza, the latter part of which saw him in distress, Stribling rushed madly from his corner at the start of the sixth. He slapped Babe an overhand blow which landed on the back of the Oklahoman's head and dropped his foe to his haunches. Hunt arose quickly and as he bored in, Stribling hit him with a similar blow. This one also sent the Babe down and the Georgian hit him hard in foul territory as he arose.

Hunt writhed in pain as he dropped to his knees. Dave Barry of Chicago, immediately shoved Stribling to his corner and raised Hunt's hand as the crowd booed the Georgian. "Pa" Stribling questioned the decision but to no avail.

A crowd of approximately 12,000 liked the fight even though it was cut short by a foul. The fans thought Hunt looked better against Stribling than he has in any of his recent fights. On the other hand, he absorbed no little amount of punishment, especially from the jabbing left that Stribling shot to its mark repeatedly.

Newspapermen at the ringside judged the Georgian the winner of three of the five rounds. He won the first, third and fourth while Hunt took the second and fifth.

Horton Smith Suggests That Golf Clubs Throughout U. S. Promote Meets for Youngsters

By Horton Smith,

U. S. North and South, and French Professional Golf Champion).

(Copyright, 1929.)

The remarkable golf played by 9-year-old Lorene Dennis at Poplar Bluff in my native Missouri prompts me to suggest that, for the good of the game, children should be encouraged to take up golf as soon as they are physically equipped to handle miniature clubs. Of course, for some years many children have taken to golf but, considering its opportunities, comparatively few start early enough.

As an exercise only, golf would undoubtedly be of great benefit to boys and girls from the age of 5 on. Early training in stance and swing would build the physique and promote graceful carriage.

HORTON SMITH

I am sure that if one of our leading country clubs would plan—and feature—special golf classes and tournaments for children, most other organizations would soon follow suit. What a wealth of links talent would result in a few years!

Suggests Miniature Links.

Miniature links for the youngsters would naturally follow such a movement and, unless I misjudge sadly the aptitude of children and the fun of golf, it would vie with sandlot baseball as the kids' favorite sport within five years.

Of course little Miss Dennis, my fellow-Missourian, is a prodigy. Why she can shoot the nine-hole, 34 par course at Poplar Bluffs in 45! That is extraordinary shooting for a 9-year-old. If she makes but normal improvement at golf, Lorene may be America's Joyce Wethered by 1940!

If children's golf were more extensively organized, other prodigies would soon come to light but that would be but incidental to the main purposes of such a movement—the general good of golf and the development of a new field of healthy athletics for youngsters.

Some clubs have been encouraging children to play, I realize, but most of them neglect, or ignore entirely, the opportunity to have such a school and reservoir of golf talent.

Game Imposes No Strain.

Golf is one form of athletics that imposes no strain on the young and chances of injury on the links are negligible. Of course, the necessity of discipline would be a special problem wherever any large numbers of children are grouped in golf classes, but this could be solved by any well organized club.

For years, the largest and best known "kids golf schools" have been the caddy houses at all golf clubs.

It has been estimated that almost four-fifths of the great golfers since the game began started as caddies. Even before the prospective caddy is strong enough to carry a bag of clubs, his interest in the game is excited; and, as soon as he becomes a full-fledged caddy, he naturally tries to learn to use all the sticks that are used on the links. He watches all sorts of play and hears all kinds of criticism. If he has any real talent for the game at all, a year or two of caddying will bring it out.

All Should Be Taught.

But there are thousands of youngsters who do not care to be caddies, who can't qualify for those jobs, or whose parents object to such work. They are the boys I have in mind in suggesting that country clubs start a systematic movement to support golf for the young.

And the little girls, too, should be taught to play. Surely, Lorene Dennis should not be absolutely alone in her field!

In the very near future, I will put in writing some of my thoughts on how children can best be taught to play golf.

GOLFING ACES TO TRY FOR TITLE IN LONG ISLAND

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—For the army of crack golfers, professional and amateur, about New York, life these days is just one competition after another.

After a hard week at Lido, where Bill Mehlhorn won the Metropolitan open, the gang descended practically in a body on the Canadian open event, where Leo Diegel won the title for the fourth time. In the meantime the amateurs have been busy with invitation tournaments over every week-end.

And now, some of the best pros and a select but able group of amateurs will go to Salisbury next week for the annual Long Island open championship.

George Voigt won the title last year, marking the first success of an amateur in the event. Since then he has not played so well as he did but he won the highly regarded Greenwich tournament and may be on his way up again.

The Long Island open attracts some of the game's best and has marked some great struggles.

Gene Sarazen and MacDonald Smith, after slow starts in the Canadian open, were playing great golf at the close and both will bear watching over the plains of Salisbury. Smith finished 67-70 and Sarazen 70-69 at Kanawaki.

Many Champions Present.

The National Amateur Golf Championship to be played at Del Monte, Cal., in September, will have great international color. The champions of three countries will be present when the world's best amateurs tee up in easy reaching distance of the Pacific Ocean.

Cyril Tolley, always a colorful figure on a golf course, will bring the British title with him. C. Ross Somerville, the Canadian champion, played well in the Canadian open, nosing out the best pros of the dominion. Bobby Jones, of course, will defend his title. A fourth national champion in the competition will be Jack Westland, who holds the French title. In addition to the champions, other crack amateurs from England and France will try to take the cup out of the country.

Hagen Draws Crowds.

"Long Jim" Barnes shot a record-breaking score of 66 over the Kanawaki, Que., course in the first round of the Canadian Open Golf Championship, accompanied by his playing companion and two caddies. MacDonald Smith later reeled off a great 67, the feat being witnessed by two unidentified men and one woman.

Diegel's 66 was run off in the presence of a big gallery, for he was then about to win again, and Tommy Armour's 69 did not lack attention, as he was in position to challenge Diegel at every step until the last two holes.

But a gallery as large or larger than Diegel's or Armour's followed every shot as Walter Hagen went about compiling a score of 75 in the third round and 72 in the second, leaving him far out of the money.

Hagen, the great showman, was not going anywhere in the competition, but he had his followers, hundreds of them. They did not care what the score board showed.

Municipal Title Swim Meet Will Be Held Aug. 15

The Municipal Athletic Association will hold its sixteenth annual swimming meet at Marquette Pool, Osage and Minnesota, Aug. 15, at 8 p. m. The meet is open to all pools in the city and vicinity and entry blanks have been mailed to most of the pools in this district.

Ten pools competed last year and the meet was one of the most successful in the history of the association, being featured by high-class swimmers who made each event a thriller with the keenest competition prevailing in the Muny championship races.

Over 1500 persons witnessed last year's meet. The Coliseum A. C. team was the winner with Lorelei Natatorium second and Marquette Pool third. Close to 200 swimmers competed.

Pools which have not received entry blanks can obtain same by making application either in person or in writing to R. W. Tapperson, Superintendent of Recreation, room 330 Municipal Courts Building.

Perry After National Open.

Sam Perry, youthful holder of the Southern, Alabama State and Birmingham city golf titles, will try his hand in the national open this fall.

TWO JOCKEYS INJURED, HORSE DESTROYED IN SPILL AT ARLINGTON

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Jockeys Willie Fronk and Veriyn Stout were injured yesterday at Arlington Park in the worst spill of the Chicago racing season. Jockey Jimmy Smith also was thrown, but escaped injury.

The mishap occurred in the first race. Son of Volto, ridden by Fronk, stumbled and threw the jockey. Blackbird, with Veriyn Smith in the saddle, and Wood Anton, ridden by J. Smith, piled up on Son of Volto. J. Smith was thrown clear of the mixup, but Fronk and V. Smith were trampled. The injured riders were hurried to the track hospital.

Blackbird suffered a broken neck and had to be destroyed. The horse was owned by W. R. Coe.

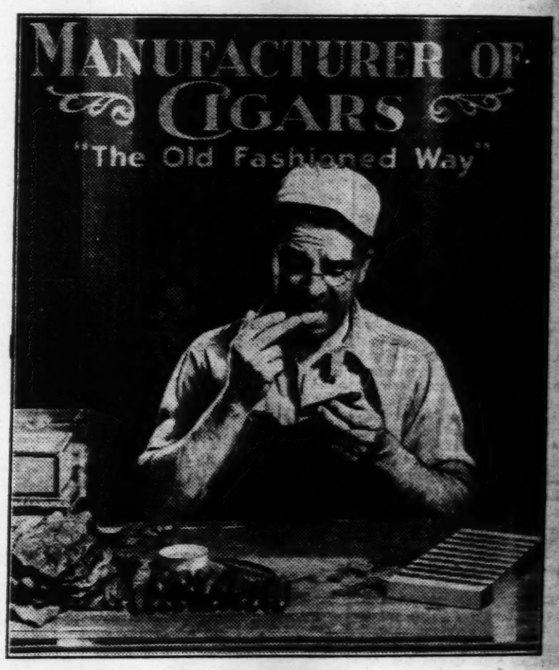
ALBANY, N. Y., July 30.—Pete Testo, 151, of Troy, won the decision over Billy Alger, Phoenix, Ariz., 150, in a 10-round bout at Rensselaer, last night.

"SPIT" is a horrid word But it's worse on the end of your cigar



Take no chances—smoke certified Cremo Cigars

Are you sure that your cigar is sanitary? Are you sure that it wasn't made in one of those filthy cigar shops which most of us have seen . . . where the man in the window rolled the leaves with dirty fingers and spit on the ends?

Why take chances when Cremo offers you the finest cigar enjoyment plus the sanitary cleanliness of certified foods?

Over $7,000,000 was spent in perfecting the Cremo Process which puts Cremo miles ahead in sanitary goodness. Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by U. S. Government approved methods. And this purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that fill, wrap and tip the cigars without the menace of spit!

Cremo leaves are the choicest, tenderest that the crop affords, all ripe and mellow. Each leaf goes through a slow, expensive maturing process that develops the fullest flavor and mildness.

There isn't a bit of scrap in Cremo . . . not a trace of floor sweepings. All long filler . . . all fresh, tender leaves . . . and topped off with the finest imported Sumatra wrapper that is absolutely free from even the tiniest worm-hole.

Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . Cremo is the kind of cigar that the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

Certified For Your Protection by

Alfred W. McCann

noted pure food expert, long active in crusades for pure foods and sanitary factories.

I certify Cremo sanitary and clean.

"Most diseases enter the body through the mouth . . . but I emphatically say that no smoker of certified Cremo ever runs this risk. Because the Cremo Process of manufacture aims to give Cremo the same standard of purity that pasteurization gives to milk."

GOVERNOR OF NEBRASKA SUMMONED TO WHITE HOUSE

...E. McKelvie's Visit Starts ...ors He Will Be Wheat ...ation on Farm Board.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Samuel McKelvie, former Governor of Nebraska, arrived here today for conference with President Hoover. He is seeking a representative on the Federal Farm Board for the wheat industry.

McKelvie was summoned to the White House in midafternoon and this led to speculation that he would be named the ninth member of the board, thus completing the personnel of that body. McKelvie declined to make any statement and none was forthcoming from the White House.

Named Butler County Surveyor.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 30.—F. Scarborough of Poplar Bluff today was apointed surveyor of Butler County by Gov. Caulfield to succeed the late E. C. Nickey of Poplar Bluff.

BLUE OVER TRIPS TO HOSPITAL, SO HE KILLS SELF THERE

Homesick Youth With Leg Infection Gives Up After Two Years of Effort to Reach Danish Home.

Harry Hansen, a homesick youth of 23, confined in hospitals most of the time since he started home two years ago, gave up his fight early today.

Three years ago, with high hope, he sailed from Copenhagen, his home. A year later, in California, he decided to return. His right leg was crushed badly as he attempted to board a truck near Venice two years ago next month.

Seven times he returned to St. Elizabeth's Hospital at Granite City or to Missouri Baptist Hospital, when the splintered bone, which had become infected, needed attention. The Danish Brotherhood helped him find work as a meat cutter. Peter Nansen, a member, gave him quarters above his butcher shop at 1205 South Jefferson avenue.

Hansen learned to swing a cleaver as he stood with his crutch. He saved for the day when he could continue home. But invariably the leg would go bad and another trip to the hospital would require his savings and take the heart from him.

Early today he called a cab at Sarah and Olive streets and directed the driver to Missouri Baptist Hospital. He paid the driver and took an automatic elevator to the surgical ward where he had been cared for after several operations.

Nurses found him there, dead from poison, the empty bottle in his pocket with a note, hastily penciled on the margin of a circular. It merely directed that they notify Fritz Magnusson, 4019 Washington avenue, who had befriended him.

Nansen and Magnusson will arrange a funeral.

CORNING (MO.) SAID TO BE IN NO DANGER FROM RIVER

Report to Chief of Army Engineers Declares Mayo Is Taking No Steps to Protect Town.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — The Chief of Army Engineers was advised today by its Kansas City office that the town of Corning, Mo., reported threatened with destruction by encroachment of the Missouri River, was in no danger.

The Mayor of Corning, the report said, is taking no steps to protect the village and does not propose to take any. Also the Burlington railroad, which runs close by, was reported apparently unworried by the progress of the stream, which is eating toward Corning at the rate of 5 to 20 feet a day.

To halt the river would cost more than the value of the farm land endangered, the Kansas City office said, adding that the electric transmission line endangered was on wooden poles and easily could be removed from the advancing stream.

NEW YORK PRISON OUTBREAKS LAID TO BAUMES LAWS

Sing Sing Warden Says Overcrowding of Buildings Has Created "Psychology of Desperation."

"SEVERE SENTENCES CAUSING UNREST"

"Reduction in Time Off Also Responsible for Discontent; Motive for Good Conduct Removed."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 30.—The Baumes laws, with their severe sentences, and changes in prison administration, are behind the recent outbreaks in New York prisons, according to Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing and John H. Kennedy, former vice chairman of the State Prison Commission.

Both agree that the "psychology of desperation" spoken of by Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, commissioner of correction, has inspired leaders of the prisoners who, working on the "abnormal sensibilities of a lot of phychopathic prisoners, have led them to violence."

"I think," Lawes said, "that the increased sentences under the Baumes laws and the reduction of time off for good behavior, have caused a feeling of hopelessness that has upset the balance of the prisoners.

"Prisoners are resentful. They lose hope and have the feeling that, with the incentive for behaving themselves taken away, there is no motive for behaving. They are like anybody else and they are swayed by mob psychology. One or two men start something and the rest follow.

Knew of Other Outbreaks.

"There is a mistaken idea that the men here are not allowed to read the newspapers, and that information is secured through a 'grapevine' system of whispering. This is not so, of course. All the men here are allowed to see newspapers and were fully aware of the outbreak at Dannemora and the affair at Auburn.

"We treat prisoners here as men while they behave as men and I shall make no rules or changes. There are few desperate prisoners here, but we have our eyes on them. I think we won't have any trouble."

Lawes denied that an armored boat for patrol duty in the Hudson in front of the prison was contemplated.

"We did ask for a boat last year," he said, "but it was denied us."

Kennedy was equally certain in his mind that the Baumes laws, with their severe sentences, were behind the prison riots.

"The Baumes laws," he said, "destroy the incentive for good behavior. You take a man in for a long time, perhaps what is for him a lifetime, he has everything to gain, nothing or very little to lose by making a desperate break for freedom.

Mob Psychology Created.

"He gets a few cronies with him and mob psychology does the rest. These men in the prisons under sentences have a fatalistic viewpoint. Their slogan is 'Oh, what's the use?' They are so utterly hopeless of ever getting out that they are willing to do anything at all. Previously they got two months off each year for good behavior and they behaved themselves in order to take advantage of this.

"I think one reason for these outbreaks can be traced to overcrowding of the prisons. Prisoners are herded together, some of them sleeping on cots in the corridors, and there is no chance to classify them and separate, for instance, the highly strung psychopathic criminals from those who would use them in such schemes. The Baumes laws are responsible for the vastly greater number of prisoners and the crowding of the prisons.

"There is a proposed prison at Attica, N. Y., which will take care of 2000 men, the contracts for which were let last month. This prison is expected to be opened by the summer of 1931, but I believe the work should be rushed to have it ready by 1930."

Prison Aid Society Head Charges Graft in Penitentiaries.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—In a letter to Gov. Roosevelt, made public here yesterday, E. E. Dudding, president of the Prisoners' Aid Society, declares the prison system of the State of New York has been going down for a year, and that the wardens must be appointed, if discipline is to be restored, and intimates that petty graft is at the bottom of the trouble. Dr. Dudding's letter follows:

"I regret to learn of the trouble at Auburn prison. I felt that after the break at Dannamora your office would take some steps to remedy the prison conditions generally in the State of New York. In 1883 Dr. George H. Sandison, editor of the Christian Herald, started a clean-up of the New York prison system and for many years the prisons were well run and free from petty graft.

"In the last year or so the whole prison system in the State has been going down and it has reached a situation where nothing but trouble will exist until some steps are taken to improve the food and sanitary conditions.

"Petty graft if everywhere, so I am told. It's pay or suffer and when you pay you still suffer. You have to pay for food, and when you pay still you don't get enough. I have been told that every conceivable form of graft exists. Coffee intended for the convicts is taken away by the guards, so I have been told, so is the meat. Cabbage is cooked with the sand and worms still on it.

Better discipline is impossible under the circumstances. The convicts have lost faith in their wardens and it will be next to impossible to restore confidence, unless new wardens are installed. This is the way it looks to me.

"Our society quit the New York work more than a year ago because we did not care to handle men coming from prison in such a frame of mind. They were so bitter against everything it seemed impossible to make a new start."

The NEW SPARTON EQUASONNE

Again Sparton Dealers invite you to a sensational radio demonstration. Once more Sparton presents something big and new . . . something which can be compared in importance with Sparton's pioneering of AC reception; with the introduction of the amazing EQUASONNE circuit that earned the universal acceptance as "Radio's Richest Voice". This year's developments bring FACE-TO-FACE REALISM.

Radio enters a new phase. In this new Sparton it takes on that magnetic "something" we call PERSONALITY. It becomes LIVING . . . VIVID. To listen is to step into the picture yourself . . . to SEE and to FEEL, as well as to listen. Face-to-face you meet your announcer . . . clearly you see the scene and action . . . thrillingly you feel the tenseness of the moment.

The new Sparton EQUASONNE is truly alive. The entertainers seem to appear before you IN PERSON. The amazing Voice of Sparton provides for expression of their individuality as warmly and vividly as their instruments or their voices. It is difficult to explain, but it is TRUE. You'll know it the moment you first hear the new Sparton.

This FACE-TO-FACE REALISM has created sensational interest among experts and critics. Now, with Sparton instruments in the hands of thousands of dealers, it is becoming the outstanding radio feature of the year. We want your opinion. We want you to judge it for yourself. Sparton dealers everywhere are holding "open house" with these new instruments on display. Visit one of them. We promise you a delightful half-hour, and a thrill that will never be forgotten.

MacDONALD, DAWES, GIBSON CONFER ON NAVAL REDUCTION

"Substantial Progress Toward Agreement," Reported Made at London Meeting.

LORD OF ADMIRALTY ALSO AT SESSION

U. S. Proposal to Get on Parity With British Strength One of Principal Issues Discussed.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.
London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, July 30.—"It is understood that substantial progress was made toward a naval agreement," reads a statement given out last night after a conference between Premier MacDonald and First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander for Great Britain and Ambassadors Charles G. Dawes and Hugh S. Gibson for the United States.

Ambassador Gibson, who first presented President Hoover's naval views at Geneva, came here Sunday night from Brussels for this meeting under orders from Secretary of State Stimson.

While it was understood that none of the four conferees would talk for publication, and while this agreement was observed, from certain work carried out in preparation for the meeting it is possible to give a general idea of the conversations.

The principles to govern the application of the naval "yardsticks" by the experts of the United States Navy Department and the British admiralty were debated. The discussion applied not only to cruisers, but to all classes of war ships, and it is probable that less stress will be laid on relative strength in cruisers and more on comparison between other classes of ships in the future than in the past.

Principle of Proposal.

It was suggested that the principles to govern the compilation of yardsticks, once approved by the two governments should be communicated to the governments of France, Italy and Japan before the naval advisors of the respective powers, produce their formulae in such a form as will enable the statesmen to communicate them to the statesmen of other nations.

What this means in plain language is that Great Britain and the United States have agreed that the tentative yardsticks at present existing must be revised in accordance with the diplomatic decisions now taken or about to be taken and that they must fit within the limits assigned by the British and United States governments before they are compared.

Informal conversations have already disclosed that there would be difficulties, perhaps insurmountable, if too much stress were laid on comparison of cruiser fleets. It was agreed in principle to get around this difficulty, that so far as British and United States cruiser strength is concerned the ultimate treaty will have to deal with limitation rather than reduction.

Britain will probably not scrap any more cruisers besides the two laid up from last year's program, the keels of which have been laid, but on which little work has yet been done.

U. S. Behind British Strength.

On the other hand a considerable increase in United States cruiser strength will have to be made on account of present British superiority, so that something approaching parity in this class will result. Negotiations to date have shown that this course is inevitable because the British hold that their cruiser strength is already at a minimum and the Americans that public opinion in the United States won't allow Great Britain's superiority in modern cruisers.

Accordingly a formula has been devised of which much more will be heard in the near future. Cruisers, the nations will be informed, are essentially police ships while battleships and submarines are essentially vessels of destruction.

As between Great Britain and the United States it may have been agreed in principle that not only limitation but reduction of battleships and submarines will be suggested. So far as discussions have gone it is clear that Great Britain will not reduce its cruiser strength, that the United States will insist upon increasing its number and that any attempt to secure ultimate reduction in naval strength as well as limitation must therefore concern itself with other classes of fighting ships.

It is, of course, realized, although not admitted that other naval powers, notably France and Italy, may object to this increase of cruiser strength at the expense

Informal conversations have already disclosed that there would be difficulties, perhaps insurmountable, if too much stress were laid on comparison of cruiser fleets. It is, of course, realized, although not admitted that other naval powers, notably France and Italy, may object to this increase of cruiser strength at the expense particularly of submarines, the essential weapon of weaker navies.

Moral Effect on Nations.

Whether these considerations as they affect the Italians and the French have yet been exhaustively examined by British and United States statesmen may be doubted; but if not, the general view is held that any agreement, in principle, on the yardstick limits between the two chief naval powers will exercise a moral effect on the British and United States nations and on the rest of the world, even if the foreign naval experts object to its technical implications.

Another implication from the conversations seems obvious. President Hoover and Premier MacDonald appear anxious to delay intervention of their respective naval experts with their technical plans for at least some weeks and as a result of Dawes' reports to Washington and MacDonald's instructions to the admiralty it may be expected that considerable changes will be made in the observations put before the respective statesmen by their technical advisers.

The British Premier and President Hoover appear eager to narrow points of difference as much as possible and where these cannot be eliminated, to devise formulae to cover up any possible conflict and to concentrate attention on those phases of naval rivalry in which dramatic cuts that will appeal to the public can be made.

Hot? It's 72 Below Zero With Byrd in Antarctic

Difference of 166 Degrees Between Little America and New York—King George Sends Thanks for Message.

By RUSSEL OWEN.
(Copyright, 1929, by the New York Times Co. and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)
This story is published exclusively in St. Louis in the Post-Dispatch. All news articles from members of the Byrd party or from special correspondents assigned to it will appear only in the Post-Dispatch in this city.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, July 29.—(By Wireless)—While New York is setting a heat record we are undergoing our coldest weather so far this winter. On Sunday the temperature got down to 72.4 below zero, and was below 70 most of the day. What that means may be better realized if it is stated in this way: There was a difference of 166 degrees in temperature between Little America and New York and a difference of more than 130 degrees between the temperature of our house and outdoors.

Seventy-two plus below zero is cold, but as it was perfectly calm it was astonishing how little discomfort one experienced outdoors. It was desperately cold the day before, with a temperature of 66 below and a 20-mile wind blowing, and is very unpleasant today at 45 with a 20-mile wind. But we still go out doors and Commander Byrd takes his usual walks. When the temperature was 66 with a high wind, however, his eyelids froze together so that he had to pry them open.

It appears now as though the average temperature for this month will be colder than when Amundsen was here despite the fact that we had one astonishingly warm day when the thermometers registered for a short time 2 degrees above zero. Amundsen's lowest temperature for the year was 74 below and it seems possible that we may find it somewhat colder than that before the winter is over.

Commander Byrd has just received a message from King George of England in answer to one sent from Little America on the occasion of the services of thanksgiving among English people recently for the recovery of the King. Englishmen have done so much excellent work in the Antarctic, so much pioneer work, and our relations with New Zealand have been so close during the expedition that it is natural that the commander and other members of the expedition should be among those feeling thankfulness for the King's recovery.

Commander Byrd's message follows: "Little America joins with the British Commonwealth of nations and all the world in thanksgiving for the recovery of your majesty."

The reply, which was received today, says: "I am commanded by His Majesty the King to thank you for your kind message on behalf of the members of your expedition. Signed, Governor-General, New Zealand."

NEW COMMISSIONERS NAMED FOR TWELFTH ST. WIDENING

Otto G. Dietz and G. W. Johnson to Act With Jacob Roth Jr. in Last Condemnation Case.

On petition of the city, Circuit Judge Landwehr today appointed two substitute commissioners in the condemnation suit for the widening of Twelfth street between Market and Spruce streets. He named Otto G. Dietz and George W. Johnson to take the places of Alex M. Lewis and John P. Shine, both of whom died recently.

The new commissioners will serve with Jacob Roth Jr. in hearing testimony as to the value of two parcels of realty belonging to Arthur A. Lancaster on Twelfth street. Commissioners originally appointed allowed Lancaster $5100 but he contends the property is worth at least $10,000 and his exceptions were sustained two years ago.

All other exceptions in the $600,000 widening project have been disposed of and Lancaster's is the only one which blocks completion of the improvement. Assistant City Counselor Francis G. Sebek, in charge of the case, said that the present commissioners should be able to dispose of it in two more meetings, after which the city can go ahead with the work.

An ordinance for the widening was passed in 1919 and commissioners were appointed following the filing of the condemnation suit. They reported five years ago but none of the widening has been undertaken except the block in front of Police Headquarters, between Spruce street and Clark avenue, which has been completed. The remainder of the work has been delayed by exceptions and lack of funds.

23 KILLED IN MINE EXPLOSION

12 Seriously Injured in Works in Silesia.

WALDENBURG, Silesia, July 30.—Twenty-three miners were killed and 12 seriously injured in an explosion last night in the Friedenhoffnung mine near Neidererhernsdorf.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING FOR AMERICAN INDIANS

Miss Margaret McKittrick Tells of Work Among Pueblos and Navajos.

Miss Margaret McKittrick, a former St. Louisan who is chairman of the New Mexico Association on Indian Affairs, was at Lambert-St. Louis Field for a quarter of an hour this noon, on the way from the summer home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. McKittrick, at Dublin, N. H., to her home at Santa Fe, N. M. She is flying from Columbus, O., to Waynoka, Ok., on the Transcontinental Air Transport line today.

She has interested herself in the Pueblo and Navajo tribes of New Mexico and Arizona. She told a reporter at the airport that these tribes were increasing in numbers. Last week, she related, she conferred with Secretary of the Interior Wilbur and Charles J. Rhoades, the new Commissioner of Indian Affairs, at Washington, and as a result has reached the conclusion that "for the first time the Indians of the Southwest are going to be considered as human beings, apart from politics."

Wilbur and Rhoades, she said, are formulating a program of general and vocational education to enable the Indians to support themselves among their own people or among the whites.

Miss McKittrick expects to lunch at her home in Santa Fe tomorrow, having left New York by rail last night. She is accompanied by Miss Dorothy N. Stewart, an illustrator, of Santa Fe.

On May 10 Miss McKittrick, whose family formerly resided in Westmoreland place, was presented at the Court of St. James's.

HUGHES ON LABOR TRIBUNAL

World Court Elects Him to Industrial Section.

By the Associated Press.

THE HAGUE, July 30.—Charles E. Hughes, former Justice of the United States Supreme Court, today was elected by the Permanent Court of International Justice, to fill a vacancy in the section for the consideration of labor cases.

Hughes became a member of the court last spring. The vacancy was caused by the death of Viscount Finlay, British member of the Court.

FINDS BERLIN TEAR GAS CACHE

BERLIN, July 30.—A workman excavating for a building in the Wilmersdorf District yesterday smashed a bottle of tear gas with his pick.

The gas drove all persons from the surrounding area. Firemen with masks removed the bottle and discovered that it was only one of 100,000 containers. It was thought to be a forgotten war stock.

Closing of Frisco Lines Approved.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—M. S. Jameson, Interstate Commerce Commission examiner, recommended to the commission today that the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad be permitted to abandon its 35-mile line between Bloomfield and Campbell and its 10-mile line between Brownwood and Aquilla, all in Southeast Missouri.

FRANCO, ATLANTIC PILOT, FIRED FROM SPANISH AIR FORCE

Penalty Imposed as Aftermath of Recent Failure to Fly From Cartagena to New York.

OFFENDED IN USING ITALIAN MACHINE

Also Delayed Trip on Basis of Weather Reports From France, Ignoring Forecasts of Countrymen.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, July 30.—Maj. Ramon Franco, Spain's premier aviator and trans-Atlantic air hero, has been dismissed from the Spanish air service for offenses considered derogatory to Spain's air prestige.

The dismissal was not the result so much of undertaking a transoceanic flight recently in defiance of purported Government opposition, as in undertaking that flight in an Italian built plane, and in accepting French weather reports rather than those obtained by a Spanish observatory.

Both phases of the aviator's recent attempt to reach New York from Alcazares Airdrome, Cartagena, which ended in a forced landing near the Azores, were distasteful to Primo de Rivera, Spanish Premier, who had counted on a flight achievement in which every entering element should be Spanish, and none foreign.

The Dictator had allowed to be constructed a huge four-motored Dornier Wal plane at Cadiz, of Spanish material, and a Spanish variation of the Dornier design. The plane, named the Numancia, was made available to Maj. Franco and his three companions, and it was supposed up to the last minute that they intended using it when they took off a month ago.

On the day prior to departure, the plane was tested, and developed some sort of motor trouble. Maj. Franco on the succeeding morning took off in another Dornier plane, which had been brought to Cartagena from Italy.

On one occasion the Spanish air service reported the weather over the Atlantic favorable for a flight to America, while on the same day a French aviator at Seville, Louis Coudouret, was informed by the meteorological service of his country, collaborating with a station on the Azores, that the weather was not propitious.

Maj. Franco was made aware of the discrepancy and postponed his flight.

Maj. Franco told the Associated Press today: "The decree removing me from the air service has been signed since July 24. It has left me available for the infantry, however. I was in that service originally."

Franco, in 1927, made a flight from Africa to Brazil.

FIJI ISLAND VILLAGE DESTROYED BY VOLCANO

No Lives Lost in Futu; Kilauea Subsiding in Eruptive Violence.

By the Associated Press.

SUVA, Fiji Islands, July 30.—The British Consul at Tonga today reported a volcanic eruption on the Island of Niwa-Fu, one of the Tonga group. The village of Futu was destroyed. No lives were lost, but the residents of the island are absolutely destitute.

By the Associated Press.

VOLCANO HOUSE, Island of Hawaii, July 30.—The eruption of Kilauea, world's largest active volcano, seemed to be subsiding after activity that began last Thursday. The huge fire pit was a sputtering pool of molten slag. It was still restless, but lacked spectacular display, the fountains of fire having ceased.

TYPHOID EPIDEMIC IN HAVANA

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, July 30.—Forty cases of typhoid fever have been reported in Havana suburban hospitals. The fever has left its mark from one end of the island to the other.

While Havana is fighting to check the fever, the town of Santa Clara is slowly emerging from a serious epidemic of typhoid lasting two weeks. Conditions there have improved and roads and railway stations, closed last week to travelers, again opened. Several cases of fever were reported at Santiago de Cuba. Lack of rains and shortage of protected water supplies were blamed for the epidemic in Southeastern Cuba.

MOST OF ENGLISH STRIKERS GET DOLE

Receive From $1.92 to $7.20 a Week for Factory Hands While Unemployed.

By the Associated Press.

MANCHESTER, England, July 30.—A half-million Lancashire textile strikers entered the second day of their self-imposed idleness today as firm as ever in their determination not to accept the 12½ per cent reduction in wages that the cotton mill owners imposed last Saturday.

Of the workers who have struck all but 150,000 are union members and are provided for by an unemployment wage or dole having an American equivalent of $1.92 a week for young girls to $4.80 a week for men in the card-rooms; of $1.64 to $6.00 for spinning operatives with 72 cents extra for every child in the family under 16, and of $3.60 to $7.20 for weavers, according to the grades of their work.

The wage reductions which the employers proposed to make would have reduced the average weekly pay to about $9.84 for men and 27 shillings ($6.48) for women.

As far as the operatives were concerned the spinners were said to be quite ready to negotiate their differences with the mill owners, the card-room workers were understood to be less disposed, and the weavers entirely opposed to acceptance of any reduction or negotiations to that end.

Three meetings of different cotton organizations today failed to bring about resumption of negotiations. A committee of the Master Cotton Spinners Federation confirmed the action of the Employers' Wage Committee, in reducing wages 12½ per cent, but stated readiness to reopen negotiations. The Spinners Amalgamation Federation discussed only domestic affairs, while the general council of the Amalgamated Weavers' Association at Bury indorsed the steps taken by their representatives.

The Weavers' Association also adopted a resolution expressing appreciation of the stand taken by the members for maintenance of the present pay scale.

A new branch of the trade was drawn into the dispute on posting of notices by the Cotton Waste Spinners and Manufacturers' Association that the present scale would end on Monday. The employers of this association seek a reduction of wages.

Czech Deputy Held in Austria.

British War Minister Asserts Terms Will Protect England's Communications With East.

By the Associated Press.

PRESTON, England, July 30.—Tom Shaw, British Minister of War, in a speech here last night said his Government intended to give Egypt independence on terms which would establish happy relations between Britain and Egypt but insure the safety of British communications with her Eastern Empire for all time.

His statement was much more definite than previous official intimations.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 30.—The newspaper Al Ahram says it has learned from officials in contact with Premier Mohammed Pasha Mahmoud that events in London are "progressing satisfactorily and that preparatory negotiations are proceeding very successfully."

The newspaper adds that a delegation of prominent people representative of Egyptian opinion probably soon will be summoned to London to examine the draft of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty which will be submitted to the British Government.

BROAD PROGRAM FOR CHILD HEALTH GETS UNDER WAY

Subcommittees to Make Preliminary Studies for White House Conference in Year or 18 Months.

HOOVER OUTLINES PLANS AT MEETING

Says Protection Depends Largely on Voluntary Work and Local Governments, So Seeks Unity.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Looking to a national scale organization in behalf of the nation's "greatest asset," its children, President Hoover has set a planning committee of experts to the task of preparing for a White House conference, probably a year or 18 months from now, on child health and protection.

The committee, comprising authorities in various fields or child welfare work, is headed by Secretary Wilbur and is equipped with a $500,000 fund subscribed from private sources and administered by Edgar Rickard of New York, to finance the preliminary work, the contemplated conference, and the program that will be evolved.

Dr. E. H. Barnard of Indianapolis is executive secretary and the membership includes Secretary Davis of the Labor Department. About 20 subcommittees will be organized, at the President's suggestion, to make preliminary studies of such problems as the growth and development of children, medical service, public health administration, and care of those mentally or physically handicapped.

President Hoover's Address.

The text of President Hoover's address yesterday to the planning committee follows:

"Through Secretary Wilbur and Secretary Davis I have invited you here as the nuclei of a planning committee to inaugurate a most important movement to the nation as a whole. That is that we should take a national stock of the progress and present situation in the health and protection of childhood; that out of this investigation we should also develop common sense plans for the further advancement in these directions.

"I have suggested that in order that these investigations and recommendations may be brought about in the most effective manner, that a number of committees should be organized to cover different phases of the subject, embracing the leadership in thought and knowledge of the subject throughout the nation; that after these investigations have been carried forward and conclusions reached by these committees, then that we should call a White House conference of public officials, associations, and others interested in

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles: that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Prohibition and the Schools.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN a recent editorial which has received some attention generally, you saw fit to deliver yourself upon the subject of prohibition education in the public schools. It is to be feared that your editorial was composed rather hurriedly.

It seems to have escaped your attention that, whether you like it or not, prohibition is not a religious or social creed exclusively. It is a part of the sovereign law of the United States. In your attack upon bringing it to the attention of our school children you are merely registering your opposition to an attempt to make our children better acquainted with the legal system of their country—the laws under which they may expect to be governed. This refusal is scarcely consistent with any serious variety of patriotism.

You forget also that for years the public schools throughout this nation were teaching their pupils concerning the evils of alcohol. Where were you then in the face of such flagrant propaganda? Or was it not that the brewers and distillers and their henchmen were rather too stupid in those days to see where all this was leading? Certainly we should not have to pay for your stupidity at this late date.

You forget also that most of your ilk seemed strangely silent when another department of the Federal Government—the War Department—set out to introduce militaristic propaganda into the public schools.

Nor were you particularly keen against propaganda in the schools when Tennessee had its long fight to keep a certain debatable theory from being crammed down the throats of its children. The fact that you probably believe in Evolution, just as I do, has really nothing to do with the matter.

Education is facing a dilemma in America which so far it has not dared to face squarely. Our Constitution recognizes free discussion as the only hope of democratic government. If that is so, let's have it and have no more of this underhanded attempt to suppress such discussion on a theme like prohibition. The Wets know only too well that to open the field for a free discussion in which the friends of prohibition could have a voice would prove very embarrassing for the alcoholic group which, by purchase or in some other fashion, has obtained control of so much of the nation's press, its theaters and the like. If the enemies of prohibition dared to give its friends a fair chance to be heard, they would stand forever discredited—and they know it.

And that is about all this shrieking against propaganda in the public schools amounts to. And I am not more than a very lukewarm believer in prohibition.

Thinks Straw Votes Have Evil Possibilities.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT has been proved by the past few general elections that a straw vote undertaken by a responsible publication, club or association and in an impartial manner is very nearly correct.

This practice is dangerous to the political welfare of our country and the practical politician will be the first to realize the enormous possibilities to be derived from it. It is generally admitted that a very large part of our population vote for the ticket or party which they believe will be victorious irrespective of the issues at stake.

At any rate, this matter should be investigated, because it will in time cause our regular elections to be looked upon as a mere matter of form which would never fit in with our scheme of self-government.

Would Revive the Bicycle.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IF the carfare goes to 10 cents, why not go to work on a bicycle? In England, France, Belgium, Holland and many or almost all foreign countries the bicycle is used by men, women and children for transportation purposes all the time.

I have ridden the bicycle for about six years to make short trips out in the country on Sundays, and for some time rode with two men who were in their seventies, and they as well as I acclaim this as one of the most delightful and beneficial forms of exercise—exercise in the open air—moving slowly enough to enjoy the surrounding scenery—yet fast enough to cover about 9 or 10 miles per hour or about 50 to 60 miles in one day comfortably.

I know of a dentist who said that if more people rode to work on bicycles, he would too. Anyone living not more than 10 miles from his work can do it easily in the same time that it takes a street car (they claim to average 10 miles an hour in the city)—there is no parking to worry about as arrangements could be made with the managers of downtown buildings to park the bicycle in the basement. There is always a small spot, protected from the rain, where a bicycle can be parked.

If the carfare goes to 10 cents, I'm going to work on a bicycle—how many more will join me? You can't beat it!

THE PRESIDENT AND THE LAW.

Public sentiment, we believe, approves the President's action in suspending construction under what is known as the Fifteen Cruiser law, but whether he has the authority to do so has been questioned. In questioning that authority Senator Hale of Maine quotes the following provision of the law:

> In the event of an international agreement which the President is requested to encourage for the further limitation of naval armament, to which the United States is signatory, the President is hereby authorized and empowered to suspend in whole or in part any of the naval construction authorized under this act.

No such agreement has been entered into. Mr. Hale makes the point that no arrangement which might be drawn up in a conference would become, within the meaning of the law, an "international agreement" "to which the United States is signatory" until ratified by the Senate. And Mr. Hale is, we imagine, correct in his surmise that the Senate will ratify no agreement that does not provide for American naval parity with Great Britain as experts construe parity.

But the moral effect of the President's order, following that of Prime Minister MacDonald, has been exhilarating. Conceding both orders to be gestures, they have taken this project of naval reduction out of the interminable area of talk into action. And inspired by this example, Japan, it will be observed, has also joined in suspension.

There is, of course, nothing irrevocable about the President's order. It can be revoked at will. Perhaps it will be revoked if the favorable public reaction should cool down in the sober consideration of the law and the facts. It goes without saying that the American people will not subscribe to a doctrine which permits even the President to ignore or violate a law, however admirable the motive or objective. Such official power were contrary to sound public policy and a departure from our traditions and tenets. But whatever the final judgment as to the legality of the President's action the reassuring truth remains that the movement for armament reduction has been vitalized by Mr. Hoover. It is an auspicious omen.

A ONE-LINE MASTERPIECE.

Cycle No. 3 of Eugene O'Neill's matrimonial adventures is already under way. Immediately following his divorce from Agnes Boulton O'Neill, the American dramatist married Carlotta Monterey, one of the many ex-wives of Ralph Barton. The happy pair, that is, Carlotta and Eugene, are reported to have taken a chateau near Tours, there to live happily ever after.

But the heroine of this piece is Agnes O'Neill who, when announcing her divorce suit, explained that she wanted to give her husband "the illusion of freedom always demanded by the artistic male." We have read "The Hairy Ape" and glanced at "Anna Christie." We have pored over "Desire Under the Elms" and conned "Strange Interlude." But we have found nothing in the great O'Neill's plays to equal that bit of philosophical cynicism. It is a masterpiece in one line by Wife No. 2 of a man who perpetrates nine-act plays.

THE SPRINKLING CART.

The protracted search necessary to find an old-fashioned sprinkling cart to lay the dust at Lambert Field calls attention to that homely vehicle's decline into obsolescence, so gradual that it had scarcely been noticed. There remains only its high-pressured descendant, which shoots out a powerful stream of water to wash the debris from city pavements by sheer force. This device, useful in its way, cannot duplicate the twin fountains which played gently from the rear of the sprinkling cart of our ancestors, and brought, for a few hours at least, cool freshness to hot and dusty streets.

Even in small towns, the municipal sprinkling cart is on the junk heap, for nearly everywhere paving has replaced hard-beaten dirt. The early sprinkling cart was a rotund cylindrical tank, usually painted red, mounted on wheels. Each summer morning, drawn by a span of mules, it proceeded slowly up and down Main Street, leaving a dark brown mud coating to replace the hot yellow dust, often inches deep. A host of small boys, overalls rolled to the knee, followed the wagon, enjoying its cool spray. The driver was the husky individual who acted as town marshal and street commissioner at other moments. By sleepy mid-afternoon, he had reached the residence section, to put down the eddying clouds which swirled to porches and penetrated the housewife's tidy domain. By this time, dust was blowing across the counters downtown again, so he filled the tank at the town well and made a return trip.

Maybe Henry Ford has a sprinkling cart in his museum of early Americana, alongside the horse-drawn depot bus, the low-necked hack and the high-wheeled rubber-tired buggy. If he hasn't, he'd better see about getting one.

CROWDED PRISONS.

Two spectacular prison riots have occurred within less than a week in New York State. Three convicts were killed at Dannemora, when they made a break for freedom, and guards at Auburn fatally wounded two in a similar mass attempt. In both instances, it is the opinion of prison authorities that overcrowded conditions were at the bottom of the trouble. Dannemora, with facilities for 1160 men, had 1500 inmates. At Auburn, 1772 prisoners were crowded into 1200 cells.

Handling prisoners in such close quarters naturally is much more difficult than if adequate space were available. These men, many of them desperate and hardened, acquire more grievances when thrown together so intimately, and have more occasion to plot uprisings. Modern penology has as its first aim the reform of the criminal, where that is at all possible, rather than making punishment or exile its principal motive. Such crowded conditions as now exist all over the country hark back to the medieval day when imprisonment meant legalized vengeance by society. Yet it is the product of a very modern condition: the increase in crime, an investigation of which is now being made by a commission appointed by President Hoover. Penalties for crime are being increased, and habitual criminal laws are sending more and more persons to prison for longer terms, without corresponding provision for their care. Liquor law offenders alone have greatly swollen prison populations.

Missouri has its prison housing problem similar to that of New York, although no outbreak has occurred to call it to public attention. A month ago a high record was set with 4042 prisoners confined at Jefferson City—in buildings designed to quarter 2500. This overflow of more than 1500 men shows how urgent the situation is. The intermediate prison, for which a $750,000 appropriation has been made, will help relieve conditions when it is constructed. The State Survey Commission now has an expert penologist considering the problem, and it is hoped a solution may be put into effect before Missouri's needs are as violently displayed as are New York's at this time.

SEWING UP BOLIVIA.

When the old Tacna-Arica question was settled as between Peru and Chile last spring, the Post-Dispatch said:

> By the terms of the Tacna-Arica settlement announced by Mr. Hoover last week, Chile retains Arica but agrees to return Tacna to Peru, besides paying Peru $6,000,000 and agreeing to build a port for her on the bay of Arica. Bolivia, strangely enough, is not mentioned in the accord, though its interest in the seacoast provinces is more vital than that of either Chile or Peru. The settlement leaves Bolivia literally high and dry, that is, without a seaport.

It now appears that a protocol has been added to the treaty by which Chile and Peru bind themselves to cede no part of the disputed territory to a third power. Since the only third power really interested in the territory is Bolivia, the protocol is evidently a conspiracy against that country on the part of Peru and Chile.

Bolivia is land-locked, its only port, Antofagasta, having been lost to Peru in the War of the Pacific, 1879-1884. While railroad lines connect Bolivia with the Pacific, these lines are at the mercy of the coastal countries. Only by sufferance may Bolivia transport its oil, tin (of which it is the second largest producer in the world) and other products to the Pacific. Bolivia's situation to the East is equally complicated. Wide areas of Brazil separate Bolivia from the Atlantic, while Bolivia's desire to seize a river outlet through Paraguay nearly led to a war last year.

Thus at all points Bolivia's imperative need for an outlet to the sea has been frustrated. Since it is essentially a West coast country, this need could be more naturally satisfied by a corridor to the Pacific, a prospect which has faded since the announcement of the Peru-Chile protocol. We are not aware of the attitude of the Bolivian government, but obviously seeds of danger lie in the situation.

A slow, backward, slumbering country is Bolivia, with the Cordillera Real, highest range in the Andes, separating its tropical eastern lowlands from the high plateau country of the West. Communication is difficult. Its lowlands, agriculturally rich, are isolated from the plateau country, where the soil yields little for man or beast. These internal handicaps are heightened by lack of egress to the sea. While Peru and Chile were busy celebrating the Tacna-Arica pact, Bolivia had nothing to cheer about. And publication of the protocol gives that country added cause for alarm.

THE LAMBERT TRAGEDY.

We extend our condolences to the family of George Lea Lambert, who was killed yesterday when a training plane in which he and Harold C. Jones, an aviation student, were flying went into a tailspin near Black Jack. George Lambert's father, Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, is a pioneer flying enthusiast and has given much of his time and money to the development of aviation in St. Louis. Lambert Field is named for him. As former owner of the field, he permitted its use as a municipal airport until recently, when he sold it to St. Louis at cost. The tragedy is peculiarly poignant, coming as it does during the magnificent flight of Jackson and O'Brine, of which Maj. Lambert has been official observer.

FOR THE CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

Many of the forms of philanthropy invite objections of one kind or another. Some of them tend to pauperize the recipients; some are for purposes of doubtful value; some result in the accumulation of huge funds after the needs for which they were created have passed. None of these criticisms, nor any other that we can think of, can possibly be applied to the work that is being done for crippled children by the Eugene Field Foundation.

Judge Nortoni, president of the foundation, told the members at their recent annual meeting in Columbia that 85 per cent of crippled children could be cured by proper treatment in childhood. He estimated the average cost of such a cure at $330. Without disparagement of any charitable endeavor, it may be doubted whether an equal amount of money invested in any other way would produce a greater or more satisfying return.

The efforts of the Eugene Field Society call to mind the handsome benefactions of Senator Couzens on behalf of the children of Michigan. It is gratifying to note that a Missouri organization, under the patronage of the Governor and other persons of influence, is engaged in a similar enterprise in this State. There would be cause for rejoicing, indeed, if the example set by the Michigan Senator with his recent $10,000,000 gift should prove contagious.

What the Municipal Opera really needs is a noiseless, non-rolling pop bottle.

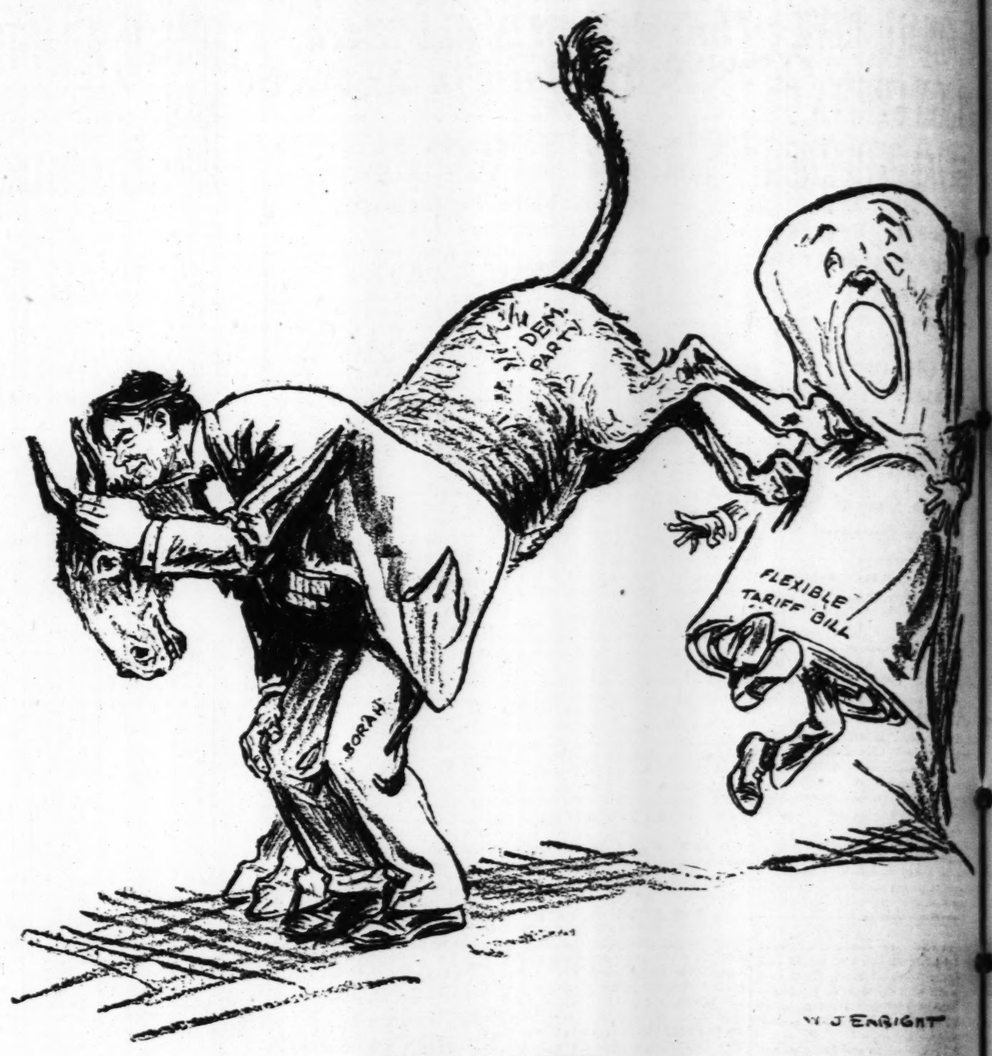
AMMUNITION FOR MR. BORAH.

How much longer is the United States going to maintain the fiction of a nonexistent government in Russia? Mr. Hoover, who inherited the antirecognition policy from his predecessor, has given no public indication that he intends to bring about a change, but the logic of events is heading the United States in that direction.

Business men, whose point of view in international affairs is often more realistic than that of governments, long since decided to ignore the official barrier separating this country from the Soviet Union. A party of them is over there now, openly negotiating for trade concessions. Commerce with Russia grows steadily.

In seeking to prevent war between China and Russia our Government has been compelled to take its head out of the sand. The Post-Dispatch agrees with Senator Thomas of Oklahoma that while the peace negotiations thus far do not constitute an official reversal of the Coolidge-Kellogg position, such activity nevertheless "cannot be construed as other than a recognition that there exists a Russian de facto government."

It is greatly to be hoped that Senator Borah, the leading exponent of Russian recognition in this country, will continue, from his vantage post as chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, to wage his fight. Recent events have supplied him with plenty of new ammunition.



FRIENDLY ENEMIES.

Mr. Hoover and "Blue Sunday"

Two visits of Lord's Day Alliance members to White House asking President to close up Washington for one day a week indicates reward the preachers want for entering partisan politics; how Jefferson and Lincoln might have answered; clearly a religious matter in which Government has no right to interfere.

From Advance, Official Organ of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

THE preachers recently gave a rather dull newspaper Washington a chance to write a front page story. A group of ministers, led by the fighting political Bishop Cannon, went to see the President as representatives of an association called the Lord's Day Alliance. The clergymen asked his support to compel those who dwell in the capital of the nation to observe the day, known as Sunday on the calendar, in the manner which the Lord's Day Alliance wished it observed.

The burden of their argument was that the capital should give a "good example" to the nation in "Sabbath observance." That is, that the movies should shut up as well as other forms of what is called by the Alliancers "worldly amusement." The President heard the spokesmen, who had supported him in the national election, but gave no visible sign as to what his position would be regarding their requests.

But the preachers were not to be denied, and the next day representatives of the Alliancers appeared at the White House again, asking Hoover's secretary if the President was ready to give them a written answer. They were told that Hoover would make no statement at this time but might at some future date.

This incident did not surprise the correspondents. They have been waiting some time for the preachers to demand their reward for having entered the game of partisan politics. They did not expect, however, that it would take just this kind of slant. If there were a man of the type of Jefferson or Lincoln in the White House, there is not much doubt that the answer would have been given at once and not put off to some future day—giving the President a chance to consult not his legal but his political advisers. Of course, his legal advisers must tell him that the tenets of no particular religious belief can be taken into consideration in the government of the city of Washington. With his political advisers it is quite a different matter.

If Jefferson had been approached with such a request, he would have undoubtedly made a sizzling reply and quoted his utterances on religious tolerance. He would have told the ministers that they, the Alliancers, had a perfect right to observe Sunday as they saw fit and that their fellow citizens had the right to observe it as they also saw fit, whether or not it had the approbation of the Alliancers. There would have been no excuse for a second visit. The delegation would have been told that the Chief Executive of this nation had no right under the Constitution to take a particular reading of a particular commandment in the Bible as the basis for championing any law which should govern the actions of any citizen.

Had Lincoln been approached, he would undoubtedly have taken a humorous and rather a quizzical attitude but at the same time a very definite one. There would also have been no necessity for a second visit. Lincoln would probably have referred to the statement of the Carpenter of Nazareth regarding the Sabbath being made for man and not man for the Sabbath. He might have talked to them about the great difference of opinions existing among the religious cults regarding the meaning of certain Scriptural injunctions and showed them what a mess the Government would get in if it began to conduct its affairs on the basis of certain Biblical injunctions, which were read in one way by certain religious groups and in a different way by others.

As for Hoover, he could have pointed out that any one with an eye to see knew that the majority of the people of this country did not share in the views of what is known as "strict Sabbath observance" expressed by the Alliancers. That it was no business of the Government as to what the people did on the Sabbath as long as they obeyed the laws on that day in the same manner as they did the other six days. He could have gone further than this and rebuked the delegation for trying to involve him, the President of the whole people, in a matter which was strictly one in which the Government had no right to interfere in the slightest degree. He may do so yet, but it is a pity that he did not do it at once.

Treason

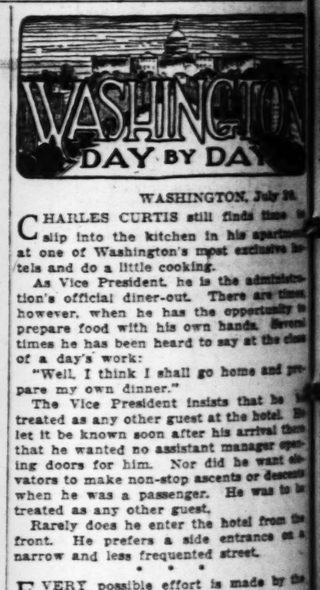
From the New York Evening Sun.

THE St. Louis Post-Dispatch has cleared up a mystery which puzzled seismologists and others. That strange, quivering sensation which rolled up from a southwesterly direction in June was not an earthquake. It was just the Ozarks taking a fall out of the editor of the Post-Dispatch. Commenting editorially that newspaper says:

> In an editorial entitled "Mussolini and the Ozarks," published June 3, we referred to the poverty and unproductiveness of the Ozarks and suggested that if Mussolini's farm policy were applied to that region it would fructify even as the valley of the Nile. Mussolini's policy is to yank lazy farmers from their land and replace them with men who will work.

The point was made in jest; nevertheless, we have been flooded with letters from all parts of the Ozarks taking us to task.

Living as close to the Ozarks as that journal does, it is somewhat surprising the Post-Dispatch did not remember that an Ozarker's dawg, even if he be a hound, is not to be kicked around, much less an Ozarker's human pride. To hint that any American farmer, from the Ozarks or elsewhere, is not a personification of thrift, energy, intelligence and resourcefulness, peer of any potentate in any other part of the world, is to commit treason against sovereign citizens. Our neighbor of St. Louis has been properly punished for its levity and temerity.



WASHINGTON, July 30.

CHARLES CURTIS still finds time to slip into the kitchen in his apartment at one of Washington's most exclusive hotels and do a little cooking.

As Vice President, he is the administration's official diner-out. There are times, however, when he has the opportunity to prepare food with his own hands. Several times he has been heard to say at the close of a day's work:

"Well, I think I shall go home and prepare my own dinner."

The Vice President insists that he be treated as any other guest at the hotel. He let it be known soon after his arrival there that he wanted no assistant manager opening doors for him. Nor did he want elevators to make non-stop ascents or descents when he was a passenger. He was to be treated as any other guest.

Rarely does he enter the hotel from the front. He prefers a side entrance on a narrow and less frequented street.

EVERY possible effort is made by the management to keep the hotel absolutely free from a mercantile atmosphere. A guest was summarily requested to leave recently because he advertised in a local paper that persons interested in securing positions as salesmen for a well known concern should call at his room in the hotel. It is an inviolable rule that no business of this nature shall be transacted within the hotel's walls.

After months of dogged fighting the street car company has been forced to remove its stop platform from in front of the hotel. It was the management's contention that none of its guests rode street cars, and that the platform served no other purpose than to congest traffic.

THE Vice President lives with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, on the tenth floor of the hotel. They have a suite of 10 rooms.

During the recent merry war involving Mrs. Gann's social status her husband kept in the background.

But in one of the rooms of the vice presidential suite a picture of Mr. Gann rests on a table. Before it is a slender vase containing a single fresh flower.

Mrs. Gann personally sees that a fresh flower is put there every day.

Her fondness for flowers is known to everyone in Washington. Frequently she finds time to return to her garden in their old home in Cleveland Park and spend an hour or so.

Recently photographers got wind of these visits, followed her there and leveled their battery of cameras at her.

THOUGH Captain Yancey's volume here noted is designed for use as a text-book and reference work for navigation students and aircraft pilots, its imaginative appeal to almost any fairly studious layman should surpass that of its distinguished author's recent trans-Atlantic flight in the "Pathfinder." It would seem that such a book ought to be hopelessly dull for anyone who has no professional interest in the subject; and upon first glancing through it idly, it may look dull enough to revive that old school-bookish feeling, the acute form of which some of us used to relieve by "playing hookey."

But once you have worked through the initial chapters on "Bearing and Direction" and "The Terrestrial Sphere," parts of which may be unpleasantly reminiscent of half forgotten geography lessons, then the plot begins to thicken. A distinct note of wonder creeps into the straightforward, matter-of-fact text, and as you proceed—granting that you are about the average layman — the wonder grows. You begin to realize early in the chapter on "Charts and Maps" that aviation is destined to revolutionize the popular conception of the earth's surface. From childhood up we have accepted the statement that the earth is round, but only those with knowledge of the principles of navigation can have known the real significance of the glib statement. We have been saying that the earth is round, but in thinking of distances on the surface of the planet we have actually been regarding it as a cylinder.

What is happening as a result of the development of air travel amounts to no less than a popular discovery of the fact that the earth is round in all directions, and that it is not, in some vague, lazy-minded sense, cylindrical. Even among ocean navigators it was long after the first circumnavigation of the globe that the idea of the earth's sphericity was fully understood. It is told how a shrewd old sea captain, sailing between New Zealand and England, first applied the conception of sphericity in one of his voyages, and as a result reached his destination more than a month earlier than his rivals, who shaped their course by the old conception. He had greatly puzzled his crew by sailing in a southerly direction from his point of departure, his purpose being to make all his westing in a high latitude where the degrees of longitude were a great deal shorter. Then, having reached the proper meridian, he had struck northward directly toward his destination. Though appearing to go far out of his way, he had shortened his course by more than a month's sailing.

Capt. Yancey explains the principle in his discussion of "great circle tracks" and "rumb tracks." The accompanying diagram shows the shortest distance by air between two points on the earth's surface, lying in approximately the same latitude and separated by about 150 degrees of longitude. The "rumb track" is that which appears shorter on a map and would be so if the earth were cylindrical. The "great circle track," curving northward about 30 degrees, is far shorter since the earth is round in every direction.

The chapters on compasses, compass errors and compass compensation will prove a revelation to most readers. No doubt almost any average reader of aviation news assumes that, thanks to the compass, the steering of a course is no very perplexing matter. But it appears here that even the installing of the compass in a plane involves some fine calculations, owing to the magnetism generated in the plane during the process of manufacture, this varying even with the direction in which the plane was pointed while being built. And after the compass is properly placed and compensated by an arrangement of magnets, the author explains why it is possible for a ship flying blind to be moving in a spiral, steadily tightening toward a spin, while the pilot believes himself to be maintaining a forward motion on an even keel.

Those who have marveled at the uncanny "air sense" of Lindbergh in striking the coast of Ireland almost exactly at a predetermined point will get a better notion of the feat by studying the truly fascinating chapter on the earth induction compass.

The chapters on weather are almost as gripping as those on navigation. In addition to matter here suggested, there is a great deal of information that will interest few except those who are in the flying profession or who plan to enter it.

WORLD SCOUT JAMBOREE WILL OPEN TOMORROW

50,000 Boys in Camp Near Liverpool, Including 300 From United States.

By the Associated Press.

ARROWE PARK, England, July 30.—Four hundred and fifty acres of boys, their enthusiasm undampened by rainy skies, are waiting the opening here tomorrow of the boy scouts' world jamboree. Fifty thousand scouts from 42 nations, including 1300 American boys, are camped at Arrowe Park just across the Mersey River from Liverpool.

Most of the Americans received their baptism of English wet weather when they arrived late Sunday and yesterday.

The camp has an international bank where the scouts can cash checks of all nations and change American dimes or Russian rubles into English small change.

The great camp will be formally opened tomorrow afternoon by the Duke of Connaught whose speech will be followed by an address by Sir Robert Baden-Powell, 72-year-old founder of the scout movement. Thursday the Prince of Wales will visit the camp. He will stay overnight and on Friday will be the central figure of a grand rally of scouts of all nations. The jamboree ends Aug. 13.

She says: "The 'studio skin' a star must have demands a soap that leaves the skin as smooth as a rose petal—and Lux Toilet Soap does."

9 out of 10 screen stars guard their skin this way . .

GWEN LEE, attractive Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, says: "Smooth as dew-washed lotus blossoms—that's how my skin feels after using Lux Toilet Soap. It's as delightful as the finest French soaps!"

"BEAUTIFUL SKIN is the most potent charm a girl can have," says Raoul Walsh, famous director for Fox Films—and sums up the experience of leading Hollywood directors.

"A beautiful skin which even the cruel glare of the close-up proclaims the real thing—that's an absolute essential for stardom," he continues.

This is why 9 out of 10 screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap. Of the 451 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 442 keep their skin exquisitely smooth with this delightful soap.

And all the great film studios have made this white, fragrant soap the official soap in their dressing rooms. You, too, will be delighted with Lux Toilet Soap.

Hollywood Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

HOLLYWOOD, July 30.

HOLLYWOOD'S "town pump" is a barn-like cafe called Henry's and reputed backed by Charlie Chaplin. Its prices are about the same as the Child's chain and it is the evening forum where studio folk discuss trials, tribulations and triumphs of the day.

Chaplin usually drifts in as to Sid Grauman, famous directors, a few stars, leads and the big army of extras. This, of course, brings the visiting hill-billies and the forlorn who had no answer to their knocks at the movie gates.

Waitress help things along by sidling up to your chair to whisper: "That is Ronald Colman in the corner." The waiter captains, too, have a sense of theatrical values. When a big shot comes in, they flutter around and lead him to the rear so everybody may indulge in a little neck twisting.

Outside there is always a curious group in a half circle and also the dummy newsboy who has perhaps the widest acquaintance among cinema people of anyone in Hollywood. His autograph book contains all the celebrities from John Bunny on.

Now and then stark merriment will be offered diners by ambitious amateur clowns who will essay trick walks, funny falls and a little pie throwing in hope of being singled out for fame. Types also make themselves more pronounced by dress, cosmetics and other hoop-de-doo.

There is an easy familiarity about Henry's. Strangers approach the celebrities for a handshake or to pass a compliment and it strikes me the screen people unbend a little more gracefully than brothers and sisters of the stage. They welcome the trade lasts.

About the dining room also will be seen those adoring mothers from the cross roads who have mortgaged the homestead to bring their ducklings here for their chance. They, too, are dolled up like a circus parade gone wrong. And waiting.

DOWNTOWN Los Angeles has The Brown Derby Restaurant, which to me offers the absolute zero in advertising appeal with its glaring "Eat in The Hat." Now Wilson Mizner has sponsored another Brown Derby in Hollywood. It is not, however, cast in the shape of a brown derby as is its namesake. It is also a loafing place for the Broadway crew of wise crackers gone gag-gag.

THE Montmartre Cafe on Hollywood boulevard, however, offers the piece de resistance in the movie celebrity exhibit at its Wednesday luncheon. They all turn out for this weekly show-off. Here one is likely to see the niftiest in Hollywood fashions and hear the latest whispered gossip. On Friday night at Montmartre the movie folk are asked by the announcer to stand up, look silly and take a bow and this brings out quite a gathering.

WE hope a little crowing is pardonable, but one of the biggest figures in the production of talking pictures is a former New York man known to every member of Park Row's estate 20 years ago as Winnie Sheehan. He is now W. R. Sheehan, a big boss of the Fox Films. Goody, goody for our side.

THIS is a great spot for the celebrity indorsers. Many of the sprightly shops along the boulevard have a window photograph of a cinema personage with inscriptions such as "Your hats are marvelous" or "I love your potato salad" and the like. And peculiarly enough shopkeepers say such apple sauce booms business.

EDDIE DOWLING, from Broadway, almost forced the dazzling sun to hide this week, when he appeared on the boulevards in white shoes and trousers, dove gray coat with sawed-off vest, a rose-colored shirt with collar ends to the waist, a speckled big knotted four-in-hand, a side dip hat with a flaming band and a russet-toned cane. He was every whit as colorful as a movie star's modern bathroom.

I WANTED to match him color for color, but he only flicked his cane superciliously and tried to change the subject. He knew darn well I had him.

'ENCHANTRESS' SUNG BY MUNICIPAL CAST

Victor Herbert's Operetta Heard for First Time on Forest Park Stage.

THE ENCHANTRESS, an operetta in two acts by Victor Herbert. Book by Fred de Gresac and Harry B. Smith. Presented at the Municipal Opera with the following cast:

Vivian Savory	Carolyn Thomson
Moumoute (her aunt)	Verna Geska
Marion Love	Sibylla Bowhan
Princess Diana	Sara Andrada
Princess Stephanee	Alice MacKenzie
Princess Stellina	Elsie Norman
Princess Poppy	Grace Yeager
Princess Floria	Jeanne Gustavison
Princess Berenice	Clara Schlief
Princess Hortensia	Luise Heimueller
Prince Ivan of Zergovia	Roy Cropper
Troute	Florenz Ames
Poff	Truman Stanley
Milock	Pierre White
Ozir	William Gordon

VICTOR HERBERT'S operetta, "The Enchantress," which had not been seen in St. Louis in many years, got its first production by the Municipal Opera Co. in Forest Park last night at the start of the ninth week of the summer season. The story of the play is dated—it belongs to the Graustark school of romance—and the music is far from representing Herbert at his best but as done on the great outdoor stage it provides an opportunity for pageantry which was fully taken advantage of by municipal organization. Added to the beauty of the stage pictures were the very funny antics of Florenz Ames in the role of a secret service man, the delightful dancing of Sybilla Bowhan and the singing of Roy Cropper and Carolyn Thomson. A sextette of princesses of the mythical kingdom in which the plot of the play is laid also provided several splendid singing numbers and if "The Enchantress" is slow of action and at moments exceedingly dull, it is a thing of beauty and likable enough entertainment for a warm summer's evening.

Among the six princesses of the cast was Alice MacKenzie whose ideas of what roles should fall to her lot led to her resignation from the company, a resignation which is to go into effect at the conclusion of next week's bill. She has been a prime favorite with the Forest Park audiences for two seasons and last night she received an ovation from the crowd several times during the performance. Replacing Mr. Verse in the director's stand—Mr. Verse, too, has quit the opera company in a huff—was Ben Jerome who, a generation or so ago, was one of America's leading light opera composers. Mr. Jerome, older theater goers will remember, wrote the music for "The Royal Chef," "The Isle of Spice," "The Belle of Newport," "He Came from Milwaukee" and other well known successes. Thoroughly familiar with the requirements of the musical comedy stage he should prove a great help to the local company during the remaining four weeks of the present season.

The story of "The Enchantress" is of a young king who is about to lose his throne because of his love for an opera singer. In the end it is discovered that the girl is really of royal birth and can marry the monarch without necessitating any sacrifices on his part. Mr. Cropper is the king and Miss Thomson the girl.

Next week the Municipal company is to present "The Vagabond King" which, on previous occasions, has been one of the outstanding hits of the Forest Park organization. H. H. N.

Education Bureau Editor Dies.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—James Chambers Boykin, editor-in-chief of the United States Bureau of Education, died yesterday after an illness of three weeks.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MRS. GEORGE FOX STEEDMAN, 34 Westmoreland place, who, with Mr. Steedman and their daughter, Miss Medora, are occupying the summer home of Speaker and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth at Pride's Crossing, Mass., has gone to Pleasantville, N. Y., to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pope Hinckley, and their baby daughter, born a few days ago. Mrs. Hinckley was Miss Katherine Steedman before her marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinckley have a house on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Manville, whose daughter, Miss Estelle Manville, is now the Countess Bernadotte of Sweden.

Mrs. J. Dwight Dana, 54 Kingsbury place, departed yesterday for Marblehead, Mass., where she will join Mrs. Bayard, New York City, to spend the summer. Mrs. Bayard frequently has visited Mrs. Dana in St. Louis.

Mrs. Walter B. Ver Steeg, 4646 Lindell boulevard, returned home Sunday night from East Gloucester, Mass., where she was a member of the artists' colony at the Rockaway Hotel. Another St. Louisan at East Gloucester is Mrs. Thomas Blow, who will be joined there in a few days by her sister, Miss Genevieve Hebert.

Mrs. Roland W. Switzer, 4388 Westminster place, with her daughters, Miss Grace and Miss Stella Switzer, and her young son, who departed a week ago to spend the summer in La Jolla, Cal., are returning home because of the death of Mrs. Switzer's father, Mr. Francis E. Cook.

They were making the trip West by motor, and had arrived at Gallup, N. M.

Mrs. Henry T. Beauregard, 4906 McPherson avenue, and Miss Bella Denis of New Orleans, who are traveling in Europe this summer, are touring Belgium following a visit in Paris. From Belgium they will go to Norway, where they will travel for several weeks, returning to this country early in the fall.

Mrs. Henry S. Priest, 4322 Westminster place, who is spending the summer in Europe, visited in Paris last week on her way to Carlsbad. She will return to Paris for a visit before returning home.

Mrs. Priest crossed recently on the Ile de France.

Miss Marie Michel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Michel, 5720 Julian avenue, who has been spending the summer in Sedalia, Mo., as the guest of Miss Mary Elise Lamy, spent a few days in St. Louis over the week-end, and has returned to Sedalia. She will leave there today for Seattle, Wash., to visit her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Philip von Phul, for the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. Michel is in Douglas, Mich., where she will be joined this week by her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Reese, 5565 Lindell boulevard.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lane, 4915 Lindell boulevard, will entertain a group of their friends at a house party for the remainder of this week at their cottage at Quiver Beach, near Havana, Ill. The guests, who will depart today, include Mr. and Mrs. Pat Dean, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Glancy and C. C. Butler. Mrs. Lane has been occupying the cottage all summer and Mr. Lane and their daughter, Mrs. Myles Hasgall, will depart tomorrow.

Mrs. Edward Day Rae, 5333 Bartmer avenue, has as her guest her cousin, Mrs. Carolyn Eller of Olathe, Kan., who will be here two weeks.

Mrs. Rae has returned from Easthampton, L. I., where she has been visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. Ray Paige of New York at their summer home.

$465,745 TAX REFUND DENIED ELY & WALKER CO.

Firm Loses Appeal in Suit to Recover Part of Levy Made After Discovery of Erroneous Return.

A refund of $465,741 on Federal income and excess profits taxes for its fiscal year of 1918, sought by the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., was denied in an opinion by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals given at St. Paul, Minn., and received here yesterday. Judge Sanborn filed a dissenting opinion. The majority opinion upheld the decision of Federal Judge Davis of St. Louis.

The refund was asked from $640,000 additional tax which had been assessed against the company after an investigation of its 1918 return, in which the Government charged the return had been falsified. No intentional fraud was committed, the company declared.

A penalty of 50 per cent of the additional tax, or $320,000, also was assessed against the company. Under a provision of the Federal code, the Internal Revenue Commissioner permitted the company to compromise civil and criminal liability by paying the extra tax and 10 per cent of the penalty, of $32,000, penalty.

In its suit for a refund, the company argued that the compromise involved only the amount of the penalty and that the additional tax was paid voluntarily. District Attorney Breuer insisted that the compromise estopped any action to recover part of the tax.

these questions, to consider recommendations. Further that such of the policies that may be adopted by that conference should be followed up by definite organization throughout the country.

Seeks Unity in Local Activity.

"We realize that major process in this direction must be made by voluntary action and by activities of local government. The Federal Government has some important functions to perform in these particulars, all of which will need to been considered, but we may save years in national progress if we can secure some measure of unit, as to view, and unity as to program, more especially as these views and programs are to be asked on certain examination of facts and experience.

"Generous means have been provided to enable you to carry forward this task without difficulty, and I wish to assure you of the complete support of the executive.

"I need not urge upon you the fundamental importance of this undertaking. The greatest asset of a race is its children, that their bodily strength and development should preapre them to receive the heritage which each generation must bequeath to the next. These questions have the widest of social importance, that reaches to the roots of democracy itself. By the safeguard of health and protection of childhood we urther contribute to that equality of opportunity which is the unique basis of American civilization."

PASSENGERS HURRYING TO BOARD ZEPPELIN

One Pair Speeding From Russia to Make Flight Over Atlantic to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, July 30.—Passengers of the Graf Zeppelin on its next flight to America, were on their way to Friedrichshafen today from all parts of Europe by air, train, and motor.

Departure of the giant dirigible was postponed yesterday from the date originally set, Wednesday morning, so several passengers could arrive here on time.

Traveling further than any others were Mrs. Henry J. Pierce, of New York, and her husband, who were reached by telegraph at Samara, Russia, where they were accompanying a tour of American business and professional men through Soviet Russia.

Mrs. Pierce was the only woman passenger on the recent attempted crossing of the Zeppelin, which failed when motor trouble developed over the Mediterranean and it was forced to return to Germany, making an emergency landing in France. Mrs. Pierce was the only woman passenger on the recent attempted crossing of the Zeppelin, which failed when motor trouble developed over the Mediterranean and it was forced to return to Germany, making an emergency landing in France. Her husband objected strenuously to her making the trip, but finally not only reconciled himself to it, but determined to accompany her when the craft left again.

Mr. and Mrs. George N. Crouse of Syracuse, N. Y., were aboard the steamship Mauretania and were expected to arrive at Cherbourg early tomorrow on their way to Friedrichshafen, where they will embark on the Graf Zeppelin.

A third women also is listed among the passengers to make the trans-Atlantic crossing. She is Mme. Gourevitch, wife of Gregoir Gourevitch, a pianist living in Paris.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, said he was satisfied in every detail with the new motors, and expected to complete without slightest mishap not only the trans-Atlantic crossing, but the tour around the world which will start from Lakehurst.

The builders of the dirigible say they have invented a contrivance to enable the Zeppelin to float on the water if it has to come down in mid-ocean. The invention consists of an airtight rubber tubing of considerable size attached to the bottom of the passenger gondola.

Another innovation is a number of protective pneumatic buffers attached to the lower surfaces of the five gondolas containing the motors.

REYNOLDS SAYS HE WAS ABLE TO DRIVE AFTER FIVE DRINKS

Young American on Trial in London Denies Knowing He Struck Cyclist.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 30. — Richard Joshua Reynolds, wealthy young American charged with manslaughter as the result of an automobile accident, took the stand today at resumption of the re-trial made necessary by last week's sudden halting of the case.

Reynolds, who is 23 years old, denied allegations of the prosecution that he was drunk when he ran into a motor cycle driven by Arthur Graham last May.

Replying to questions by Norman Birkett, his counsel, Reynolds recounted his journey with a friend to Hurley on May 14 to play golf. Because of rain, however, they played at Darts Indoors. Just before 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon he had a drink known as Pimm's No. 1 Cup and between 5:30 and his leaving about 8:30 he had four other drinks of the same kind, he testified. He declared that he was quite fit to drive when he returned to London.

Reynolds said that at Burnham he was dazzled by the headlights of an oncoming car and found that he had mounted the curb. He had no idea he had struck a man on a motor cycle, he declared.

George Middleton, bartender of the old Bell Hotel at Hurley, said that Pimm's No. 1 Cup was taken in half a pint of lemonade and that Reynolds was not under the influence of drink.

DENVER, Colo., July 30.—The all-metal monoplane, Hoisington, which was to have opened air passenger service between Denver and Kansas City on the United States Air Lines, crashed in taking off yesterday.

The seven passengers and the pilot, Homer G. Sweet of Denver, were bruised and shaken up, but no one was injured seriously.

Before able to rise the plane struck a gully. Sweet, realizing a crash was imminent, shut off the motor and raised the plane a few feet into the air, dropping flat to the ground. As he landed, the pilot turned the plane completely around and brought it to a stop.

The propeller was smashed, a wing torn off, the left side of the fuselage caved in and part of the under carriage broken. A few minutes later the passengers took off in a second plane for the trip to Kansas City.

$10,000 Sought for Child's Death.

Suit for $10,000 damages was filed in Circuit Court Monday against the owners of the F. A. Scharlott 5-and-10 cent store on account of the death of Lorraine Wilmering, 12 years old, who lost her life in a fireworks explosion at defendant's store, 3948 West Florissant avenue, June 29. The suit was filed by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Wilmering. Three other persons were killed in the same accident.

People of only moderate means will be happy to know that the remains of loved ones are protected, in the future, from all destroying elements.

The Modern Casket Receptacle
GARDNER GRAVE VAULT
Guaranteed for Fifty Years
This vault is built of Rust-Resisting Steel, one solid, rigidly tested, flawless sheet and without a seam. It absolutely prevents all ruthless elements, every form of decay, air, water and rust from entering the casket. Gardner Grave Vault is the modern and necessary casket receptacle that is within the reach of everyone. Suggest to your Funeral Director to provide a Gardner Grave Vault. He will.

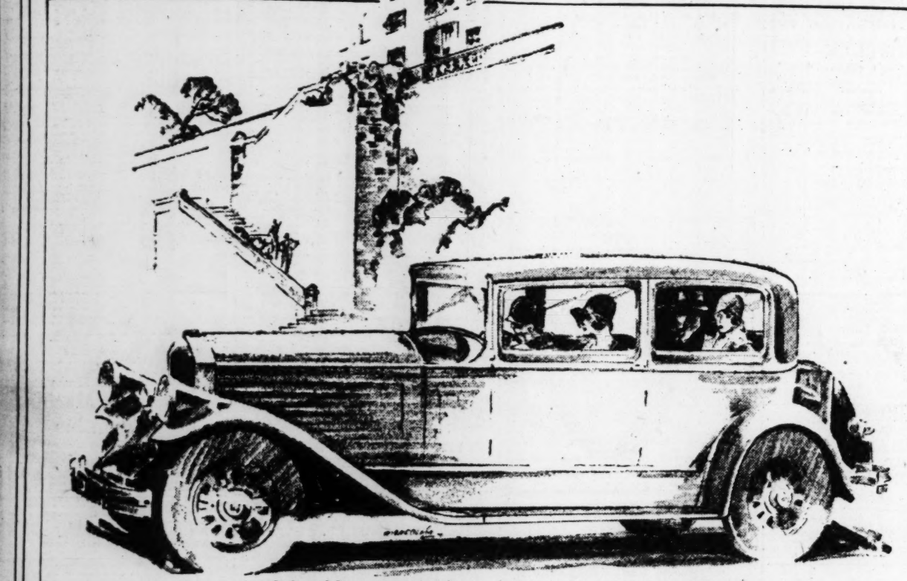
..for EARLY DELIVERY!
(a welcome assurance)

NOT since the new Straight Eight made its appearance, has Pierce-Arrow been able to meet the nation's demand on its production. It is doubtful whether any other fine car has ever known so great a waiting list, over so long a period.

With the advent of midsummer, however—the usual breathing spell in the automobile world—deliveries have been most encouraging. Meanwhile, the fine patience of those who have waited—in some cases, for three and four months—is a high tribute to Pierce-Arrow's latest creation.

Besides establishing a new mode in fine motor cars, the Straight Eight sets standards of performance never before approached—not even by Pierce-Arrow. Its field will be a long while catching up.



Body and Engine by Pierce-Arrow—and Pierce-Arrow in every part!

U.S. STEEL EARNED $71,995,461 IN LAST QUARTER

Net Profit for Period Was $53,825,843 Compared With $25,868,758 Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Operations of the steel industry at practical capacity during the second quarter of the year were reflected in the United States Steel Corporation's report for the period today, showing total earnings of $71,995,461 all after taxes, expenses and interest on bonds of subsidiaries, as compared with $60,105,381 in the previous quarter, and $46,932,986 in the second quarter of 1928.

Net profit for the quarter was $53,825,843, against $42,185,447 in the previous quarter, and $25,868,758 in the corresponding three-month period of last year.

Unfilled orders on hand June 30 totaled 4,256,910 tons as compared with 4,410,718 tons on March 21 last and 3,637,009 tons on June 30, 1928.

Directors declared the regular quarterly dividends of $1.75 each on the common and preferred stocks.

The net profit for the quarter, after preferred dividends is equal to $5.91 per share of common stock based on 8,030,304 shares which participate in the dividend not declared. This compares with $6.04 per share on 7,116,235 shares in the quervious quarter and $2.25 a share on the same number of shares in the June quarter of 1928.

OIL PRODUCTION DECREASES TRADE JOURNAL REPORTS

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., July 30. — Daily average production of crude oil in the United States fell of 13,529 barrels in the week ended July 27, the Oil and Gas Journal estimated today, halting a steady upward trend during five weeks which added approximately 170,000 barrels to the nation's daily output.

Total daily average production was 3,398,014 barrels compared with 2,911,543 barrels for the week ended July 20.

The Santa Fe Springs deep drilling area in California with a drop of 15,000 registered the principal decline.

Oklahoma fields showed increases totaling 9185 barrels and the Texas Panhandle added 4000 barrels. Heavy oil production in the Gulf Coast area declined 5265 barrels.

Board of Trade Seat $36,000.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Sales of Board of Trade seats broke records three times today, the latest sale being at $36,000, up $4000 from the first transfer of today and $5600 above the high mark established yesterday.

SHARP SETBACK TO GRAIN PRICES

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, July 30.—Grain futures had sharp setback today. September wheat closing nearly 4c lower. September corn finished 3⅝c off.

Opening fractionally lower, wheat registered further decline early. Winnipeg and Liverpool were both lower early. Corn opened unchanged to a shade higher and then ruled net lower early. Large movement of domestic wheat to terminal markets and report of rain in Nebraska and factors in markets. Profit taking by wheat also played a part. Liverpool wheat closed 1⅜ to 1¾d lower. Winnipeg was down 2 cents at one period. September wheat opened at $1.44⅝. December wheat $1.52⅛. September corn 1.06⅝, and December $1.03¾. Total receipts, which were 516,000 bushels, compared with 368,200 last week and 522,000 bushels last year, included 161 cars local and 128 cars through. Corn receipts, which were 95,200 bushels, compared with 63,000 bushels last week and 60,000 bushels last year, included 48 cars local and 20 cars through. Oats receipts, which were 24,000 bushels, compared with 11,000 bushels last week and 100,000 bushels last year, included 9 cars local and 4 cars through. Hay receipts were 13 cars local and 2 cars through.

WHEAT CLOSES NERVOUS AT SHARP DECLINES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Free selling today by traders resulted in a sharply lower market. An early rally carried wheat down 4¼c from yesterday's finish and 7⅛c under yesterday's best figures. Crop reports from the drouth area north and south of the Canadian line were again adverse but appeared to have lost effect as a prime influence for at least the moment. The world's wheat visible supply increased 8,000,000 bushels for the week and is now 340,345,000 bushels, compared with 184,000,000 bushels a year ago. Wheat closed unsettled at 2½c to 4¼c decline, with corn 2½c to 3⅝c down, oats ⅝@1¼c to 1c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 25c.

Price of wheat in the downward slide early, influenced largerly by the big movement of domestic winter wheat to terminal markets. Rains in Nebraska tended specially to ease corn, and there were heavy selling profits for wheat holders. Owing to the fact that the market showed a decided general setback, corn started unchanged to 3c up, and afterward underwent an early reversal. Oats followed corn. Provisions declined.

Houses with Eastern connections and prominent of late as buyers were big sellers of wheat at times today, bringing about declines. Continued liberal receipts of wheat in Chicago, 677 cars today against 357 cars a week ago, received a good deal of notice as an incentive to sellers, and the fact that monthly (unofficial) reports are due Aug. 2 tended also to act as a motive for profit-taking. Meanwhile, too, fresh wheat quotations were lower than expected, and European demand for American grain was reported as very disappointing, with Gulf of Mexico ports having wheat awaiting an outlet.

One of the firms that led in the selling today had a comprehensive detailed report from a trained crop observer who has just returned from an eight weeks' tour of Canada and of adjoining parts of this country. He said that Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta promise an average of half of last year's crop and that Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota suggest a crop of 135,000,000 bushels compared with 241,000,000 bushels last year.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The raw sugar market was quiet and prices were unchanged today with duty free and Cuban sugar offered at 3.88c delivered. No sales were reported.

Raw futures opened unchanged to 1 point lower under liquidation and Cuban selling of the distant positions, promoted by the disappointing showing of the London market. Continued liberal offerings in the spot market may also have had some influence on the early decline, but after the selling subsided prices rallied on covering and commission house buying with the list at midday net unchanged to 1 point higher. Trading was active at limited proportions, any uncertainty over developments in connection with the proposed single selling agency in Cuba seemed to check aggressive operations either way.

In refined withdrawals of liberal proportions continued, but new business was light. Prices are quoted at 5.50 for fine granulated by refiners, with second hand available around 5.25c.

Sugar futures closed easy; approximate sales, 49,600 tons. September, 2.07; December, 2.16; January, 2.16; March, 2.19; May, 2.25; July, 2.33.

Steel Market.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Steel unchanged, than a year ago.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS FEATURE OF TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—An afternoon rally brought generous advances to the active convertibles in today's bond market. Featuring the list were the Reading Coal & Iron 6s which soared nearly 7 points on a heavy turnover. American Telephone 4½s rose more than 3½, while International Telephone 4½s moved up about 2 points. Atchison 4½s followed the share rise in the stock by mounting 5/8, but reacted toward the close.

Firmer time money and the 10 per cent rate on call loans kept the general list sluggish. There was some demand for steel company bonds at higher levels. The rails were mostly quiet, although fair, a turnover appeared in Seaboard Air Line 6s, which rose about 4 points.

NEW YORK RUBBER MARKET

NEW YORK, July 30.—Rubber, spot, unchanged, ribbed 21.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Rubber futures market barely steady; September, 21.20c; December, 22.10c; March, 22.80c.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Rubber futures closed steady, September, 21.40; December, 22.30; March, 22.90.

REPRIEVE GRANTED CONVICTS SENTENCED TO DEATH FOR RIOT

50 Days for Further Appeal Allowed Five Inmates of Folsom Prison, California.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 30.—Five convicts condemned to death for their part in the 1927 Thanksgiving Day riot at Folsom Prison received a 60-day reprieve yesterday from Chief Justice William H. Waste of the California Supreme Court, to permit time for further appeal.

The five, who were to have been executed next month, are Anthony Brown, Roy Stokes, Walter Burke, James Gregg and James Gleason. They were charged with murder.

BREAKS FUNERAL LINE; HELD

A motorist who attracted the attention of Traffic Policeman Goellner by breaking through a funeral procession on Kingshighway north of Delmar boulevard yesterday noon was captured by the policeman after a chase in a commandeered automobile. A five-gallon can of moonshine whisky was found in the machine.

The driver, who said he was Nick Torillo, a merchant, 1810 South Eighteenth street, was charged with possession of liquor and traffic offenses.

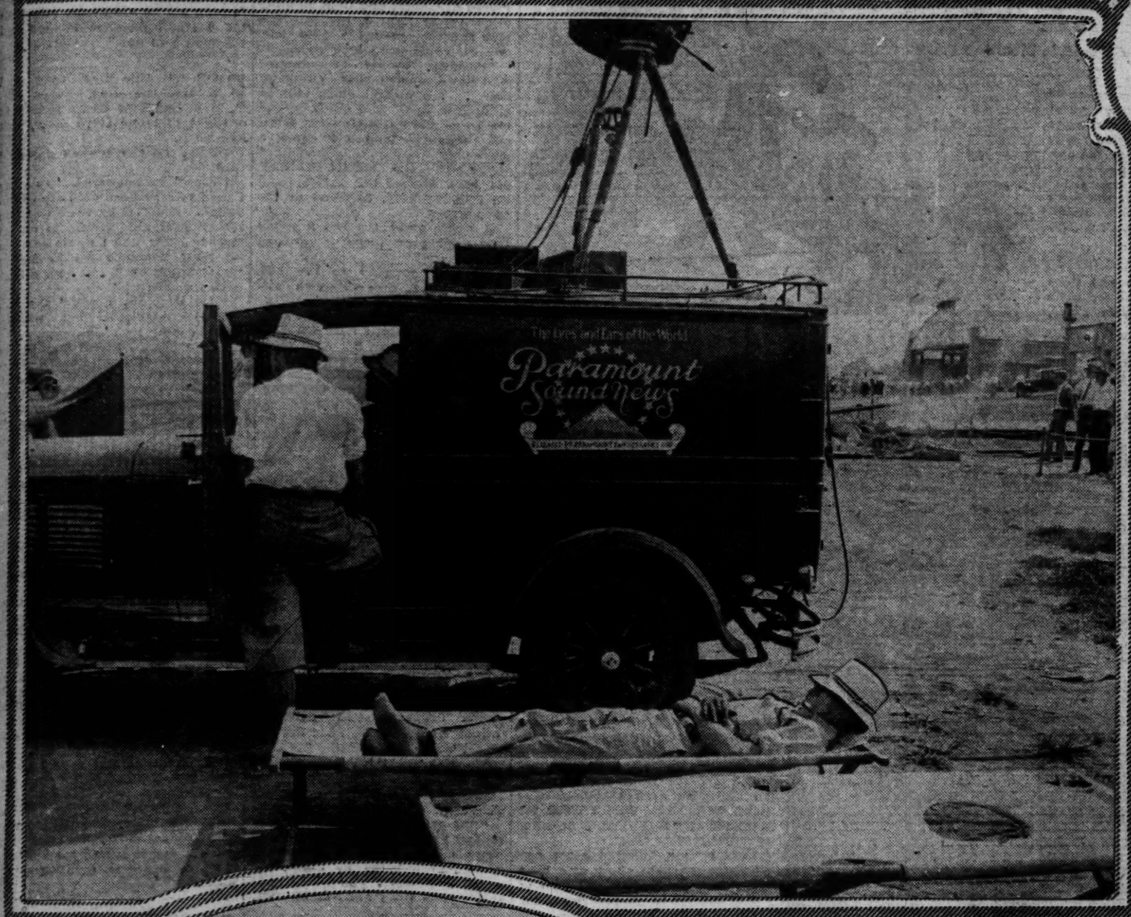
JUST ONE LONG DAY AFTER ANOTHER



The movie camera men, out at Lambert-St. Louis Field, have an endurance test of their own these days. It is a long, long wait, and an occasional nap on a cot is all they get.

Dust is the active ally of a hot sun, out on the aviation field, and after many days the officials got hold of an old-fashioned sprinkling cart which now helps to alleviate the discomfort of the waiting hours.

Behind the Screens

The Latest News and Gossip of the Film Actors in Hollywood Appears in the Daily Magazine of the Post-Dispatch Every Tuesday and Thursday and in the Sunday Drama Section.

HOLLYWOOD, July 30.

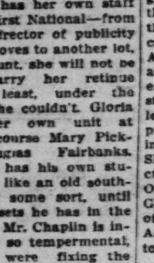
DUDLEY DIGGES, who comes from the stage and who has made many appearances in public, at least enough to overcome stage fright, is holding up production on "Condemned" with Ronald Coleman and Ann Harding, because he is desperately afraid of the mike — mike fright, or microphobia. He is able to get all the nerve he needs, until they swing the weighted microphone above him, then, everything goes away and leaves him cold. He says there is absolutely no worse feeling in the world. Until he gets used to it, the eager Hollywood correspondents who have been stampeding outside the set to get a glimpse of the lovely Miss Harding and the virile Mr. Coleman, will just have to wait until Mr. Digges is himself again.

RONALD COLEMAN

FANNIE BRICE has been sitting around waiting for another picture to do full front and amply. United Artists comes along with the script of what was originally "The Champ" written for Georges Carpentier, and when it was discovered upon reading the story, that it is a play for a woman and not for a man—that is, the writer, Joe Jackson had in mind a comedy for a male star, but when it was finished, a woman developed into the chief character — they bought it for Miss Brice. Her unit will be established immediately on the United Artists lot. Some of the studios do not permit their stars to establish separate "units," or offices. For instance, Colleen Moore has her own staff and office at First National—from office boy to director of publicity but when she moves to another lot, if it be Paramount, she will not be permitted to carry her retinue with her. At least, under the present rules, she couldn't. Gloria Swanson has her own unit at Pathe, and of course Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin has his own studio, which looks like an old southern mansion of some sort, until you see all the sets he has in the back yard. Then Mr. Chaplin is inclined to be oh! so tempermental, and, when they were fixing the street in front of his house, he knocked off work because the activity bothered him. Sometimes too, he knocks off when it's his own activity that bothers him. Speaking of Chaplin reminds us of comedies, and comedies of laughs, and laughs recall a conversation the other day about talking pictures, and the problem of measuring for laughs after speeches. On the stage of course, the gag wait is the accepted thing. (1) Gag. (2) everybody laughs (if the actor's lucky) (3) wait until riot has subsided. (4) on with the show. That used to be the way. Now of course, there can be no such thing as a laugh wait. The action has to go on. The man who was discussing this said that audiences are getting "laugh-conscious." That is, they suppress laughter in order not to miss the next wise crack. That may be desirable from the sound technicians point of view, but who, I ask you, wants to pay seventy-five cents for two hours or more of suppressed not-a-giggle-in-a-gallon entertainment. On the other hand, the dear public out here saw a relic of pre-talkie days the other night in the version of "The Four Feathers"—a silent picture, with amazing photography. And we'd be willing to venture that even those critics who have so long and assiduously championed the lost cause of the silents will admit that the sub-titles looked funny, and not only looked, but sounded funny when the man behind read them aloud to his wife.

FANNIE BRICE

SIGNS on cars along Sunset boulevard announce "Guide to Movie Homes," and they do a bouncing business. Inquiries about Mary Pickford's home lead the list but Will Rogers, John Gilbert and Clara Bow have their fans who want to see their door knockers. One little girl wanted to see Sonny Boy's house. Very few of these folks are at home now, Mary and Doug spending most of their time at their cottage on the United Artists lot, where they are finishing up the Shakespearean "Taming of the Shrew." Not that most of their time is actually spent in the cottage, for Verona and Padua are demanding their presence, and anyway, it's probably cooler on the ice-cooled stage than in any house. The Gilberts of course, are on their delayed honeymoon in Europe.



JOHN GILBERT

WILL ROGERS has his famous hacienda on the Fox lot, which was built with a big mirror room for make-up, and Will doesn't use any make-up, and beside that, he keeps his clothes in his car. Clara Bow spends her time at Malibu. This Richman affair is really something of a shame. One simply can't keep from going on about it, because it seems that Clara Bow is being victimized for the sake of a lot of publicity for Richman. He comes out with a story of how he won Clara Bow with his cave-man tactics; she replies in three-inch headlines that he didn't do any such thing, and furthermore, she doesn't know even whether she loves him or not. At a gathering of press folks, who met to have lunch in an innocent way, Richman appeared and announced in a loud voice that he intended to have dinner with her and get the straight story verifying his statements, among which was that Clara intended to give up picture work for home life and such. Unfortunately for him no one registered anything, much less took him up on his invitation to dinner.

IT SOMEWHAT goes against one to see George Arliss suffering from the slings and arrows of the sound stage. Especially in wig and costume of "Disraeli" on a hot day. It doesn't seem quite right that he should be seen in a 15-cent straw hat wandering around Busch Gardens in Pasadena where the company was on location. But among the whole crowd who is suffering the heat that the public might be served, George Arliss is probably the best sport. In a very formal court room scene, and not the kind of court room scene that has enjoyed the present vogue, but a real knee breeches and lace scene, there were many familiar faces of people you have seen many times—character extras whose names no one ever knows, but who, nevertheless add very ably to any scene. Joan Bennett, who has risen to the top so quickly and surely plays with Mr. Arliss. Mrs. Arliss is also in the production. They plan to go directly to England as soon as this picture is finished, where they will remain for a rest and vacation until late in the fall. Mr. Arliss expects to offer a new play about holiday time, and is considering opening in Los Angeles instead of New York. Before he leaves, however, Warners have promised that he will do his part in their gala 100-artist "Show of Shows," which will out-revue any current production, so they say. One can just as easily imagine George Arliss in "The Blackbirds of 1930" doing a song and dance. And one can't help hoping he gets to Europe before they catch him.

LUPE VELEZ is quite the busiest person in town these days. She has just finished "Tiger Rose" with Monte Blue—that is, the latest report says they are about to "wash up," which is Hollywood language, meaning, as you have guessed, finish the blamed thing. She has just been given the featured role in "Out of the Night" for Inspiration Pictures, an independent organization that has a program turning out only three or four pictures a year, but putting everything into them.

HOBART BOSWORTH, grand old film veteran, has a horse, a beautiful white Arabian named Cameo. Cameo has but one master, and to Bosworth there is but one horse. Bosworth was riding Cameo down a bridle path the other day, and met John Barrymore. John expressed a yen for Cameo. "Egad!" quoth Bosworth in effect. "I would as soon be ridden myself as have anyone else ride Cameo!"

HOBART BOSWORTH

But John rides Cameo in his new picture. Therein is a tribute either to friendship or to the glib persuasion of the Barrymore tongue.

Bosworth, by the way, recalls his first meeting with Barrymore, in Philadelphia quite a few years ago. He saw John, a mere infant, with Lionel and Ethel, also tots—and John, he says, reminded him of that "introduction" when they met again after the lapse of years!

SEEN and heard around the studios: Mary Doran, whose hair has been every color except pink and blue and green to meet the requirements of screen rolls, has dyed it again. . . . Playing the Wife Market

Modern Practice and Legendary Lore Of Matrimony on a Bargaining Basis In Various Nations and Social Strata

By Marjorie Mears

HOW much a wife is worth depends upon what part of the world she lives in. To a Zuzu Chief four cows is a fair price to pay for a bride. Whereas some American husbands declare that their wives are worth their weight in gold.

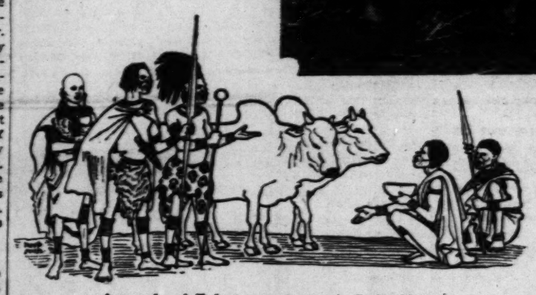
Somewhere in between those extremes was the idea of Prince Hendrik John, leader of a migratory gypsy band. Chief John is reported to have quarreled recently in Louisville, Ky., with the father of a Romany maid over the price of her hand in marriage. The prenuptial business arrangements are said to have reached a deadlock when Chief John offered $2700 for his prospective bride, while her father held out for an even $3000. Neither one would bridge the $300 gap, and Chief John finally departed from Kentucky in a towering rage and without his bride.

The price of Romany wives seems to fluctuate like Mexican oil stock. According to Ruby, a sister of the proposed bridegroom, her father-in-law handed over $4000 when she married his son; whereas, Tessa, another sister, netted only $4 and a collar button in the marriage market.

This practice among Romany tribes, whereby the bridegroom gives his prospective father-in-law a sum of money or its equivalent as a marriage preliminary, grew out of an ancient and honorable custom. Still prevalent in some parts of the world, it is a survival of the times when the transaction was frankly one of ordinary bargain. "Marriage by consideration," was customary among all the branches of the Semitic race, and generally practiced throughout the East. Out of it, according to some authorities, evolved the custom of giving dowry to the bride, and later the symbolic platinum and diamond band of today.

Even more widespread than marriage by purchase, was the custom referred to in Hebrew legend, whereby a man obtained a wife by services rendered to her father —the bridegroom working as a servant in the family for a stated period of years.

THE bride price among North American Indians was usually paid in horses. African tribesmen yielded their daughters for cattle, leopard skins, rum or tobacco, and the common medium of barter among the poorer natives of many Chinese provinces was foodstuffs.



A couple of Zebus on account, in Indo-China.

Acquiring a wife in Hakka, in the Province of Canton, was managed by an elaborate system of presents in advance of the wedding. The first step in these pre-nuptial arrangements was performed by an intermediary, who presented a sum amounting to $2 to $8, some betel nut and areca to the girl's father as a sort of engagement present. After a short time followed the rite of "passing the minor presents," which one historian says consisted of "two cocks and two pots of wine, 20 or 30 pounds of pork, a dozen or so of salt fish, some areca and betel and a sum of $10 or thereabouts." A longer interval now elapsed before the go-between again appeared at the father's house for the ceremony of "passing the greater presents." This was the real wallop. The father of several attractive girls must have been able to live comfortably to the end of his life without doing a stroke of work, for "from $5 to $100 was sent in money; one cooked pig's head, one cooked cock and one piece of roast pork, all to be offered to the girl's ancestors; a pair of large and a pair of small candles, two pieces of incense-stick, two parcels of paper money, some areca and betel, two loads, each of two pitchers of wine, four or eight live cocks, two geese, ninety-nine ducks' eggs, one box of bean-curd, 40 pounds of pork, 10 pounds of salt fish, 10 boxes of sea fish." All these were left with the girl's family, together with complimentary notes from the man's relatives to those of the girl.

THE ancient Teutons and Celts likewise paid a price for their wives, consisting of gold, silver, cattle, land or houses. And in addition to this sum given to her parents, the early German husband presented his wife on their wedding day with such gifts as a pair of oxen for ploughing, a harnessed horse and a buckler, lance or sword as a delicate reminder that marriage with him was not going to be one long rest cure for her but that she was expected to be a partner in his labors and a sharer of his dangers.

The purchase of wives is still a common practice with many African tribes. The Zulu marriage market price is temperamental. Desirable brides may be bought one year for three cows and in 12 months their price may have advanced to eight cows. A serious epidemic among the cattle once made the birth rate of the Karamoja tribe decline alarmingly. With few cows left to be used to purchase wives there were fewer marriages and births. So prevalent was the custom among pastoral tribes that Kaffir women are said to have had nothing but sneers for the maiden who had not been duly purchased by cattle. In their eyes such a one had less sex appeal than a newt. Thus agriculturist fathers in Africa looked upon their marriagable daughters as sources of income.

A big drive in brides in ancient Assyria.

Among the poorer natives of Fanti, on the Gold Coast, two flasks of gin, instead of cows, were frequently enough to win a father's consent. In most cases, however, the gin served only as a preliminary present. Few fathers could withstand such winning advances. And the marriage contract having been arranged, the prospective bridegroom then paid his fiancee's relatives the stipulated sum of money varying from 4½ ackies (about $5) to 2 ounces of gold. However, he who bought a wife for two bottles of gin was as much married, among the Fantis, as the rich man who paid $40 in gold for his bride.

A Somali tribesman might even become engaged to a girl before she was born, by making a bargain with her prospective parents. In this case the bridegroom makes a present of a horse or some smaller personal possession. When her parents accept it, the engagement is binding.

The sale and purchase of wives, either outright or in a modified form, has been familiar not only to barbarians but to most civilized peoples. Often the purchase money was returned when the marriage took place either by exchange of presents or in the form of dowry for the bride. Thus in Syria every man paid a sum for his wife in proportion to her father's rank. In one tribe the regulation presents consisted of a carpet, a nose-ring, a neck-chain, bracelets and a camel-bag. The father in turn delivers these gifts to his daughter to help set up the young couple in housekeeping.

A WHOLESALE idea was developed in the marriage markets which flourished in ancient Assyria and Babylonia. These woman sales, held periodically, were conducted in much the same manner as the recent auction of lamps, desks and overstuffed armchairs at the Waldorf Hotel, New York City. All the marriageable girls were assembled in one place and there in turn put up for sale by the public crier. To even things up, part of the money paid for those who were pretty and consequently sold well was bestowed on the ones who were plain. And after the most desirable had been disposed of those whose eyebrows had an imperfect arch or whose contours were bony, were offered for a certain sum and allotted to whoever would take them.

Less than a hundred years ago marriage markets, relics of a rude state of society, were still part of the social life of Russian peasants. On Whitsunday afternoon the Summer Garden, a popular resort in St. Petersburg, was thronged with young bachelors come to select a bride from the show of marriageable girls, held annually on that date. Conducted by parents or guardians, the maidens stood about, dressed in their best, each one holding as extra bait a bunch of silver teaspoons, a silver ladle or some other article of household luxury. The would-be husbands sauntered past and made their selections. His mind made up, a suitor would approach the girl's parents, give an inventory of his own worldly goods and make an offer for their daughter's hand. Since several admirers might choose the same girl, nothing was immediately decided. Later that evening a conclave was held around the family lamp and the offers of each contestant calmly considered, the highest bidder generally being awarded the prize. The decision having been made, the man was notified by letter of his good fortune.

THE business of buying and selling women seems far removed from twentieth century ideas. Yet it persists among other races than the Romany gypsies, who claim that when they pay money for a wife it is more in the nature of dowry than sale. Herbert Asbury records the sale, as late as 1909, of "Little Sweet Flower, otherwise Bow Kum, a slave girl who had been sold by her father in Canton for a few dollars and brought to the United States, where she fetched $3000 in the open market of San Francisco."

In Shansi the famine of 1920 caused such a shortage of women that girls were sold for as much as $200 in gold. And only last year a woman confessed in a Saskatchewan police court that she had sold her daughter to a man for scarcely more than the price of two theater tickets to the Follies.

For the Love of a Lady

by Jeffery Farnol

Chapter 32.
THE SUNKEN GARDEN.

IT was a hot night, therefore, my lady had set her lattice wide.

"'at mightnight!" she murmured dreamily; and then, in quite other voice: "Not I, indeed! The man is presumptuous," said she, and off came her silken robe.

"Besides, 'twould be damp." And down rippled her abundant hair. . . . A distant clock chimed midnight. "No!" said my lady, and off came her buckled shoes. "Odious thought!" And off came a garter.

"Helen!"—the merest whisper, yet back slipped the garter, and up rose my lady, to stand at the open lattice.

A rustle amid the ivy, a sound that grew ever more frightfully loud.

My lady bounded to the bed, caught up a dressing-gown and had barely folded it about her shapeliness when, beyond the open lattice, a be-wigged head rose.

"Ma'am," said Sir Richard's voice, "are you coming down?"

"No," she answered.

"Alack," he murmured, "then needs must I sit and dangle my legs, for I am here seeking your aid and counsel, Helen, in matter of life and death!"

"Is this so—then . . . I'll come down," she said, after a moment's frowning thought. Even as she spoke his head vanished.

She found him awaiting her on the terrace, but neither uttered a word until they had reached the cherry-tree.

"Well?" she demanded at last. "Since I'm here, sir, pray what now?"

"First," he answered, "since I may not be always near—be warned, madam—neither walk nor ride abroad after sunset, and never alone."

"And wherefore not?" she retorted. "What is this mystery? 'Gainst whom do you warn me and what?"

"I' faith,' said he, "'tis what I cannot tell you for lack o' proof. Howbeit, I do believe some danger threatens, so—pray be warned."

"But of whom? Of what?" she repeated. "Oh, 'tis folly!—you write me warning by day, you speak me warning by night, yet when I question you can but shake your head and—sigh!"

ALACK, 'tis true enough!" he answered and sighed again. "And yet, I beg you heed my warning nevertheless. . . . And now—Good-night t' ye, ma'm." So saying, he bowed and strode off so suddenly that my lady caught her breath and stood looking after him in frowning dismay; then she gathered up her petticoats and began to run, looking neither left nor right and thus nearly stumbled over him where he stood waiting.

"I hoped you'd follow," said he, reaching out a hand to steady her.

"So then you do not trust me!" cried she reproachfully. "You tell me nothing!"

"What would you know?"

"Then—if I am your friend, Richard, confide in me this much—confess where you lay hid this morning at precisely 11 o'clock."

"Wherefore this particular hour?" he inquired.

"Because 'twas then, or thereabouts, that the Marquis—galloped into the stable-yard with report of your capture, but Captain Despard assured him such report was false because he himself had seen you that very morning and not 10 minutes since."

Sir Richard halted suddenly, very much at a loss.

"Faith now, I suspected as much!" he murmured. "His eyes must be mighty sharp!"

"Richard, where were you hiding, that is the question?"

"Nay, Helen, the question rather is—how soon will the fellow betray me?"

"Nay, stint your apprehensions, sir; none knows but Captain Despard, and you may trust to his honor."

"You think so, ma'am?"

"Well, Richard," said she, "I pray wait your answer—where was it you lay hid this morning?"

"Faith, Helen, 'twere hard to say. I am here and there, for lurking places are many. Go with me a small distance farther and I'll show you one."

FOR by this time they had crossed the wide kitchen garden, and now Helen paused at a flight of stone steps mossy and age-worn.

"Why, 'tis the sunken garden!" said she.

"True," he answered. "As a boy I used to play here with my cousin Julian. And 'tis by reason of him I seek your aid. Helen, to read a strange letter, and I would beg you set your woman's wit to resolve the meaning on 't. . . . So, will ye with me, Helen?"

"Ay, Richard, I will," she answered kindly, "but whither wouldst take me?"

"To a place where I may hide lantern safe from all chance observation. Wilt give me thy hand?"

Mutely she obeyed him and, hand in hand, they descended crumbling steps into a dusk that gloomed more dark below. Here her lover snugged itself a little closer to her.

"Hastever seen a ghost, Helen?"

"No, nor wish to. Have you?"

"Ay. I've thought to see several o' late—thou dost not believe in such idle folly?"

"Nay, not when the sun shines."

"Neither do I, Helen."

"So, sir, having seen ghosts you disbelieve in them?"

"Heartily, my lady, for these phantoms proved too purposeful and over solid—here is one of the divers hiding-places!"

As he spoke, he pointed to a seeming wall shut off by a tangle of weeds and bushes. Going in amid these bushes, he parted the dense ivy, disclosing a low narrow arch that opened upon an echoing blackness.

"It was a culvert once that led the moat. Wilt venture in with me, Helen?"

"Oh, surely!"

She felt his fingers tighten upon hers for a moment, then they stepped out of the starry dusk into a pitchy darkness, between narrow walls.

STANDING in this awful darkness she waited while Richard lighted the lantern. Then, taking a cloak from some niche, he spread it against the wall and invited her to be seated. And now, seated opposite to her, Sir Richard drew from his breast a packet and, taking thence a folded paper, placed it in her hand.

"Thou 'rt pale, Richard," said she.

"Why, then," he answered, smiling a little wearily, "'tis very well, for I have been playing ghost, and these are pallid things, or should be."

He started suddenly, the words died on his lips as, from the outside world, stole a soft, lady-like ring; now, beholding the sudden, fierce intentness of his look, it seemed as if some dire change was wrought in him even as she watched—he was aloof, and had vanished, creeping with none a sound—and he was staring at her him in a dreadful dismay.

SUGAR MAKES FOODS PLEASANT

Good Cooks Learn to Use Nature's Supreme Flavor

No wonder sugar ranks to be considered a luxury of the rich. No wonder a noted scientist says that sugar is the greatest condiment of food in the world.

Sugar's supreme importance to health is that it makes foods pleasant. No man, woman or youngster can live on one food alone. To get a great variety of foods daily the year round is to promote health and sugar adds flavor and delight to nearly every known food. As a noted scientist says, to try to eat most foods "straight" would prove in a monotonous, unpalatable diet, and you simply can't get people to eat things they don't like.

Try a dash of sugar on your favorite cereal. Eat healthful blueberries and other fresh fruits made delicious by a sprinkling of sugar. Profit by the experiments of famous well-known women cooking experts in New York who recently discovered the old art of using a dash of sugar in vegetables while they are cooking in a small amount of water. Note how the vegetables colors, freshness and flavors improve. This little added sugar makes eating vegetables a joy. Remember the value of custards, milk shakes, ice cream and other sugar desserts in helping your family to eat enough milk. Remember sliced fruits, candy and cookies for the end of the meal.

THE WAY OF A WOMAN

By Marguerite M. Marshall

BUSINESS AND "S. A."

NOT only business women who attended the convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in Michigan, but those who stayed at home, must have been keenly and amusedly interested in one gentleman's speech to the convention. He is Louis E. Van Norman, chief business specialist of the United States Department of Commerce, and the subject of his discourse was: "A Man's Point of View in a Business Woman's World."

"We discourage," declared Mr. Van Norman, in all apparent seriousness, the utilization of sex appeal in the business world."

If he used the editorial "we," no one need doubt his sincerity. But if he used "we" in the sense of "we men" referring to his sex as a whole—many a woman who heard or read his words must have elevated the eyebrow of scepticism and murmured: "Yes—'WE'—do—NOT—'discourage the utilization of sex appeal in the business world.'"

If "sex appeal" is invariably discouraged in the business world, why does every candid vocational adviser and employment agency tell girls to dress and look as attractive as possible if they want to get and keep jobs? Not mere neatness and cleanness, but personal charm is stressed as a feminine wage-earning qualification—and nobody dreams of making a like requirement for young men job-hunters.

If men truly "discourage the utilization of sex appeal in business," why are they so bitterly hostile to the employment of middle-aged women? (And the deadline of feminine middle age, according to authentic report, is dropping, in the business world, from 35 to 25!) What else except the "s. a." of rounded young cheeks, ungrayed hair and giggles makes a green little girl from business college a more desired employe than a mature woman with experience, judgment, poise?

If business men are all agreed on discouraging "sex appeal," why is it that many a woman working downtown has had to watch, with amused scorn, the line forming on the left of the desk of the curly haired, dimpled filing clerk, who is the prettiest—and "dumbest"—damsel in the office? The head of the department and even the vice president—as well as office boys and bookkeepers—find opportunity for talking to her; of course, they may be "discouraging" her, but it doesn't look like it!

BRAINS, it is true, plus serious ambition and determination, are likely to win in the long run against "s. a.;" no man not absolutely besotted will give permanently an important place in his organization to a pretty fool with "IT." But this type is still the best of starters; men so easily see in her the ability which she does not possess. Any woman downtown has heard men rave about a girl's brain when they mean (even if they don't know it) that they are charmed by the way she uses her eyes.

In the end, probably, she is discovered and discarded—unless she first makes a good marriage and resigns her position—but, meanwhile, she has had the advancement and the salary increases. Moreover, her temporary, undeserved success has another unfavorable result for her plainer but abler feminine competitors; the employer deluded into promoting her suffers—when he wakes up—a reaction against ALL women in business. Because he's a bad picker, he thinks the whole crop is rotten.

No woman who has seen this common drama enacted in her office can help being a realist about the advantages of sex appeal in business. A realist, but not a bitter one: philosophic, rather, and practical. She will understand that, men being what nature made them—almost automatically responsive to "s. a."—she herself should not disdain it; should indeed use it, in moderation, not as a substitute for intelligence but as an invaluable supplement. Until, of course, men truly "discourage the utilization of sex appeal in the business world" by applying their discouragement in the right quarter—to themselves.

ONE other paragraph in Mr. Van Norman's address to the business women must have made some of them smile. "In the business world," he said, "we men prefer not to see women using their employment as a waiting period for the arrival of a Prince Charming. He may not come, and if he does, and if he is a prince, he may not be charming, or he may run away with another woman, or he may die. So, if women would go into business forgetful of the fact that Prince Charming may be around the corner, the world would be better off."

Yes—and what does the critical world say of the woman who goes into business for keeps, instead of for a step-gap till the arrival of her prince? If she rules him out altogether—if she marries her job, instead of a man—the world says that she is a hard, selfish, unnatural female, unmindful of her destiny cradle of the race.

Whatever she does, she just can't please men nohow! That, Mr. Van Norman, is "A Woman's Point of View in a Business Man's World."

Until, of course, men truly "discourage the utilization of sex appeal in the business world" by applying their discouragement in the right quarter—to themselves.

ONE other paragraph in Mr. Van Norman's address to the business women must have made some of them smile. "In the business world," he said, "we men prefer not to see women using their employment as a waiting period for the arrival of a Prince Charming. He may not come, and if he does, and if he is a prince, he may not be charming, or he may run away with another woman, or he may die. So, if women would go into business forgetful of the fact that Prince Charming may be around the corner, the world would be better off."

Yes—and what does the critical world say of the woman who goes into business for keeps, instead of for a stop-gap till the arrival of her prince? If she rules him out altogether—if she marries her job, instead of a man—the world says that she is a hard, selfish, unnatural female, unmindful of her destiny cradle of the race.

Whatever she does, she just can't please men nohow! That, Mr. Van Norman, is "A Woman's Point of View in a Business Man's World."

All Quiet on the Western Front

By Erich Maria Remarque

Paul and his three comrades—Kropp, Muller and Lear—hardened for the front by the abuse and persecution of their training camp corporal, Himmelstoss—are now at rest five miles behind the lines. Kemmerich, their friend, lies in the dressing station dying of wounds. One leg is gone and Muller seeks his high Russian boots.

CHAPTER III.

I SIT by Kemmerich's bed. He is sinking steadily. Around us is a great commotion. A hospital train has arrived and the wounded fit to be moved are being selected. The doctor passes by Kemmerich's bed without once looking at him.

"Next time, Franz," I say.

He raises himself on the pillow with his elbows. "They have amputated my leg."

He knows it too then. I nod and answer: "You must be thankful you've come off with that."

He is silent.

I resume: "It might have been both legs, Franz. Wegeler has lost his right arm. That's much worse. Besides, you will be going home." He looks at me. "Do you think so?"

"Of course."

"Do you think so?" he repeats.

"Sure. Once you've got over the operation."

He beckons me to bend down. I stoop over him and he whispers: "I don't think so."

"Don't talk rubbish, Franz, in a couple of days you'll see for yourself. What is it, anyway—an amputated leg? Here they patch up far worse things than that."

He lifts one hand. "Look here, though, these fingers."

"That's the result of the operation. Just eat decently and you'll soon be well again. Do they look after you properly?"

He points to a dish that is still half full. I get excited. "Franz, you must eat. Eating is the main thing. That looks good, too."

He turns away. After a pause he says slowly: "I wanted to become a head-forester once."

"So you may still," I assure him. "There are splendid artificial limbs now, you'd hardly know there was anything missing. They are fixed on to the muscles. You can move the fingers and work and even write with an artificial hand. And besides, they will always be making new improvements."

For a while he lies still. Then he says: "You can take my lace-up boots with you for Muller."

I nod and wonder what to say to encourage him. His lips have fallen away, his mouth has become larger, his teeth stick out and look as though they were made of chalk. The flesh melts, the forehead bulges more prominently, the cheek-bones protrude. The skeleton is working itself through. The eyes are already sunken in. In a couple of hours it will be over.

He is not the first one I have seen thus; but we grew up together and that always makes it a bit different. I have copied his essays. At school he used to wear a brown coat with a belt and shiny sleeves. He was the only one of us, too, who could do the giant's turn on the parallel bars. His hair flew in his face like silk when he did it. Kantorek was proud of him for it. But he couldn't endure cigarettes. His skin was very white; he had something of the girl about him.

I glance at my boots. They are big and clumsy, the breeches are tucked into them, and standing up one looks well-built and powerful in these great drain-pipes. But when we go bathing and strip, suddenly we have slender legs again and slight shoulders. We are no longer soldiers but little more than boys; no one would believe that we could carry packs. It is a strange moment when we stand naked; then we become civilians, and almost feel ourselves to be so. When bathing Franz Kemmerich looked as slight and frail as a child. There he lies now—but why? The whole world ought to pass by this bed and say: "There is Franz Kemmerich, 19½ years old, he doesn't want to die. Let him not die!"

My thoughts become confused. This atmosphere of carbolic and gangrene clogs the lungs, it is a thick gruel, it suffocates.

It grows dark. Kemmerich's face changes color, it lifts from the pillow and is so pale that it gleams. The mouth moves slightly. I draw near to him. He whispers: "If you find my watch, send it home"——

I do not reply. It is no use any more. No one can console him. I am wretched with helplessness. This forehead with its hollow temples, this mouth that is now merely a slit, this sharp nose! And the fat, weeping woman at home to whom I must write. If only the letter were sent off already!

Hospital orderlies go to and fro with the bottles and pails. One of them comes up, casts a glance at Kemmerich and goes away again. You can see he is waiting, apparently he wants the bed.

I bend over Franz and talk to him as though that could save him: "Perhaps you will go to the convalescent home at Klosterberg, among the villas, Franz. Then you can look out from the window across the fields to the two trees on the horizon. It is the loveliest time of the year now, when the corn ripens; at evening the fields in the sunlight look like mother-of-pearl. And the lane of poplars by the Klosterbach, where we used to catch sticklebacks! You can build an aquarium again and keep fish in it, and you can go out without asking anyone, you can even play the piano if you want to."

I lean down over his face which lies in the shadow. He still breathes, lightly. His face is wet, he is crying. What a fine mess I have made of it with my foolish talk!

"But Franz"—I put my arm round his shoulders and put my face against his. "Will you sleep now?"

He does not answer. The tears run down his cheeks. I would like to wipe them away but my handkercheif is too dirty.

An hour passes. I sit tensely and watch his every movement in case he may perhaps say something. What if he were to open his mouth and cry out! But he only weeps, his head turned aside. He does not speak of his mother or his brothers and sisters. He says nothing; all that lies behind him; he's entirely alone now with his little life of nineteen years, and cries because it leaves him. This is the most disturbing and hardest parting that ever I have seen, although it was pretty bad too with Tjaden who called for his mother—a big bear of a fellow who, with wild eyes full of terror, held off the doctor from his bed with a dagger until he collapsed.

Suddenly Kemmerich groans and begins to gurgle.

I jump up, stumble outside and demand: "Where is the doctor? Where is the doctor?"

As I catch sight of the white apron I seize hold of it: "Come quick. Franz Kemmerich is dying."

He frees himself and asks an orderly standing by: "Which will that be?"

He says: "Bed 26, amputated thigh."

He sniffs: "How should I know anything about it, I've amputated five legs today;" he shoves me away, says to the hospital orderly, "You see to it," and runs off to the operating room.

I tremble with rage as I go along with the orderly. The man looks at me and says: "One operation after another since 5 o'clock this morning. You know today alone there have been 16 deaths—yours is the seventeenth. There will probably be 20 altogether.

I become faint, all at once I cannot do any more. I won't revile any more, it is senseless, I could drop down and never rise up again.

We are by Kemmerich's bed. He is dead. The face is still wet from the tears. The eyes are half open and yellow like old horn buttons.

The orderly pokes me in the ribs. "Are you taking his things with you?" I nod.

He goes on: "We must take him away at once, we want the bed. Outside they are lying on the floor."

I collect the things, untie Kemmerich's identification disc and take it away. The orderly asks about the pay-book. I say that it is probably in the Orderly Room, and go. Behind me they are already hauling Franz on to a waterproof sheet.

Outside the door I am aware of the darkness and the wind as a deliverance. I breathe as deep as I can, and feel the breeze in my face, warm and soft as never before. Thoughts of girls, of flowery meadows, of white clouds suddenly come into my head. My feet begin to move forward in my boots, I go quicker, I run. Soldiers pass by me, I hear their voices without understanding. The earth is streaming with forces which pour into me through the soles of my feet. The night crackles electrically, the front thunders like a concert of drums. My limbs move supplely, I feel my joints strong, I breathe the air deeply. The night lives, I live. I feel a hunger, greater than comes from the belly alone.

Muller stands in front of the hut and waits for me. I give him the boots. We go in and he tries them on. They fit well.

He roots among his supplies and offers me a fine piece of saveloy. With it goes hot tea and rum.

CHAPTER IV.

REINFORCEMENTS have arrived. The vacancies have been filled and the sacks of straw are already laid out in the huts. Some of them are old hands, but there are 25 men of a later draft from the base. They are about two years younger than us. Kropp nudges me: "Seen the infants?"

I nod. We stick out our chests, shave in the open, shove our hands in our pockets, inspect the recruits and feel ourselves to be stone-age veterans.

Katczinsky joins us. We stroll past the horse-boxes and go over to the reinforcements, who have already been issued with gas-masks and coffee.

"Long time since you've had anything decent to eat, eh?" Kat asks one of the youngsters.

He grimaces. "For breakfast, turnip-bread — lunch, turnip-stew—supper, turnip-cutlets and turnip-salad." Kat gives a knowing whistle.

"Bread made of turnips? You've been in luck, it's nothing new for it to be made of sawdust. But what do you say to haricot beans? Have some?"

The youngster turns red: "You can't kid me."

Katczinsky merely says: "Fetch your mess-tin."

We follow curiously. He takes us to a tub beside his straw sack. It is nearly half full of a stew of beef and beans. Katczinsky plants himself in front of it like a General and says:

"Sharp eyes and light fingers! That's what the Prussians say."

We are surprised. "Great guns, Kat, how did you come by that" I ask him.

"Ginger was glad I took it. I gave him three pieces of parachute silk for it. Cold beans taste fine, too."

Grudgingly he gives the youngster a portion and says:

"Next time you come with your mess-tin have a cigar or a chew of tobacco in your other hand. Get me?" Then he turns to us. "You get off scot free, of course."

Katczinsky never goes short; he has a sixth sense. There are such people everywhere but one does not appreciate it at first. Every company has one or two. Katczinsky is the smartest I know. By trade he is a cobbler, I believe, but that hasn't anything to do with it; he understands all trades. It's a good thing to be friends with him, as Kropp and I are, and Hale Westhus, too, more or less. But Hale is rather the executive arm operating under Kat's orders when things come to blows. For that he has his qualifications.

For example, we land at night in some entirely unknown spot, a sorry hole, that has been eaten out to the very walls. We are quartered in a small dark factory adapted to the purpose. There are beds in it, or rather bunks — a couple of wooden beams over which wire netting is stretched.

Wire netting is hard. And there's nothing to put on it. Our waterproof sheets are too thin. We use our blankets to cover ourselves.

Kat looks at the place and then says to Haie Westhus: "Come with me." They go off to explore. Half an hour later they are back again with arms full of straw. Kat has found a horse-box with straw in it. Now we might sleep if we weren't so terribly hungry.

Kropp asks an artilleryman who has been some time in this neighborhood: "Is there a canteen anywhere abouts?"

"Is there a what?" he laughs. "There's nothing to be had here. You won't find so much as a crust of bread here."

"Aren't there any inhabitants here at all then?"

He spits. "Yes, a couple. But they mostly loaf around the cookhouse and beg."

"That's a bad business! — Then we'll have to pull in our belts and wait till the rations come up in the morning."

But I see Kat has put on his cap.

"Where to, Kat?" I ask.

"Just to explore the place a bit." He strolls off. The artilleryman grins scornfully. "Let him explore! But don't be too hopeful about it."

Disappointed we lie down and consider whether we couldn't have a go at the iron rations. But it's too risky; so we try to get a wink of sleep.

Kropp divides a cigarette and hands me half. Tjaden gives an account of his national dish—broadbeans and bacon. He despises it when not flavored with bog-myrtle, and, "for God's sake, let it all be cooked together, not the potatoes, the beans, and the bacon separately." Someone growls that he will pound Tjaden into bog-myrtle if he doesn't shut up. Then all becomes quiet in the big room—only the candles flickering from the necks of a couple of bottles and the artilleryman spitting every now and then.

We stir a bit as the door opens and Kat appears. I think I must be dreaming; he has two loaves of bread under his arm and a blood-stained sandbag full of horseflesh in his hand.

The artilleryman's pipe drops from his mouth. He feels the bread. "Real bread, by God! and still hot, too!"

Kat gives no explanation. He has the bread, the rest doesn't matter. I'm sure that if he were planted down in the middle of the desert, in half an hour he would have gathered together a supper of roast meat, dates, and wine.

"Cut some wood," he says curtly to Haie.

Then he hauls out a frying pan from under his coat, and a handful of salt as well as a lump of fat from his pocket. He has thought of everything. Haie makes a fire on the floor. It lights up the empty room of the factory. We climb out of bed.

The artilleryman hesitates. He wonders whether to praise Kat and so perhaps gain a little for himself. But Katczinsky doesn't even see him, he might as well be thin air. He goes off cursing.

Kat knows the way to roast horseflesh so that it's tender. It shouldn't be put straight into the pan, that makes it tough. It should be boiled first in a little water. With our knives we squat round in a circle and fill our bellies.

That is Kat. If for but one hour in a year something eatable were to be had in some one place only, within that hour, as if moved by a vision, he would put on his cap, go out and walk directly there, as though following a compass, and find it.

He finds everything—if it is cold, a small stove and wood, hay and straw, a table and chairs—but above all food. It is uncanny; one would think he conjured it out of the air. His masterpiece was four boxes of lobsters. Admittedly we would rather have had a good beef steak.

We have settled ourselves on the sunny side of the hut. There is a smell of tar, of summer, and of sweaty feet. Kat sits beside me. He wants to talk. Today we have been practicing saluting because Tjaden failed to salute a major. Kat can't get it out of his head. "You see we are losing the war because we can salute too well," he says.

Kropp stalks up, with his breeches rolled up and his feet bare. He lays out his washed socks to dry on the grass.

The two begin to argue. At the same time they lay a bottle of beer on the result of an air-fight that's going on above us. Katczinsky won't budge from the opinion, which as an old front-hog, he rhymes:

Give 'em all the same grub and all the same pay
And the war would be over and done in a day.

Kropp on the other hand is a thinker. He proposes that a declaration of war should be a kind of popular festival with entrance-tickets and bands, like a bull fight. Then in the arena the ministers and generals of the two countries, dressed in bathing-drawers and armed with clubs, can have it out among themselves. Whoever survives, his country wins. That would be much simpler and more just than this arrangement, where the wrong people do the fighting.

The subject is dropped. Then the conversation turns to drill.

A picture comes before me. Burning midday in the barrack-yard. The heat hangs over the square. The barracks are deserted. Everything sleeps. All one hears is the drummers practicing; they have installed themselves anywhere and practice brokenly, dully, monotonously. What a concord! Midday heat, barrack-square, and drummers beating!

The windows of the barracks are empty and dark. From some of them trousers are hanging to dry. The rooms are cool and one looks toward them longingly.

O dark, musty platoon huts, with the iron bedsteads, the checkered bedding, the lockers and the stools! Even you can become the object of desire; out here you have a faint resemblance to home; your rooms, full of the smell of stale food, sleep, smoke and clothes!

Katczinsky paints it all in lively colors. What would we not give to be able to go back to it. But we must not pursue that line of thought any further.

Those early morning hours of instruction—"What are the parts of the 98 rifle?"—the midday hours of physical training—"Pianist, forward! By the right, quick march. Report to the cook-house for potato-peeling."

We indulge in reminiscences. Kropp laughs suddenly and says "Change at Lohne!"

That was our corporal's favorite game. Lohne is a railway junction. In order that our fellows going on leave shouldn't get lost there, Himmelstoss used to practice the change in the barrack-room. We had to learn that at Lohne, to reach the branch-line, we must pass through a subway. The beds represented the subway and each man stood at attention on the left side of his bed. Then came the command: "Change at Lohne," and like lightning everyone scrambled under the bed to the opposite side. We practiced this for a whole hour——

Horseradish and Watercress Sandwiches.

A delightful piquant sandwich to serve with the clear soup. Six tablespoons butter four tablespoons grated horseradish, one bunch watercress, one teaspoon lemon juice, salt. Cream butter, add horseradish, chopped watercress, lemon juice and salt. Spread between thin slices of wheat bread and cut into fancy shapes.

Vegetables and bread left in soup cause it to turn sour.

Never too hot —never too cool, —always just right.
At last an electric iron in which the heat is positively and automatically controlled. Just set the control for any kind of work—light, medium or heavy—and the heat will remain constantly and evenly at exactly the desired point.
There is no other iron like the splendid, new, improved
"American Beauty" automatic electric iron the best iron made
It will pay you to set your old iron aside to use for an extra iron or trade it in on one of these marvelous new irons.
This iron is so precisely designed and so ruggedly constructed it should last for many years—probably a lifetime.
Costs a little more at first, but cheaper in the long run.

SPECIAL SHORT TIME OFFER!
For a short time we will sell you a new "American Beauty" Adjustable-Automatic Iron with Nothing to pay down and only $1.00 a month added to your electric bills. And in addition we will allow you
$1.00 for your Old Iron—any kind or condition—to apply on purchase price of your new "American Beauty."
Our wagon will deliver the new iron to your door and bring back the old one.

Eggs in Summer Diet

908 are a valuable food and a good hot weather substitute for meat. Both are tissue-building and tissue-repairing foods, as both contain mineral substances. In eggs the yolk is especially rich in iron, calcium and phorus.
e rule eggs are easily digested, this depends largely upon their preparation. A coddled egg is the digestible than a boiled one or a fried egg is more difficult to digest than one that is boiled. coddled eggs are more digestible when minced, and so on.
gs should be served with foods that are rich in starch, such as bread and potatoes, and when served with milk they supplement the low iron content of the milk. For substitute for meat there are many tasty ways of serving eggs, such as Spanish or a bread omelet, plain or curried. They are appetizing when baked or shirred and boiled eggs are delicious on a hot day served with a lettuce salad with Creole dressing.

Patience at an End

I'LL HAVE TO PUT THIS SEWING AWAY- I'M SO NERVOUS- THE IDEA OF THAT THATCHER BOY HAVING THE BRASS TO GIVE LULU A BRACELET!
AND AFTER I'D TOLD HER AGAIN, AND AGAIN NOT TO SPEAK TO HIM! SHE HAS A STUBBORN STREAK LIKE HER FATHER —— WHY SHE COULD HAVE HER PICK OF THE NICEST BOYS IN TOWN-
WHERE ARE THOSE STOCKINGS SHE WANTED ME TO MEND? WHY HERE'S THAT BRACELET I'LL TAKE CHARGE OF IT! IT'S TIME FOR ME TO PUT MY FOOT DOWN!
SHE'LL HAVE ANOTHER ONE OF HER SULKING SPELLS BUT SHE'LL GET OVER IT, AND SOME DAY SHE'LL THANK ME FOR THIS!

RUDY NEBB IS IN HIGH SPIRITS THESE DAYS - IT DON'T TAKE MUCH TO MAKE HIM HAPPY - HE'S GOT A MIND THAT RUNS THAT WAY

GIVE ME ONE OF THEM 5 CENT STOGIES - ON THE ONE I GOT YESTERDAY, I PULLED MY FACE BACK AN INCH TRYING TO GET SMOKE THROUGH IT.
HERE, BOY, GO OVER TO THE TAILORS AND GET MY TROUSERS - THERE'S A 50 CENT CHARGE - HERE'S A DOLLAR - KEEP THE 50 CENTS AND BUY YOURSELF AN AUTO
HE'S JUST A SPENDTHRIFTER - IF I WASN'T MAD AT HIM I WOULD FETCH HIS PANTS FOR 50 CENTS MYSELF - LAST WEEK HE HAD A FACE THAT LOOKED LIKE HE NEVER EXPECTED TO SEE NO MORE MONEY - THIS WEEK HE'S GOT HIS OLD BRAGGING FACE ON AGAIN LIKE HE HAD IT ALL.

Eggs in Summer Diet

Eggs are a valuable food and a good hot weather substitute for meat. Both are tissue-building and tissue-repairing foods, both contain mineral substance. In eggs the yolk is especially rich in iron, calcium and phosphorus.

As a rule eggs are easily digested, but this depends largely upon their preparation. A coddled egg is more digestible than a boiled one and a fried egg is more difficult to digest than one that is boiled. Poached eggs are more digestible than minced, and so on.

Eggs should be served with foods that are rich in starch, such as bread and potatoes, and when served with milk they supplement the low iron content of the milk. As a substitute for meat there are many tasty ways of serving eggs, such as Spanish or a bread omelet, creole or curried. They are appetizing when baked or shirred and hard eggs are delicious on a hot salad served with a lettuce salad dressed with Creole dressing.

Waltz Restored by London Dancing Set

WITH memories of moonlight and roses, modern London society is firmly turning its back on the contortions of the latest one-step and reverting to the waltz.

The very smartest parties boast at least three or four waltzes in an evening's dance program, and all the dancing crowd seems very well pleased.

At a ball given recently by the Marquis and Marchioness of Londonderry at Londonderry House, with the Duke and Duchess of York, Princess Helena Victoria, the Aga Khan, and Winston Churchill among the guests, the waltz tunes outclassed all others in popularity.

Perhaps the whispered preference of the Prince of Wales has something to do with society's adoption of the swinging rhythm. At any rate he is always among the first on the floor when a waltz is struck up.

PEGGY! WHAT DOES THIS MEAN? I DON'T UNDERSTAND.....WHY AT THE VERY LAST MINUTE YOU REFUSED TO MARRY ME. WHY PEGGY THIS IS TERRIBLE..... AWFUL.....TELL ME.....?
JERRY PLEASE. NOT SO LOUD. THESE NEIGHBORS ARE SO..... COME IN PLEASE.
PEGGY WHAT DOES IT MEAN THAT YOU....?
OH JERRY, DON'T ASK ME ANYTHING.....YOU'RE NOT TO BLAME IN THE LEAST. I JUST THOUGHT AND THOUGHT AND THEN CHANGED MY MIND. OH YOU WOULDN'T UNDERSTAND SO PLEASE ASK ME NOTHING. WE CAN STILL BE FRIENDS.
FRIENDS? LISTEN PEGGY. ANSWER JUST ONE QUESTION.....THIS FELLOW, WHAT'S HIS NAME, OAKDALE.....? FOR THE LAST MONTH YOU WERE ALWAYS TALKING ABOUT HIM. I DIDN'T MIND THAT.....MUCH..... BUT I KNOW HE'S TALKED YOU INTO CHANGING YOUR MIND, DIDN'T HE?
OH JERRY I KNEW YOU WOULDN'T UNDERSTAND.
HARTFORD OAKDALE IS MERELY A VERY CLOSE FRIEND. I'M SORRY FOR YOUR SAKE THAT I MADE SUCH A MESS OF THIS AFFAIR. AND I WISH THINGS DIDN'T HAPPEN TO.....WELL, MAKE ME CHANGE MY MIND.
OH I DON'T BLAME YOU PEGGY. NOT THE LEAST. HARTFORD OAKDALE THAT'S AN EASY NAME TO REMEMBER. YES SIR, AND I WILL REMEMBER IT TOO, HONEY.
